Buzzing Russ Jet Crashes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Soviet medium jet bomber crashed in the Norwegian Sea today shortly after making a low pass close to a U.S. aircraft carrier, the defence department announced.

No survivors were found and three bodies were recovered, a spokesman added.

The defence department said the anti-submarine warfare carrier Essex reported that U.S. Naval vessels and aircraft "in no way interfered with, hampered or threatened the Soviet aircraft at any time or in any way prior to the crash."

The plane which went into the sea about 200 miles off the west coast of Norway was reported to be a TU-16 Badger, an elderly medium bomber which normally carries a crew of seven.

The United States has complained on a number of occasions dating back at least five years that Soviet reconnaissance bombers, including Badgers, have flown over U.S. naval units in international waters.

The announcement said the TU-16 was one of a flight of two Badgers.

"It was making a fourth low pass near the carrier USS Essex, which was conducting anti-submarine warfare training operations," the announcement said.

House Bars Woman After 'Slur' on MPs

LONDON (Reuters)—Scottish Nationalist Winifred Ewing on Friday became the second woman member ordered out of the House of Commons in as many days for offending male colleagues.

The latest incident centred on a letter Mrs. Ewing wrote to a newspaper this week interpreted to mean she believed male members of the House spent too much time drinking in bars.

Thursday night another woman member, Conservative Dame Irene Ward, was suspended from Parliament for five days and ordered out of the Commons for standing in front of the speaker and blocking members going to vote.

The 72-year-old Dame Irene was protesting what she considered government suppression of parliamentary debates.

HIPPIE HARPOONERS, that's the name some critics are applying to the long-haired figures manning a canoe in the new Provincial Museum here. There are eight Indians posed in the act of killing a whale in foreground. Some students of Indian history say the Indians are "anatomically inaccurate," that the braves depicted did not actually wear their hair that long. (Iriving Strickland Photo)

$80,000 MUSEUM WORK 'WRONG'

Sculpture Storm Blows

By HUMPHRY DAVY

A government-appointed fine arts committee was strongly criticized today for choosing its own chairman to create the most expensive piece of sculpture for the new Provincial Museum.

Goerge Moore, museum adviser, questioned the committee's choice of Lionel Thomas to execute a sculpture depicting Nootka Indians —"in Hippie hair-do" — in the act of harpooning a California Gray whale.

Mr. Thomas is a professor of fine arts at the University of British Columbia and is chairman of the fine arts committee.

The all-wood sculpture, about 33 feet long and 14 feet wide, is believed to have cost $80,000. It will occupy the centre of the museum's orientation hall in the main exhibition building.

Mr. Moore, who claims the sculpture is not up to standard, said the project should have been submitted to an open competition.

"This would have given the committee a wider selection," he said "As I see it the method of selection leaves something to be desired."

●

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant disclaimed any responsibility for the choice of artist and sculpture.

"The fine arts are not in my field," he said "This was up to a committee of experts."

He said it is easy now to look back and criticize.

"But the various museum committees have been working under hardships and strain," he said. "They have made mistakes—it's true. But I have nothing but praise for them because they are putting their best into the job."

Museum director Dr. Clifford Carl declined comment.

"I have nothing to do with fine arts," he added

Wilson Duff, a former musem anthropologist, and a member of the committee, said he preferred to say nothing.

Mr. Moore, who touched off the controversy, described the Nootka piece as "wrong in scale, wrong in detail, wrong in posture, lacking in vibrancy."

He claimed the public is paying a high price for inferior art.

●

"I have no quarrel with the concept," he said. "But the work falls sadly short in its execution. It is tedious, inaccurate, unimaginative, confused, dead and far, far too expensive."

"As a taxpayer, I can't help but wish the whole commission could be handed over to a skilled Indian carver of Simon Charlie's worth, who understands the subject and is a master of the metier."

"The price of the completed work would support the museum's Indian carver training program for nearly eight years at current costs," he said.

Mr. Moore said he wanted to make it clear that he had no "axe to grind on his own." He doesn't know Mr. Thomas.

Mr. Moore is leaving the museum soon to take a post in a museum in Hawaii.

"What I'm concerned with is the role the museum plays as an educational institution," he explained. "It should stimulate and help raise the general cultural level of the society it seeks to serve.

"Now in my opinion, these works, commissioned at great expense, will not really help to further the museum's work. Therefore their inclusion is a disservice to the public."

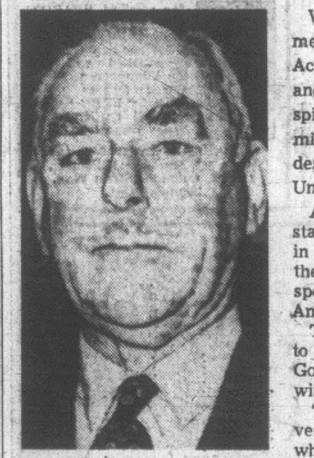
Anti-Rhodesia Stand Tagged as Conspiracy



ACHESON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former U.S. state secretary Dean Acheson has accused Britain and the United States of conspiring to overthrow the white-minority government of Rhodesia with the blessing of the United Nations.

Acheson, 75, secretary of state from 1949 to 1953 and now in private law practice, made the accusation Friday in a speech before a section of the American Bar Association.

The retiring U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, Arthur J. Goldberg, promptly took issue with Acheson.

"The secretary of state is a very distinguished man but what he has said is sheer nonsense," Goldberg said.

'TRUDEAU LIKE A MINOR CAESAR'

Excitement Points to Liberal Sweep

By PETER NEWMAN

Newman

WINNIPEG — Even this early in the election a comparison of the campaign styles of Pierre Elliott Trudeau and Robert Lorne Stanfield leads to an inescapable conclusion: that unless they are dealt some unexpected blow, the Liberals will sweep into power on June 25 with a majority mandate based on their leader's burgeoning popular support in every province.

You could feel victory in the air here on Thursday when Trudeau spent the day touring the city's Conservative suburbs: You could hear it in dozens of casual conversations and see it in the faces of the crowds that turned out to watch his campaign.

Looking like one of the minor Caesars of the late Roman empire, Trudeau led a triumphal procession from shopping centre to shopping centre, where he was gaped at, flower-bedecked, sung to, applauded, heckled, admired, all the time being magnified in the public eye by the crowd's intense awareness of his personal style.

This was a dramatic contrast to the sober visit earlier in the week of Robert Stanfield who left the city not enlarged but somehow a smaller figure than when he arrived.

He could establish little rapport with the people who turned out to hear him read his speech; they went away uninvolved in his future, seemingly untouched by his appeal to responsibility.

The Trudeau crowds are different.

Their most colorful aspect, of course, is the horde of teeny-boppers, running with long manes blowing like banners in the wind, full of vitality, excitement, laughter, shrieking in a kind of wild ecstasy that rises to a squawk when one of their number is kissed.

(Reporter to writhing girl: "Why do you like him so much?" Writhing girl to reporter: "Ooooh, I like his pock marks." Reporter to self: "Acne Power?")

What is probably more significant is the presence of scores of toddlers, held on the shoulders of their parents being admonished to "remember him," the way in other years the very young were out to behold royalty.

Trudeau seems to enjoy each of these occasions, accepting the flowers thrust at him with a shrug, bounding up on the backs of trucks to give voice to his cause.

But he's at his best away from the howling mobs, at press conferences where he is transformed into a first-rate teacher who can turn tentative, vaguely articulated questions into something intelligent, rewording them so that each answer becomes a lucid lecture, a precis of the problem at hand, its ramifications, his policy on it, other possible solutions and the difficulties involved.

He speaks English not just well but superbly with a mastery of the Canadian idiom and of the language's subtleties.

France Bans All Crowds, War Feared

PARIS (CP) — Premier Georges Pompidou said today that the violence that mushroomed through France Friday night and early today was "an obvious attempt" to start a civil war.

Two persons died in the riots which followed President de Gaulle's announcement Friday for a June referendum on major reforms he plans for the country.

Pompidou told reporters he has ordered police to use force if necessary to break up street meetings in Paris.

The violence, the worst since the French crisis began three weeks ago, also resulted in injuries to hundreds of persons and the arrest of hundreds more—648 in Paris alone.

SIRENS WAIL

Paris echoed today to the wail of ambulance sirens after the bloody night-long street battles that raged for 10 hours. Demonstrators wrecked and set fire to three police stations today.

Pompidou said "the occupation of the Latin Quarter took on the appearance of a real fortress. . . ."

"We were faced with an obvious attempt to set off the start of a civil war."

Those killed were a policeman in Lyon and a 26-year-old man who died of knife wounds in Paris. The knifed Parisian may have been struck by a rioter, although Pompidou said his death might not have had any connection with the disturbances. The premier said he was not a victim of police action.

As a heavy rain fell, Pompidou said order had practically been restored but that Paris presented the "face of devastation."

MAKES APPEAL

He said it is necessary "without delay to end subversive agitation" and appealed to the people not to join in assemblages or parades.

"Faced with an obvious attempt to unleash a start of civil war, as is shown by what happened in the big cities as for example Lyon, the forces of law and order were given the mission of destroying the barricades, dispersing the demonstrators and occupying the principal artieries held by the rioters," Pompidou told reporters.

"This agitation is all the more deplorable," he said, because it took place at a moment when unions and government were

DEFYING government order barring him, French student dissident leader Daniel Cohn-Bendit re-entered country Friday, was arrested and returned to West Germany. EXPORTS INCREASE

Canada Economic State Defended

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau today accused other political parties of casting gloom on Canada's economic prospects.

He told a crowd of 1,000 on a downtown street that other parties are saying that things are going badly, that the dollar is uncertain.

"Why are they afraid of Canada's ability to prosper as a nation?" he asked.

Holding a lilac that someone had given him in his hand, he said the Liberal party wants to make sure the Canadian dollar is sound and that the budget is balanced.

The only way to do this was not to give the government more power and money but to give more opportunity to the people. That was how to make the country prosperous.

For those who paint a gloomy picture, he said the truth is that Canadian exports have practically doubled in the last five years.

The crowd, mostly adults, responded with polite applause.

TORIES SLIPPING

. . . And Poll Backs It Up

Prime Minister Trudeau and the Liberal party have taken a commanding lead in the early going of the federal election campaign, according to the latest Gallup poll.

The poll indicates that if the election had been held during the first two weeks in May, Liberals would have gained 50 per cent of the popular vote, Tories would have receive 29 per cent and New Democrats 16 per cent.

Here are the Gallup poll findings:

	Liberals	Progresive Conservatives	NDP	All Other
1963 election	42%	33%	13%	12%
1965 election	40	33	18	9
October, 1967	34	43	17	6
TODAY	50	29	16	5

The next poll will show voter preference during the last half of this month.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

A couple of columns ago we asked whatever happened to Caddy, which raised in some breasts a companion question, whatever happened to Archie Wills. A former Times managing editor and noted Caddy-watcher, Mr. Wills immediately reported in.

He claims Caddy (otherwise known as Cadborosaurus the frolicking sea monster) has been his protege for 37 years. Mr. Wills notes that Caddy has appeared whenever times were difficult and he suggests the time is ripe for more sightings. (The Times' standing $500 offer for a photograph still stands.)

Mr. Wills says Caddy will probably be following the sockeyes which he relishes almost to the same degree as he does seagulls and Mr. Wills urges greater effort by all sea-watchers.

His letter ends with the query, "Why should anyone with a name like Douglas Hillside question the sincerity of Caddy?"

Actually we don't question Caddy. It's Mr. Wills we're suspicious about.

Unemployed welders, machinists and a host of other jobless workmen find wry amusement in an advertisement being carried in the London Mirror over the name of Canadian Government Immigration Service.

"Canada offers excellent opportunities in a wide range of professions, trades and skills," it states. There follows a list of 46 vocations ranging from farm hands to physicians and including several trades in surplus stock here.

There's a coupon for would-be immigrants to send for more information and the following is the icing on the cake:

"Make your home in Canada and enjoy life in an uncrowded country offering a high standard of living. You and your family will be protected too by a social welfare program, family allowances, hospital insurance, unemployment insurance and retirement pension."

Saw an ad in a national magazine for a summer camp for youngsters who are serious about learning to speak French. It offers "total immersion" during a six-week session for boys and girls aged 10 to 18. It's located at Ste. Marguerite, PQ.

"We've said before that no matter how many youngsters take French in our schools, darn few ever learn to speak the language beyond the plume-de-ma-tante stage. Perhaps "total immersion" is the only answer and one the department of education might consider for students who prove they mean business.

Our scout didn't notice if there was a prize in the dog's package.

The best stories in the Times are sometimes hidden in odd corners, such as this item in Elizabeth Forbes' column this week:

". . . Charter members will be honored guests. They include 80-year-old Lily Andrews who was once in the choir and who is coming from Calgary in a wheelchair for the occasion."

Hope she makes it over the Rockies. And we also hope Bessie Forbes remembers that the only reason we tease her so much is because she is so good natured.

'Teacher Must Look Beyond Classroom'

Teachers who don't look beyond their own classroom do themselves harm and the provincial teachers' federation no good, its president said in Victoria Friday night.

Robert Buzza, 35, head of the 18,500-member B.C. Teachers' Federation, said teachers can gather more public support and do a better job by getting parents more directly involved in education.

"There appears to be a parochial streak in many of us we are not even aware of," he told a banquet of about 300 at the Old Forge presented by the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association.

About 120 local teachers were inducted into the BCTF.

Members should expect and welcome federation activity in the political arena where issues are directly involved with government education policies, the former Vancouver school principal said.

He suggested teachers are not now taking full advantage of opportunities to contribute towards decisions in education.

When the BCTF roving commission now hearing briefs from teachers on education issues files its report, Mr. Buzza predicted the recommendations it makes will be already within teachers' powers to implement.

Greater Victoria teachers honored T. L. Christie, recently retired secretary-treasurer of the school district, with a presentation at the dinner.

They also paid tribute to three exchange teachers from Quebec, Rose Pellerin, Lise Vallieres and Andre Fortin, who have been teaching in Victoria for the past year.

Rocket Levels Vital Base

SAIGON (UPI) — Explosions triggered by a single communist rocket virtually levelled a vital U.S. base and knocked out more than 100 helicopters, it was learned Friday.

The Russian-made rocket was one of three or four 122mm projectiles that slammed into Camp Evans, field headquarters of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division about 16 miles northwest of Hue, last Sunday.

. . . LIBERAL SWEEP INDICATED

In Winnipeg, for example, he referred at one point to "backyards" though "gardens" would have been the learned and less appropriate word.

When he was asked a question that implied he might be a socialist, he answered: "I ask you not to judge a man by labels, by the thickness or thinness of his pocketbook—or indeed of his hair—but by his ideas."

It was a simple response, yet exactly right because it reminded his audience in a graceful way that he is, after all, a millionaire and how could he possibly be a socialist?

What Trudeau has going for him is his immense appeal as a human being, but more than that, he's shrewd enough to exploit this appeal, drawing on his strengths, hiding his vulnerabilities.

MASS MEDIA

He probably would not have done much better in Winnipeg's huge musty civic auditorium than Robert Stanfield did on Tuesday night.

It's an impossible place to master for any politician without the rhetorical gifts of John Diefenbaker. But Trudeau isn't exposing himself to situations he can't handle, while Stanfield is.

At the same time, Trudeau is working the mass media in spectacular fashion.

He spent nearly three of the seven hours he was in Winnipeg taping television shows.

This is an essential ingredient of the new politics.

The appeal is piped directly into the voters homes, immeasurably multiplying the effectiveness of a tour of this nature.

Stanfield, on the other hand, was given prime television time on the CBC's Newsmagazine on Tuesday night but his rally was so badly organized and ran so far behind schedule that all of this valuable free time was devoted to Duff Roblin's introductory remarks and the Conservative leader never even got on the air.

At the Stanfield rally, there could be seen in a back row the bent over figure of Gordon Churchill, once the most powerful Tory in Winnipeg, sitting unheralded and unwanted.

Nobody had thought to ask him up on the platform and except for a mumbled tribute, Stanfield ignored his presence.

But veterans affairs minister Roger Teillet, who was in a very similar position within the Liberal party after losing the nomination for his seat on Wednesday night, stood up on the platform at the Crossroads shopping centres at Transcona where Trudeau put his arm around him, as the audience cheered.

The old style-new style contrast has permeated the basics of the campaign, the posters, the slogans, even the music.

Stanfield's organizers favor the bagpipes and his Tuesday audience was warmed up with Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag.

FOLKSINGERS

The liberals had a group of attractive young folksingers, known as the Trudeau Troop, deployed at each shopping centre, singing Rock Your Soul and throwing out autographed pictures of Trudeau into the crowd.

But the differences run far more deeply than the paraphernalia.

They are reflected in the way the two men see the issues.

The Conservative leader has been going across the country making specific policy pledges, such as a feasibility study for building a tunnel to Newfoundland and the launching of a federal guaranteed minimum income plan.

Trudeau is making few promises.

He is basing his appeal instead on his ability, in this time of national crisis, to become accepted as the indispensable political leader who can take our national anxieties and release them to the surface where they can be studied and eventually resolved.

He doesn't say how he's going to do it, but to English Canada he looks as though he's the one man who can solve "the Quebec problem" and keep the country together.

CAMPAIGNER

The superficial conclusion from all this might be that Stanfield is a bad campaigner because he is withdrawn and not a showman, while Trudeau is a good campaigner because he is an extrovert, a performer doing his thing.

Yet Trudeau remains just as private, just as locked within himself as Stanfield.

His new role appeals to his imagination and he plays it with great verve, but the blue-ice inner core of the man remains disengaged. If you look closely at Trudeau's eyes, you realize he's as casual as a computer.

June 25 is till a month away and anything can happen. But the evidence so far suggests that Pierre Trudeau is leading in the campaign and will win the election whether he's as great a man as countless scores of Canadians are being bedazzled into believing these days will take much longer to assess.

. . . FRANCE

about to negotiation on workers' demands.

Union and opposition spokesmen denounced the president's referendum proposal. Negotiations set to bring government, union and business representatives around a bargaining table today were called by one conservative newspaper France's only hope for a return to normality.

In a radio-television address Friday night, the 77-year-old president broke a long silence on the turmoil that has paralysed France to propose a nationwide referendum next month on university and economic reforms. He couched his plans for bettering student and worker conditions in generalities, asking his countrymen for a "mandate for renovation."

VOTE JUNE 16

De Gaulle said that unless he got a yes vote—and a big one—he would "not remain any longer in office." The vote is expected to take place June 16.

Francois Mitterand, leader of the biggest opposition group, the Federation of the Democratic and Socialist Left, said: "After 10 years of government without control, after one year of full powers by means of the ordinances, after two weeks of disarray and impotence, the chief of state can find no other way out of the crisis for which he is responsible than to strengthen his power.

"The Federation of the Left says no to the plebiscite and no to Gen. de Gaulle."

The major union leaders reacted caustically to de Gaulle's proposals. They said they don't want a referendum; they want higher pay. However, they gave no sign of rejecting an invitation to meet with Premier Georges Pompidou today to discuss their demands. Across the country between 8,000,000 and 10,000,000 workers remained on strike, many occupying their factories.

Violence has been spotty on the labor front, and some union leaders have shown signs they are prepared to talk seriously with the government.

At Lyon Friday night a police commissioner, Rene Lacroix, was killed when caught in the path of a truck loaded with paving stones that students pushed toward police.

SWARM INTO EXCHANGE

Less than two hours after de Gaulle's speech, rampaging youths shook open the high iron gates before the Paris stock exchange—the Bourse—swarmed onto the trading floor and set fire to booths and quotation boards. Before firemen could extinguish the blaze, the area was badly burned.

Farmers joined the protest Friday. They blocked national highways with barricades and clashed with police in Agen, Perigueux, Lyon, Nantes and Rnenes. De Gaulle's farm policy, they said, was ruining them.

"We don't give a damn for the general," chanted thousands of students massed near Paris' Lyon railway station and the Place de la Bastille to protest the expulsion from France of student leader Daniel Cohn-Bendit.

Spy Charges Detailed

MOSCOW (CP-AP) — Izvestia, Soviet government newspaper, said today that a Canadian diplomat expelled from Russia gathered detailed espionage information as his train passed a Siberian airfield.

The newspaper said Lt.-Col. John V. Watson filled several pages of notebooks with maps and notes of the area May 11. Photographs of the alleged notes were published in the newspaper.

He and his wife are in London where they are believed to be staying with relatives before returning to Canada.

Loot Give-Away Halted by Police

Two juveniles, apparently inspired by the spirit of Robin Hood, face charges for distributing stolen money among their friends.

Police said the youths, one 13 and the other 15, arrived at Stadacona Park one night this week with $600 in their possession.

They gave two boys $60 each and another $25. Another friend received $180 for lunch and returned $100 which eventually went to a hippie.

One of the juveniles bought himself a starting pistol, some blanks, a record and a pellet rifle and had $6 left in his possession when visited by police. He said he had given eight friends a total of $206.

Police said they have recovered $166 in cash, $69.50 in property and cheques worth $1,947.

G. G. Baal, 1164 Roslyn, reported the money and cheques stolen from the front seat of his car Tuesday night while parked in the 1300-block Pembroke.

The boys will appear in juvenile court charged with theft over $50.

Parents 'Tired Of Young People Pressuring Them'

Parents are getting rather tired of being pressured into letting young people do things "because everybody in the gang does it," a Victoria mother said Friday.

"Maybe other parents feel the same," said Mrs. Peggy Dyson. "If we all insisted on our way then the cry would change to 'no one does that'."

Mrs. Dyson will speak for parents at a discussion series in Christ Church Cathedral hall, starting next Saturday.

A group of parents will talk about the pressures of raising children. The following Saturday young people will give their opinions. At the final meeting June 15, parents and offspring will meet for dialogue.

In the days when sail was king, B.C.'s weekend mariners knew a thing or two about the water. And the beer. Sure, there have been some changes — but the yachtsmen of yesteryear would still say "Aye" to Old Style. It's still their style. Slow brewed and naturally aged to wet a man-sized whistle. That's why it's British Columbia's favorite beer. Down the hatch, me hearties!

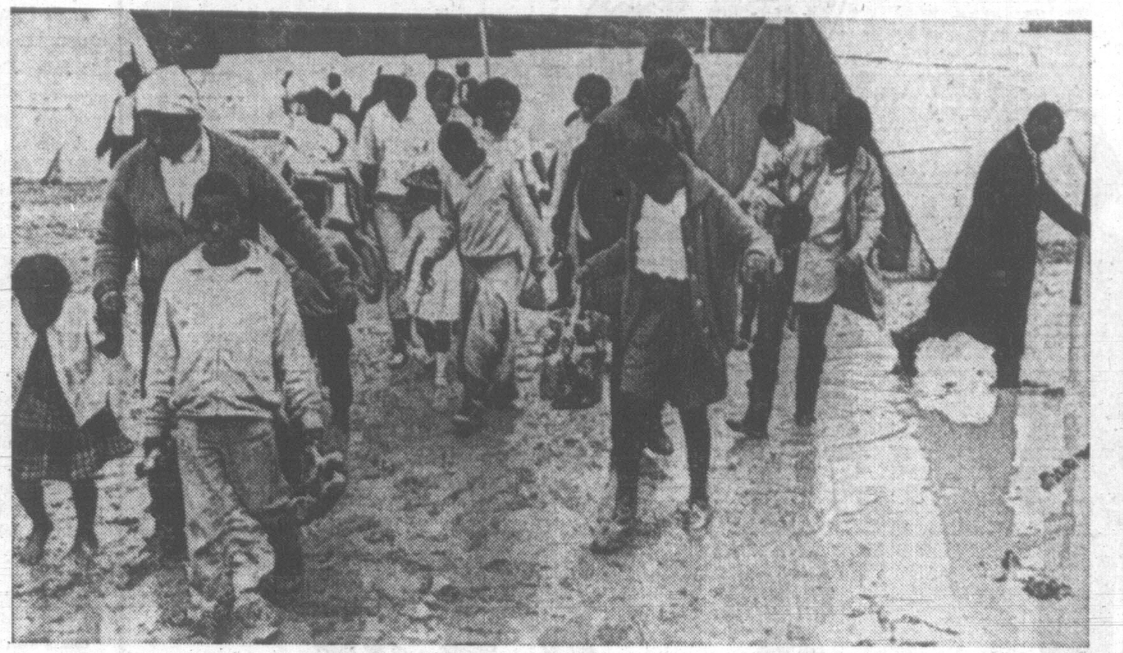
Poor to Follow Officials Home



POOR PEOPLE of the U.S. Friday got rained on, turning their camp in Washington into a sea of mud and water, forcing a temporary evacuation. The bleak look of their camp after rainstorm reminded them of conditions back home. (AP Wirephoto)

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite problems in their own mud-filled backyard, the Poor People's Campaign demonstrators are broadening their target area to include the homes as well as the offices of government figures.

About 100 of the poor clapped, sang and shouted their disapproval Friday night outside the apartment of Representative Wilbur D. Mills (Dem. Ark.), leading advocate of welfare program restrictions.

They laughed and clapped in derision after singing Happy Birthday for the powerful chairman of the House of Representatives ways and means committee.

But Mills, who turned 59 Friday, had left earlier in the evening. An aide said he had a prior commitment.

Police barred the door of the building and the demonstrators made no attempt to enter.

Afterward, they left the fashionable area and returned to their muddy shantytown. So did nearly all the other 2,000 residents, in spite of earlier indications most of them would be evacuated for reasons of health and comfort.

FEW MOVE OUT

A campaign spokesman said only about 50 women, children and the elderly were staying at area churches temporarily.

Frequent rains that had soaked the camp stopped Friday morning and the weatherman was predicting little or no rain for the weekend.

The leader of the demonstration outside Mills' apartment building, Dr. George Wiley, denounced him as a man who "would take food out of the mouths of hungry people."

Wiley, director of the National Welfare Rights Organization, was alluding to Mills' successful drive last year for congressional restrictions on the welfare program and to his demand for a $6,000,000,000 cut in federal spending for next fiscal year.

Wiley promised the poor people would come back again and again to plague Mills until he changed his ways.

And he pledged the same harassment for Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman, who administers food distribution programs for the needy.

Fallout Zone Thyroid Cases Listed

NEW YORK (AP) — Two new cases of thyroid growths may have been found in a group of children exposed to fallout in the Marshall Islands from a 1954 Bikini U.S. atomic bomb test, a scientist reported Friday.

Seventeen of 19 children—90 per cent—who were under 10 years of age when exposed on Rongelap, the atoll nearest the test site, now have developed thyroid abnormalities.

The Rongelap children now are between 15 and 24 years old.

An unexpected wind shift during the 1954 test carried fallout from Bikini at the western end of the Marshall Islands back over several islands east of Bikini.

The thyroid, at the base of the neck, produces a hormone containing iodine that has a profound influence on growth and development.

There are indications of retardation of growth in many of the children, but the effect is pronounced in two teen-aged boys, whose growth has slowed by up to four years, the scientist said.

Dr. Robert A. Conard, head of a Brookhaven National Laboratory medical team that conducts annual examinations of the Marshall Islanders, said three teen-age boys and a 29-year-old woman will be brought to Brookhaven, at Upton on Long Island, for study to see if they need thyroid surgery.

As Usual

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Jordanian and Israeli forces exchanged gunfire today. As usual, each side blamed the other for opening fire.

Rustin to Lead Big Demonstration

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bayard Rustin, who helped organize the massive civil rights march on Washington in 1963, has been called in to take over planning for a one-day demonstration scheduled by poor people now encamped in Washington and their supporters.

One of the first things Rustin said Friday at the news conference called by the Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy, head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, to announce the appointment was that the date for the demonstration is being shifted from May 30 to June 19.

DEMONSTRATION

Rustin, head of the A. Philip Randolph Institute, said he wanted the demonstration on that day because amoung southern Negroes it is known as "Juneteenth," for it was on that date that Texas authorities, nearly six months after the emancipation proclamation, told Negro slaves they were free.

Rustin issued a statement in which he said the goal of the massive demonstration will be the same as those of the poor people's march, organized by the SCLC, and include "decently paid" jobs and a "liveable income."

Rustin said, however, the "mobilization will not content itself with defining general social goals. It will make specific demands which can, and must be, immediately translated into law by Congress and through executive orders."

Rustin said he would ask religions, labor, student and civil rights groups across the country to take part in the "Juneteenth Day" demonstration.

SCLC leaders had been organizing the one-day demonstration but both Abernathy and Rustin said they had their "hands full seeking to plague Congress day after day to do something about poverty."

$105,000 Award To Woman Hurt In Car Crash

VANCOUVER (CP)—A young woman who will spend the rest of her lifetime in a wheel chair Friday was awarded $105,000 damages for injuries received in a car accident.

The award to Judith Anne Winfield, 21, was the result of an accident July 24, 1966 in the Kelowna district.

Miss Winfield, who was a student at the University of British Columbia at the time, suffered severe back and other injuries. Peter Eugene Jaud, 18, of Rutland, driver of the car, died in the accident.

Mr. Justice Craig Munroe was told that Miss Winfield is permanently paralysed as a result of the accident and will spend the rest of her life in a wheel chair. She will require medical attention throughout her life.

Choral Society Names Officers

Alan Clapp has been elected president of the Victoria Choral Society.

Other officers: Percy Sands, vice-president; Mrs. Muriel Smith, treasurer; Theodore Tarn, librarian; Frank Cowley, secretary, and committee members P. K. Cummings, Hugh Sinnott, Miss Joan Mannings and Mrs. Vera Morton.

Park Shooters Pay $25 Fines

Two men charged with unlawfully shooting in Beaver Lake Park April 23 were fined $25 each Friday.

Dieter Mayer and Rod Monroe, both of 1360 Grant, pleaded guilty to shooting at targets in the park.

Magistrate Ostler said it was an extremely dangerous thing to do as there were often children playing in that area.

NEGROES CALL BOYCOTT IN DISMISSALS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Negro leaders have called a boycott of downtown St. Petersburg stores in a move to force the rehiring of the city's dismissed garbage collectors.

Marvin Davies, state field director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said Friday the firing of 211 striking garbagemen touched off the "don't-buy-downtown" protest, but that settlement of the dispute may not end it.

He said that "patronage withdrawal" has widened to protest "the general racist attitude of the city fathers and downtown businessmen."

Davies said the attitude is expressed in "racial segregation and discrimination and the hiring of Negroes on a token basis only."

The move to muffle merchants' cash register bells came after the St. Petersburg Chamber of Commerce announced support of the city administration's dismissal of the workers.

FBI Continues Hunt

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than a month and a half after the murder of Negro civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., FBI agents are still actively searching for the man accused of the killing—James Ear Ray.

FBI headquarters has been silent for weeks in the case, except to say that it still is being actively investigated — and that the bureau is not simply waiting for Ray to turn up some place.

Ray, 40, escaped April 23, 1967, from the Missouri State Penetentiary at Jefferson City where he had served eight years of a 20-year sentence for armed robbery.

The last official statement from the FBI on Ray was a one-paragraph description issued May 7 along with two new photographs of him.

Coming to Grips

IN MEETING CONSERVATIVE Leader Stanfield head-on in regard to the special-status issue of Quebec at home and abroad, both the local Liberal candidates have launched their election campaigns in the main stream of the national contest. Veteran MP David Groos, running for the Victoria seat, and newcomer David Anderson, the Esquimalt-Saanich candidate, showed themselves well able to handle what has at this point become the major issue of the campaign and the one most likely to give the Conservative Party trouble.

Mr. Anderson raised the question of Mr. Diefenbaker's likely reception of the Stanfield theory of provincial autonomy, and it is clear that the former Tory leader will be only one of many Conservatives who balk at the dangerous national decentralization which has been forced into their Party's platform in an effort to woo Quebec Premier Johnson's Union Nationale voters. Mr. Anderson raised, too, the question of what the cost to Canada would be if the Conservatives won the election with Quebec's support, for it is plain that Mr. Johnson would exact the utmost in provincial powers—not only in domestic affairs through special status, but also in foreign relations where inordinate provincial independence could disintegrate Canada as a national entity.

Mr. Trudeau is staking his campaign on the belief that Quebec will see the necessity of keeping Canada as a united country internally, and as a single voice abroad, if the Confederation is to have any standing as a sovereign state. At the same time he calls for equality of language wherever in Canada it is needed to permit French-speaking Canadians to feel at home. Mr. Stanfield's campaign appears to give little recognition to the crucial nature of this issue, for while discussion of economic and welfare matters is also of vital importance, the basic issue of Canadian entity can take second place to none. If there is no Canada there will be no Canadian economy.

Mr. Groos scored with his challenge to Conservative candidate Chatterton to debate the unity question, knowing Mr. Chatterton's past championship of Mr. Diefenbaker, who cannot fail to be at odds with Mr. Stanfield on the issue. As Mr. Groos puts it, "This is the real nub of the concern felt by Western Canadians." They will not condone a party platform which appears to provide one doctrinal version for Eastern audiences and a diametrically different one for the West.

Meanwhile, Back at . . .

WHILE THE VIETNAM WAR negotiations appear to be stalemated, at least temporarily, in Paris there are ripples on the political scene in South Vietnam which indicate the possibility of important changes. The key figure in the Saigon situation seems to be Vice-President Ky, the former leader of the military junta who was forced to take second place in the elections last year. Marshal Ky has lately taken to making speeches and giving interviews which exhibit an unusual spirit of independence—to a degree which in a less-powerful man in that country would invite a visit from the secret police.

The most notable aspect of the vice-president's words is the new insistence that it is the Vietnamese who must settle their own differences. "We are not fighting today," he said in a recent speech, "for a vague ideology or for money from foreigners . . . Our present war is for us, for our lives, for our parents, for our progeny and for the future of our country." And then, walking close to the line of treason, he said: "The entire world admires and reveres Ho Chi Minh and Vo Nguyen Giap. Who are they if not Vietnamese, if not of Vietnamese descent like you and me? Why are they so popular? Why is the south unable to produce such figures? Isn't it because the entire leadership in the south is only a pack of slavish-minded and corrupt people?"

In his references to foreign elements in Vietnam, Marshal Ky if pushed could claim that he was talking about all foreign influence, but it was quite clear in the context of this speech, and in recent interviews he has given, that he is referring to the Americans. And if he really wants the Americans out, he certainly knows that this would mean the end of the American-supported Saigon regime. He seems, in fact, to have worked around to the conclusion that some sort of a settlement with Hanoi is preferable to the present fighting.

If Vice-President Ky keeps on talking as he has been in recent weeks, he can only be considered a liability both by the Americans and the military and civilian supporters of President Thieu.

He appears to have given his support to newly-appointed Premier Tran Van Huong in his attempt to replace northern military men in the Saigon regime with southern civilians, but the reports are that this design has been balked by President Thieu and his backers.

The situation is such that while the negotiators are parrying words in Paris, there is a possibility that the South Vietnamese government will fall apart and be supplanted once again with a military dictatorship.

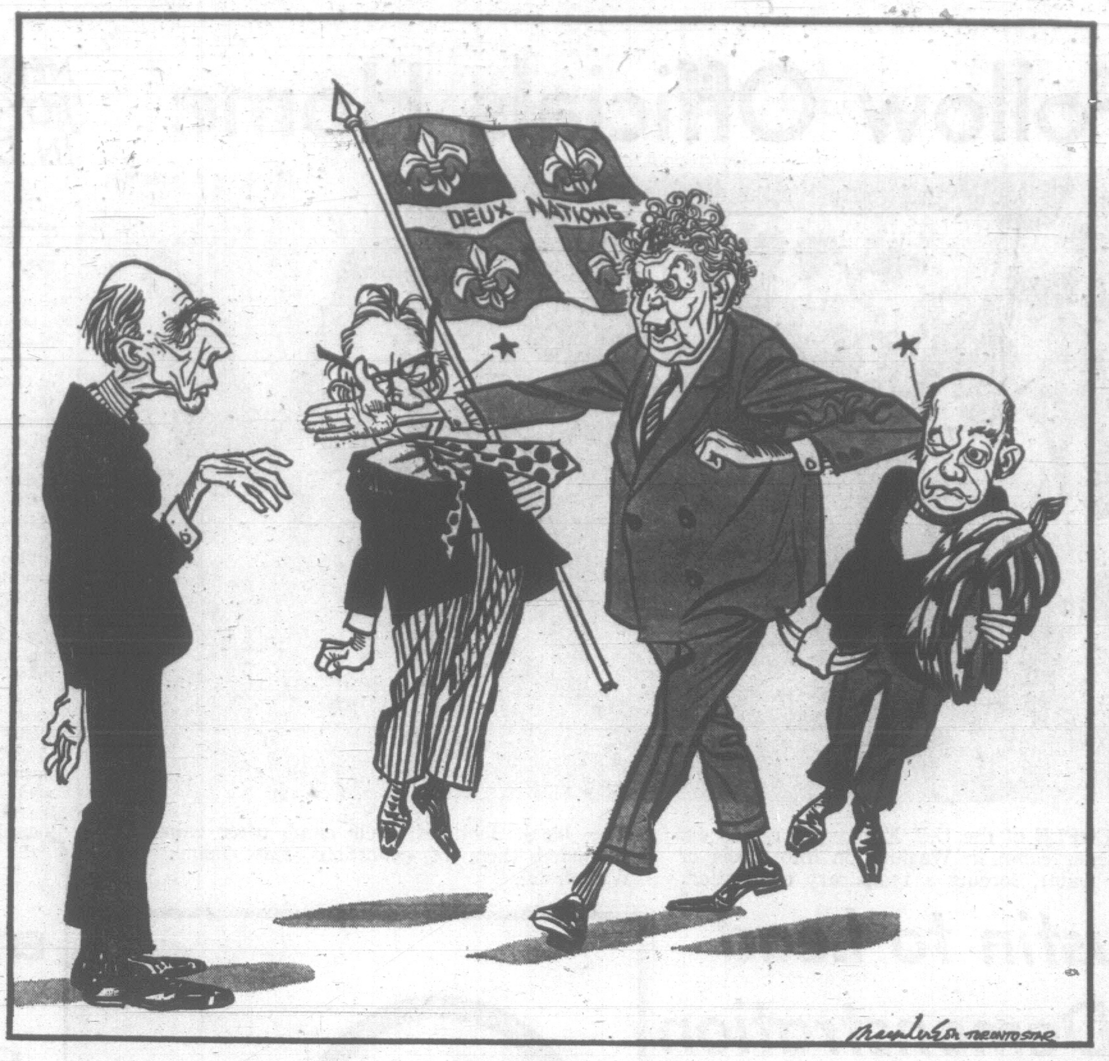
Major H. Cuthbert Holmes

IN THE DEATH OF MAJOR H. Cuthbert Holmes at the age of 77 this community has lost one of its leading businessmen, one of its most faithful admirers, one of its most prescient planners, and a stalwart exponent of man's right to stand up and champion what he believes to be correct.

For the many friends he made in the course of more than half a century as a Victorian, Major Holmes will remain in memory as a man who brought intact into a new and confused era the moral values and the dignities of an earlier age and made them contemporary and viable.

Many of the major concepts which have been embraced in Greater Victoria's commercial and recreational fabric or are now being actively contemplated, were foreseen and urged by Major Holmes long before the community was ready to adopt them. The principles of regional government, conservation of green spaces, improvement of traffic flow, preservation of property values and direction of the community's growth were a matter of lifelong interest to him; and he never failed to see Greater Victoria as primarily a place to be developed for the good living of its inhabitants. A city should be an environment in which human needs are rated first.

Always impeccably groomed, invariably polite, unfailingly ready with a touch of humor or reminiscence and frequently bearing silently in his own private world the pain of old war wounds, Major Holmes through his many years of service to the community in official and unofficial capacities had well earned his final honor as a Freeman of the City. He made good citizenship a visible virtue; such men are not easily replaced.



'. . . May I help you . . .?'

Choice of Schools

In his write-up about the fate of St. Louis College your Arthur Mayse created the impression that there are only Roman Catholic private schools. In his opinion all non-Catholics would strongly oppose any government tax-support to separate schools. The facts are that more and more parents prefer to have their children educated in a school system they choose themselves.

Since 1951 the annual increase in the number of pupils in the public schools in this province is 8 per cent. The number of pupils in schools organized and operated by parents has grown since 1951 annually by 22 per cent!

Another impression one could get from Mayse's writing is that our government never would support a school whose curriculum is based on a certain religion. Does Mr. Mayse mean by this that the public school is not based on a certain religion? Does he mean to say that the public school does not have a basic philosophy? Any school deals with questions about life, origin, destiny, sense of life, etc. Isn't it clear that any answer to these questions would reveal one's attitude to religion?

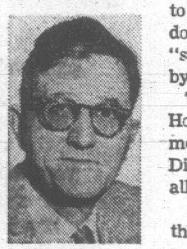
At present there are nearly 26,000 pupils in this province enrolled in so-called private schools. Definitely not more than half of them are Roman Catholic. Wouldn't it be about time that the government lives up to Act 26 of the UN Declaration of Human Rights and administers justice to those people who are doubly taxed?—S. Wolters, 1139 Burdett Ave., President of District 12 (Br. Col.) of the National Union of Christian Schools.

HAUNTED BY GHOSTS

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Mr. Stanfield Falls Into the Historic Quebec Trap

NO Canadian will understand the current election campaign until he realizes that it began in November, 1885. When the Conservative government of John A. Macdonald hanged Louis Riel at Regina it created the hideous dilemma of Robert Stanfield today. The contemporary Conservative leader and Macdonald's heir is haunted, like all his predecessors, by the prairie rebel's ghost. So is the nation.



Hutchison

The judicial murder of Riel turned a naturally conservative Quebec against the Conservative party, distorted the whole political process and set the stage for the vote of June 25, 1968. With the weird historical forces thus unloosed 83 years ago Mr. Stanfield is now struggling in a replay of many earlier elections.

Since he lacks any significant Conservative party of his own in Quebec, he has allied himself with Premier Daniel Johnson's Union Nationale, as Robert Borden allied himself, for similar reasons, with Henri Bourassa's nationalists in 1911 to destroy Wilfrid Laurier.

Borden was a great prime minister, a fine and decent man. The same can be said of Mr. Stanfield's character. Anyone who meets him, even briefly as I have done, must see at once that his integrity, patriotism and shrewd common sense are beyond question. Like Borden, a fellow Nova Scotian, he would make a good prime minister. But he has fallen into the old trap built, with Riel's gibbet, at Regina. And Pierre Elliott Trudeau is closing the trap.

Calculations Clear

The constitutional issue raised between the Liberal and Conservative leaders will soon get through to the public — Mr. Trudeau's doctrine that only the national government can make contracts with a foreign state and Mr. Stanfield's theory that Quebec and other provinces can somehow make them without disrupting the nation. This momentous debate will be over-simplified, misrepresented and twisted out of joint in the next month but the cold-blooded political calculations behind it are clear enough already.

Mr. Trudeau has deliberately chosen to risk his government, his career and Canada's future on the simple proposition that there is one, and only one, national government, or else there is no nation. He asks his own people in Quebec to accept this proposition and trust him to protect their rights as a separate nation in a cultural but not in a constitutional sense.

Only a French Canadian prime minister could possibly succeed in this gamble, as Laurier succeeded, under roughly parallel circumstances, in 1896. If there has to be a confrontation between the two racial communities we are lucky that a native son of Quebec has undertaken it. Any English-speaking leader who uttered Mr. Trudeau's recent warnings to Quebec would not be understood or accepted there. No one but a French Canadian can hope, for the present anyway, to build the missing bridge across the cultural gulf.

Good Intentions

With the best of intentions, Mr. Stanfield is desperately trying to build it in another fashion. By making Premier Johnson his real Quebec ally, by placing Marcel Faribault, Mr. Johnson's adviser and familiar, in the Conservative shadow cabinet, Mr. Stanfield may win a few extra Quebec seats. It will be a good thing for Canada if he does because a one-party, Liberal Quebec has bedevilled national politics far too long—with brief artificial interruptions, ever since Riel's execution.

But if Mr. Stanfield succeeds in even this minimal objective its price is likely to be high and may be ruinous. For he is asking his party to back him not only in a complete reversal of Conservative attitudes but in a constitutional doctrine repugnant to most English-speaking Canadians of all parties. He is asking it to embrace in general the opposite doctrines of Premier Johnson whose "special status" for Quebec is repudiated by Mr. Trudeau.

This is asking a lot, perhaps too much. How can Mr. Stanfield expect one-nation men like Davie Fulton, Duff Roblin, John Diefenbaker to swallow such a meal and all their principles?

I know that Mr. Stanfield does not see the issue in this light. He does not suggest that Canada can have ten different foreign policies, in certain areas of provincial jurisdiction, as advocated by Premier Johnson and Mr. Faribault. I am quite sure, too, that in the crunch Mr. Stanfield would never agree to dismember the nation, as his Liberal critics will allege. This man is as good a Canadian as Mr. Trudeau or anyone else but having sowed the wind in his alliance with Premier Johnson he will eventually reap the whirlwind one way or another.

Even if he wins the election by his alliance the whirlwind will follow when the alliance breaks down. So it must, being built on sand like Borden's alliance with Bourassa. The life of a Stanfield-Faribault government would be unhappy, violent and short. Such a government seems unlikely to emerge from the ballot boxes next month but meanwhile the irony of the election is stark and almost unbelievable. A French Canadian prime minister rejects the impossible demands of his own people, or many of them, but is confident they will vote for him because he is French Canadian. An English-speaking opposition leader claims to be the only true champion of Quebec. At this monstrous paradox the mind of the ordinary citizen must reel.

Yet the valid constitutional issue behind the irony and the usual gibberish of a partisan debate is so important that it has drowned the bread-and-butter issues of economics, precisely as the prime minister planned from the beginning.

Though Mr. Trudeau was a boy of six at the time, he knows that in 1926 Mackenzie King drowned his ugly customs scandal and won his decisive victory by raising a constitutional issue which Arthur Meighen considered irrelevant and absurd. The Canadian people may be confused sometimes but their mind immediately clarifies and hardens if the constitution of their single state is endangered. King foresaw that reaction and Meighen, failing to see it, was permanently destroyed. Today Mr. Stanfield seems determined to make the same fatal mistake.

SPECIAL REPORT FROM PARIS

By WILLIAM R. FRYE

What Tripped the Trigger on De Gaulle?

THE economic and political earthquake which rocked France this past week—some observers are calling it this country's "cultural revolution"—is a profound reflection on Gaullist rule. It has made a mockery of General de Gaulle's claim to have brought stability and contentment to France. In one sense, and only one, the convulsion was a credit to the lone French leader. It marked a dramatic break between him and the Communists who previously had tolerated, and sometimes co-operated, in his rule.

Frye

The serious phase of the strikes and demonstrations began as de Gaulle was in Romania hailing Eastern Europe's drift toward independence from the Soviet Union.

This was a daring thing to do—especially at a time when the Kremlin, extremely sensitive to currents of liberalism and self-assertion among its erstwhile satellites, had sent Premier Alexei Kosygin to Czechoslovakia to try and contain the movement at its source.

De Gaulle was fanning the very flames Kosygin was trying to dampen. Here was "vive le Quebec libre" all over again—with the vital interests of a great power at stake this time.

Not Surprising

Perhaps it should not have been surprising, therefore, that at this moment, Moscow-oriented labor unions in France took over from collegiate amateurs, transforming into national near-paralysis a series of disturbances which previously had been more seriously motivated, but not much more menacing, than a spring "riot" in Harvard Yard.

It would be an over-simplification, however, to see France's convulsion solely, or even primarily, as a Communist reprisal for de Gaulle's subversive boldness in Romania.

Tinder for the conflagration had been soaked in gasoline and piled high over a long period.

De Gaulle has ruled from the Olympian heights. He has been almost as aloof from the French people as he has been from Washington and London. Gaullism, as the London Observer recently put it, has been "fatherly, sanctimonious, preachifying, distant."

The result is that "King Charles" has lost much of his contact with the grievances, the anxieties and the needs of the French people.

Many normal channels for protest in a democracy have dried up here. Opposition newspapers have been too extreme to preserve an attentive audience in the Elysee. Radio and television have been strictly government-controlled.

Parliamentary opposition has often been dismissed with an imperious wave of the hand. All down the line, the political infrastructure has decayed from disuse. As a result, people with grievances have never felt confident de Gaulle understood them — and sometimes he did not. Strikes and street demonstrations became the only effective way to get his ear.

Had the government's listening apparatus been in better working order, it might have better realized the intensity of unrest:

● How farmers, imprisoned in archaic methods, wanted larger subsidies,

● How wages in nationalized enterprises including trains, buses, airlines, and communications, had fallen perilously behind the private sector,

● How unemployment had risen to more than 2.4 per cent in a country long used to full employment.

● How job insecurity plagued thousands, and young people could not get their first jobs,

● How some sectors of industry, uncompetitive with West Germany and Italy, were being crushed by the elimination of protective tariffs under the Common Market.

Money which might have been spent to help these pressures was going instead to prestige projects such as the nuclear force de frappe, intermediate-range guided missiles, a nuclear-powered submarine, space satellites, color TV.

Paradoxically, many in France are prosperous as never before. But this fact has intensified the grievances of the have-nots.

Hard to Analyze

Just what ignited the whole explosive mixture, if not the Romania trip, eludes rational analysis. Perhaps the Moscow Communists did not feel they could abdicate leadership to the student Trotskyites, Maoists, Guervara followers, and opportunists ("situationists," as one French observer dubbed them) who had been in the forefront.

Perhaps France was, indeed, sick of de Gaulle, and the Reds realized it.

Perhaps it was simpler. The responsible Paris newspaper Le Monde remarked the other day that France is "bored." There hasn't really been any major "action" since the generals' revolt in Algeria ten years ago.

Frenchmen have shown their impatience with routine by gobbling up novelties. Israel's avocados and bottled grapefruit juice are the latest rages. Grapefruit juice is, indeed, reaching pretty far—for France.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

For a close-in ramble go to Uplands Park. Here you are in the Gulf Islands Biotic Zone. This zone takes in the territory from Comox and the Islands south to Victoria, and abounds with the most varied of our native flora.

Here you can see some really fine specimens of the Garry Oak; also there are some fine clumps of Trembling Aspens with their sharply tipped, rounded, often heart-shaped leaves. Examine them and see how the leaf stems are flattened at right angles to the leaf blade — hence the constant motion of the leaf in the lightest breeze.

In some places one can find traces of former marshy or bog-like ground — before the drainage ditches were put in.

Here you can find the silverweed with its fringe-like leaflets. On the under side it is silvery, the flower generally has a single flower on a long stem coming up from the root stock.

There are still traces of rushes and sedges, while along the drainage ditch is the Brooklime with its dainty blue blossom and spreading stems. This plant is a relative of the gardener's forget-me-not.

There are clumps of Osier dogwood growing with some rather stunted hardback, which again indicates a marshy soil.

There are many beds of the blue Camas, and growing among them you may see the white of the "death Camas."

Along with them there are many of the Indian Consumption Plants. See how the stem swells at the main flower hub, and the vari-shaped leaves. The Indians used the crushed seed as a medicine for lung troubles.

Here and there you can find some maples that were introduced many years ago.

Look at the rock outcrops and see how they are weather-worn and deeply creviced. This is perhaps because of the nearness of the sea.

We are fortunate to have an unspoiled area of the "Mediterranean Zone" so close to the city.

Defining the Just Society

By GEORGE BAIN
The Globe and Mail

OTTAWA — Pierre Trudeau used the term, the Just Society, in the 1965 election in Mount Royal when he first became a member of Parliament, and he has used it since as a handy way of saying what a government under his leadership would aspire to bring about.

But, if, at one of his election meetings in the next five weeks, a member of the audience were to ask him what went into his conception of the Just Society, what would be his answer?

I asked the question during an on-the-move conversation; he was taking an evening's work to Harrington Lake as a change from the still hotel-like atmosphere of 24 Sussex Drive.

"You know," he said, "you try to define these things and you are really being asked to give your own feelings about the country and the people where you live. I could answer you in theoretical terms about the Just Society; I will do so, if you want, briefly.

"It means certain things in a legal sense — freeing an individual so he will be rid of his shackles and permitted to fulfil himself in society in the way which he judges best, without being bound up by standards of morality which have nothing to do with law and order but which have to do with prejudice and religious superstition. That is one aspect of it.

"Another aspect of it is economic, and, rather than develop that in terms of social legislation and welfare benefits, which I do not reject or condemn, I feel that at this time it is more important to develop in terms of groups of people, whether they be defined territorially . . . like the Atlantic provinces.

As a Whole

"The Just Society means not giving them a bit more money or a bit more welfare. The Just Society for them means permitting the province or the region as a whole to have a developing economy.

"In other words, not to try to help merely the individuals but to try to help the region itself to make all parts of Canada liveable in an acceptable sense . . . to put each region of Canada in a position where it can best help itself and the country as a whole. That is another aspect of the Just Society.

"Another one, I think, is in terms of our relations with other countries. It means making sure that we reflect a truer image of Canada. Canada being, once again, a country of modest proportions in world terms — not geographically, but economically and in terms of its population — we must make sure that our contribution to world order is not based merely on patterns which were set in another period, because it is not only important to feel just and to appear just, it is important, if we can be more effective, to be just.

"Just one example . . . If we are going to talk about the Just Society in terms of a bill of rights . . . and the bilingual aspect of it, to me this is very important.

Prime Minister Trudeau's espousal of the Just Society and a renewed emphasis on the importance of the individual Canadian has done much to erase the "socialist" label pinned on him by opponents. In the accompanying article Mr. Trudeau (shown above addressing a Kitchener Chamber of Commerce meeting) tells what the Just Society means to him.

"These are all facets of it, but they are defining platforms or programs, and, somehow, when I say that each man's philosophy is his own and he tries to leave its imprint on the society in which he lives, I suppose that is another way of saying, for me, that the Just Society is a society in which each individual Canadian is put in a position where he can develop himself to the utmost . . ."

I paraphrased something that had been said to me recently by Charles Taylor, Mr. Trudeau's 1965 opponent in Mount Royal—and old friend, Mr. Trudeau interpolated—which ran about as follows:

The fight against Duplessis was the great shaping influence in Mr. Trudeau's life. It caused him to think politically mainly in terms of the law and the freedom of the individual. His attitude toward nationalism, even, was a reaction against the evils which had been committed in its name. But he was not deeply committed to the economics of reform.

This, Mr. Trudeau said, was a cliche, "probably a friendly one, trying to explain in some way why I might be hidebound, but . . . really not true, just for the sake of the record." He went on:

"Duplessis to me is dead and gone, and I have never looked back. I do not look back in my own life, and I do not look back in other people's lives. I try to learn from history, and I try not to recommit the same mistakes that I have committed or other societies have committed. . . .

"But let me just say that my approach to nationalism —Quebec nationalism or Canadian nationalism, or any other—is that to me it is a right-wing approach because it tends to set the standards for state action, things such as ethnic or linguistic or even religious norms.

Smooth Away

"To me the modern state must smooth away such types of exclusive norms. You are born white or you are born black—all right. Or you embrace one religion or another. But the state should try to govern everybody well—the greatest good of the greatest number . . . If we have two nations in Canada, as my opponents say, it means we are going to have two states and the values of those states will be based on the idea of one or of the other nation, and this is what I reject."

As for economics not figuring largely in his idea of the Just Society, Mr. Trudeau cited his earlier answer, and said:

"One of the other reasons I suppose some people say I am a socialist, or are afraid I am a socialist, is because I feel very strongly about the importance of giving everybody a chance."

Mr. Trudeau recalled its being said that a "few new guys coming into an old party" (himself, Jean Marchand and Gerard Pelletier for obvious examples) wouldn't be able to move it.

Now, in such matters as that of the Constitution, they were accused of moving it too much. And, perhaps "when we begin . . . to introduce electoral reform, or perhaps to develop the CDC (Canada Development Coroporation) to expand the Canadian economy . . . people on the other side will be saying . . . that we are too much left-wing. . . .

"Our opponents . . . either accuse us because we do not have enough influence on the party and therefore we have betrayed our ideals, or else we have too much influence . . . and are not going in the right direction . . . I feel we have done a hell of a lot in two or three years, those who entered at the same time as myself. You know, dozens of us . . . I certainly do not feel disappointed at all."

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Reviewed by Peter Murray, Times Wire News Editor

President Charles de Gaulle's vision of French destiny was badly shattered this week.

France tottered on the edge of anarchy as a massive wave of labor strikes and student unrest virtually paralyzed the nation.

Garbage piled up in the streets of Paris, trains and planes did not move, and most of the country's banks and large industries ground to a halt. More than eight million workers were on strike and millions more were made idle by the walkouts.

De Gaulle rushed back a day early from a Romanian visit after the unrest, which appeared to have died down last week, suddenly flared again at the weekend in much more serous proportions.

The original disturbances involved Sorbonne university students who staged protest demonstrations against backward educational policies. After a bloody clash with police on Paris boulevards the labor unions took up the cry against the government and its repressive tactics with the students.

●

Then a grassroots strike movement began among the workers, who decided the time was ripe to press their demands for higher wages and better working conditions. Unemployment has been rising steadily in France and the unions are insisting on better job security, particularly in some of the big state-run transportation and communication industries.

The students continued to support the workers, although the two sides have little in common in their goals.

Student marchers carried the red flag of revolution and the black anarchists' flag.

Premier Georges Pompidou, unable to cope with the disturbances, claimed the revolt was led by Communists "trying to exploit the labor crisis for their political benefit."

Pompidou was roundly jeered in the national assembly when he made the charge. Nevertheless, when a showdown vote came on a censure motion that would have toppled his government, Pompidou emerged the victor with a 10-vote margin in the 486-member assembly.

Defeat in the vote would not have forced de Gaulle to step down, but would have compelled him to find another premier able to lead the Gaullist majority party, not an easy task in the present precarious political situation.

De Gaulle went on television at week's end to appeal for an end to the disorders. He proposed a number of social reforms which would give the people a greater voice in the economic affairs of the country.

De Gaulle said the proposals would be placed in a nationwide referendum next month and indicated he would step down if they are not approved.

●

His domestic troubles came at an embarrassing time for de Gaulle who had just scored an international coup by playing host to the preliminary Vietnam peace negotiations.

As expected, the North Vietnamese and U.S. envoys made no progress this week in a single session devoted to propaganda exchanges.

There was a brief flurry of speculation that the two sides might call in an outside mediator, possibly de Gaulle, to help break the deadlock. This was quickly scotched however by the U.S. spokesman, Averell Harriman.

Both Hanoi and Washington raised the possibility after Wednesday's meeting that the negotiations may well end in failure, but it appeared each was just trying to apply pressure to the other.

Meanwhile, the U.S. reported that its losses last week were the second highest of the war: 549 killed and 2,282 wounded.

●

Militant U.S. Negro leader H. Rap Brown was given the maximum sentence of five years imprisonment when convicted in New Orleans of carrying a firearm across a state line.

A 50-man guerrilla attack on Haiti was crushed by the forces of President Duvalier, who blamed exile groups in the U.S. for trying to foment a revolt in the poverty-stricken Caribbean country.

Is Marchand Slated to Be 'Mr. Canadian Economy'?

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA — One of the surprises that Prime Minister Trudeau is saving until after the election is the appointment of Jean Marchand as minister of a new department of economic development.

Mr. Trudeau said May 10 that studies were under way to determine the desirability of one ministry for various economic development programs now spread through several departments of governments.

On May 15 a source privy to top level consideration of this proposal reported that Mr. Trudeau has firmly committed himself to appoint Mr. Marchand to the new portfolio if they win the election.

This suggests that the study of May 10 had proceeded to a hard decision five days later, or that the reference to studies was to camouflage and soften the announcement of a decision already taken. If the latter, the reason probably is that Mr. Trudeau wished to test reaction to the idea before publicly committing himself.

★ ★ ★

Mr. Marchand is now minister of manpower and immigration, and also temporarily secretary of state. It was he more than anyone else who prevailed upon Mr. Trudeau to try for the Liberal leadership. No minister is closer to Mr. Trudeau. He is Mr. Trudeau's chief lieutenant for Quebec, and by default at the moment, for all of Canada — Paul Hellyer as "acting prime minister" notwithstanding.

This points towards a very important role for Mr. Marchand in a new Trudeau administration that would greatly exceed more responsibility for programs like ARDA and area development.

He brings to the job the practical approach of a man whose life, up until 1965, has been spent in the hurlyburly of the Quebec labor movement — with the strengths this connotes, and the weaknesses. He is an extraordinary person, with ability, personal charm and fighting spirit, but all in all a rather unusual choice to head the new department.

A more logical choice would be Forestry Minister Maurice Sauve, a politician with an impressive background in economics, who up to now has been responsible for the application of expanded farm rehabilitation and agricultural development programs.

However, Mr. Sauve is not really due for a promotion. He blotted his copybook in the leadership campaign by backing Paul Martin in spite of earnest last minute appeals by Gerard Pelletier, one of Mr. Trudeau's closest colleagues.

★ ★ ★

Alternatively, an independent observer can hardly overlook the obvious qualifications of Eric Kierans for the job, although Mr. Trudeau has no difficulty in overlooking Mr. Kierans.

Another who merits consideration for the post is British Columbia's Jack Davis, an economics and resources oriented engineer who is minister without portfolio in the Trudeau cabinet. From what Mr. Trudeau has revealed of his thinking on economic development, the new ministry will be concerned mainly with the prime minister's objective to "solve the problem of economic disparity" by "helping the regions to discover their own natural areas of growth."

The prime minister ranks this problem right up with the problem of two languages and cultures as the most serious facing the country. By assigning it to Mr. Marchand, his right hand man, he will invest it with unquestionable top priority.

Russian Theorists In Dither

By ANATOLE SHUB

MOSCOW — President Johnson's retirement, the left-wing student disorders in the West, and the growth of nationalism and "revisionism" in the Communist world are among the developments which puzzle or embarass theoreticians and progagandists here.

Soviet correspondents in Washington instantly took the line that President Johnson was forced to decline renomination by anti-Vietnam agitation. Nevertheless, editorial writers and commentators have chosen not to probe the matter too deeply.

The president's voluntary renunciation of power still mystifies most people here—such things are just not done in this part of the world. Many Soviet citizens remain sincerely convinced that "it is all a trick" and Johnson will yet run again.

Soviet propagandists were also caught off base when Hanoi accepted Washington terms for negotiations which they had just denounced—but this was simply the result of the well-concealed fact that Hanoi rarely consults the Soviet Union before making its decisions.

The ideologists here are breathing somewhat easier now that left-wing student troubles in France have given way to a familiar general strike led by the Communist party and trade unions. The latest developments are of a kind any trained Leninist could explain in his sleep. However, Moscow was baffled and disapproving when Sorbonne students, armed with theories from Mao Tse-tung and Herbert Marcuse, began their "cultural revolution."

Local ideologists were also quite leary of West Germany's "Red Rudi" Dutschke, and seemed on the verge of denouncing him, when a demented neo-Nazi shot the young leftist.

Seem Strange

Dutschke's theories, blending Marcuse, Mao and old-fashioned anarchism, and condemning Soviet-style Communism as strongly as the "bourgeois" west, were regarded strangely by analysts here who think the West German "working class" should concentrate on demanding legal status for the banned, sclerotic Communist party and recognition for East Germany.

Even the neo-Nazi National Democratic Party causes propagandists here a bit of trouble. While the NDP provides a convenient bogey, local writers prefer to call it "neo-fascist" because, ever since Stalin's time, central committee stylists have tried to avoid the words National Socialist or their abbreviation, Nazi.

The growth of nationalism and "revisionism" from Peking to Prague is perhaps the most painful theme of all.

Soviet propagandists are against both, of course, but have yet to provide Marxist explanations of why and how, for example, China has been reverting to imperial form and Czechoslovakia is hailing its Masaryk traditions after 20 years of the "dictatorship of the proletariat."

With Yugoslavia and Romania both in a kind of limbo status these days, Soviet theoreticians no longer even provide a total number for the countries officially considered "socialist."

Czechoslovak "revisionism." which consists of leaning heavily on the original Marx and the more liberal passages from Lenin, rather than on warmed-over Stalin and Lenin's more extreme utterances, has been only feebly countered here.

The only thing that matters, said Soviet critics, is the supreme power of the Communist party—a line of argument easily countered by Marx's paeans of praise for the full freedom and nonpartisan spontaneity of the Paris commune.

Quebec Scholars View Foreign Affairs Issue

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

(Mr. Fisher is a former NDP MP who has returned to politics and is again seeking election as an NDP member. He is a lecturer in Canadian government at Carleton University. Mr. Crowe is associate professor of history at Atkinson College.)

Stephen Clarkson may not have gotten the Liberal nomination in Davonport, but he did succeed in getting off the press a book of excellent articles on our international relations, An Independent Policy For Canada.

Fisher

Three of the essays in this latest offering of the University League for Social Reform bear directly upon the issue which Mr. Trudeau is trying to make the focus of the current election — Quebec and international affairs.

One is by Paul Painchaud, professor of political science at Laval. The second is by Louis Sabourin, director of the Centre for International Cooperation at the University of Ottawa. The third is a reply to some of the matters raised by Prof. Painchaud, written by Gilles LaLande, professor of international relations at the University of Montreal.

The three scholars are in disagreement on a number of points in these brief statements, and are in disagreement on other subjects not covered by the book. But they are in substantial agreement that there is a role to be played, of some kind, at some level, by the province of Quebec in external affairs, and that attempts to stop this can have very serious repercussions in Ottawa-Quebec relations. All three are moderate, reasonable presentations.

Crowe

Prof. Sabourin writes: "There is also no doubt that a lot is at stake in this dispute: The image of Canada on the world scene and the very existence of a strong French Canadian society in North America.

"It is then unfortunate that the debate has been launched so badly. Quebec has stated its goals on political rostrums but has not yet presented to Ottawa any specific plan on how the necessary mechanisms for co-ordinating these international activities would function.

"On the other side, Ottawa's refusal to recognize officially Quebec's unusual situation in the field of international relations will eventually lead to a real confrontation of power. Ottawa may have every legal right to 'short circuit' Quebec's international programs but it would be a grave political mistake to try to do so.

"Unless there is a change of moods in the near future, it is easy to foresee that many people in Quebec will react with impatience, will tend to forget the real issue . . ."

Prof. Sabourin says that what is involved is a test case in mutual trust. He says Quebec must clearly begin with the fact that Ottawa speaks for all Canadians on the world scene, and it must agree not to undertake any international activity which could be contradictory to Canada's foreign policy or which would reduce Ottawa's bargaining power in international negotiations.

★ ★ ★

On the other hand, Ottawa, and also English-speaking Canadians generally, must recognize how vital it is for Quebec as the principal agency controlled by French Canadians to take advantage of all international resources available to it to advance its cultural heritage. This latter term is always used to embrace technological and related activities taking place in the French language.

Prof. LaLande is mainly concerned with disputing a point in the Painchaud piece, that biculturalism, centred upon Ottawa, in Canada's external affairs does not make much sense, and in any case is probably impossible. Rebutting Painchaud he says that biculturalism involves a more recognizable and authentically French Canadian voice in the process of defining a foreign policy for the Canadian nation. More French Canadians must be involved in the department of external affairs.

★ ★ ★

Then Prof. LaLande says: "Above all, biculturalism demands the recognition and acceptance that is long overdue of the vital need for Quebec to draw much closer to France and to the French-speaking community of nations."

The nub of the Painchaud essay is that "nothing indicates that fundamental disagreements exist between Quebec and the rest of the country on the objectives and methods of our diplomacy." Quebecers should participate in the "formation of the foreign policy of the country without trying to define special interests." It should not be a foreign policy with cultural departments, at least as criteria for determining the policy.

At the same time he asks: "Why . . . could the main responsibility for cultural relations with the French-speaking world not be given to the Quebec government?"

And he adds: "Under such an arrangement, Ottawa would remain free to carry out a much more supple foreign policy, one that would be free of these artificial cultural considerations and free, too, of the political-cultural imbroglio."

★ ★ ★

The conclusion to the Sabourin essay is a plea to Canadians to avoid exactly what Mr. Trudeau is doing: creating an atmosphere in which it is not possible to reach an understanding at the negotiating table. He has words of warning for both sides.

"If Quebec demands too much in the field of international affairs, this cannot but lead to the establishment of a dual image of the country on the world scene which is an inevitable step toward breaking up Canada.

"On the other hand, if English-speaking Canadians do not recognize that Quebec has every right to develop international activities which will favor the self-fulfilment of French-Canadian society, this will give ample proof that they do not wish to accept French-Canadians as equal partners in Canada. This also may lead to separatism."

★ ★ ★

These are three French-Canadian academics, associated with three different universities, with three quite different sets of ideas in the narrow field of international affairs and federalism, and three very different evaluations as to the long-term prospects of Canada.

But all three agree that Quebec has a role in international affairs. Of course they could be wrong, and Mr. Trudeau could be right. But given this restraint and obvious sincerity, and their good will, can anyone really doubt that this matter is one which has to be worked out in the unemotional give-and-take of a conference room, and in long private discussions, and not in the hectic sloganeering of an election?

Or worse, of two elections, as Mr. Trudeau has all but guaranteed that there will be a Quebec provincial election to offset the results of June 25 if it is a Liberal victory.

Pampered Pets Respond Beautifully

By JACK BEASTALL

In three weeks the rose fanciers of Victoria will be placing their best blooms on show tables and gardeners will flock to halls, both large and small, to feast their eyes on new varieties and the best of the old.

Jack

Roses are to be found in most gardens although comparatively few produce blooms of show standard. Nostalgia prompts us to put in a few bushes or climbers, and these we leave more or less to their own devices.

Not so with roses grown for exhibition. These plants, like prize animals, are pampered and petted, fed and groomed on a schedule that covers most of the year.

●

Here is a typical growing program as outlined by a local prizewinner for members of the Victoria Horticultural Society.

Work starts in January or February, depending on weather at that time, when rose beds are given a dressing of bonemeal at the rate of four pounds for every 100 square feet.

This is a slow acting organic fertilizer that will not become available to the plants until some time in May when soil temperature rises and soil bacteria become active to convert the particles of bone into chemicals the plants can absorb.

During the latter part of March rose bushes are pruned in the Victoria area, and at that time receive a feeding of a faster acting fertilizer, such as a 6-8-6 or 13-16-10.

●

One cupful of 6-8-6, or one-half cup of the double strength 13-16-10, is spread around each plant to cover an area equal to the spread of the branches.

Although the soil may be quite damp at that time, it is essential for water to be applied to dissolve the fertilizer and carry it down to the roots of the plants.

This watering is often omitted by home gardeners. If not done, the fertilizer salts remain near the surface, out of reach of feeding roots, and the plants continue to starve in midst of plenty.

The end of May to beginning of June is time for another meal. Again 6-8-6 or 14-16-10 is used at the same rate and the beds thoroughly soaked with water.

About this time of year spraying with insecticides and fungicides is necessary in order to have undamaged foliage that will evoke admiration from the judges.

Since the water in which spray concentrates are dissolved tends to collect in droplets on the shiny surface of a rose leaf instead of making a smooth covering, a "sticker" or "spreader" is added.

●

Rose fanciers were quick to discover that liquid whale, alginure, rapid-gro, and fish fertilizers, will act as spreaders and the plants will absorb the food through the leaves.

In this way, the plants receive a supplemental feeding each time a spray is applied, and early in July another foliar feed is in order whether or not a spray is necessary for diseases or pests.

While this program has been in operation, watering of the rose beds has been done once, preferrably twice, a week since the end of April.

Watering is always done by laying an open end hose at the base of each plant. This keeps water off foliage and prevents spread of fungus diseases.

Fungus spores are carried from leaf to leaf in drops of water, and it is useless to spend money and time on spray controls and then spread the diseases by watering overhead.

Each watering has picked up dissolved fertilizer salts and carried them down within reach of feeding roots. By the end of July there will be little free fertilizer left in the soil, which is ideal.

No more fertilizer (or foliar feeding) is applied after early July, and watering of the beds ceases in August.

This sounds drastic to the home gardener, but it is most important that the bushes be given a chance to ripen, or mature, the growths that have been made through spring and early summer, otherwise severe winter damage can result.

●

By September the plants will look rather miserable, but their work for the year is finished. In the interest of the plants' health, the gardener must turn to other late summer plants for visions of beauty.

The next step in producing good exhibition roses is a modern practice which comes as a complete shock to home gardeners. It is the removal of all leaves from rose bushes in late September or early October.

In our mild coastal climate the rose tends to go on growing all winter, expending energy unnecessarily and foregoing the essential rest period needed by all plants that bloom profusely during the regular growing season.

By pulling off the leaves we stop the manufacture of foods and force the plants into a short rest period. It is only a temporary rest, because new growths will be evident by Christmas.

In December the long canes on the more vigorous varieties are pruned back to a length of near 30 inches above soil level before winter gales arrive.

This prevents wind from rocking the bushes and breaking fine roots. Quite often a poor start in spring is due to roots broken in a December gale.

●

The coastal climate is also responsible for Rose Rust, Black Spot, and Mildew, greenfly (aphids), bud worm, and thrips.

These troubles make spraying a necessity, but the incidence of disease can be reduced by sanitary practices such as keeping buds clean of diseased and insect-carrying foliage, and seeing that secateurs and gloves are frequently disinfected to prevent carrying disease spores from one plant to another.

Since spraying cannot be avoided when exhibition roses are grown, the first investment of a wise rose grower is a $10 agricultural mask which will protect his health while he protects the health of his roses.

The home gardener can produce a satisfactory garden display of roses with less care and attention than an exhibitor can produce a prize winning rose, but this schedule dispels the idea that roses can be left to grow without attention.

It also gives the gardener something to think about when he enters an exhibition hall and is greeted by thousands of near perfect blooms.

Twelve months' work to produce one flower—"Best rose in the Show!"

To the rose fancier it is worth every minute.

EXPOSING a room to the outdoors is pleasant on sunny days and light control for hot or cold days makes the room more enjoyable.

Invite the Outdoors In

By PAULINE GRAVES

Fresh flowers, a pot of ivy, or any growing plant, softens your home, makes it look lived-in and loved.

If you can relate your home to the outdoors in some way, you have enlarged it beyond the confines of the four walls.

Shown above is an apartment that doesn't look like an apartment at all. Sliding doors open on to a balcony in the same way that a room opens on to a patio. And the over-all feeling is great. Shrubs and flowers grow in pots, and even a vine in a container softens the exterior walls. All the glass, of course, eliminates the wall and makes the room seem larger.

CLIMATE CONTROL

There are times, however, when the outdoors isn't all that inviting, either on a sullen, grey day or blazing sun.

Draperies offer the obvious climate control, but these folding panels with movable louvres provide degrees of control.

Back against the wall on each side, the panels expose the room to the balcony. But pulled across, with louvres closed, the panels black out the outdoors.

Manipulate the louvres and arrange the panels and you can have the amount of the outdoors you wish. Extra wide, four inches, the louvres are in good scale with the room.

The panels, too, are easily manoeuvrable, installed in a ceiling track, their weight supported by casters on the floor. The two outside panels are fastened to the wall, and the front edges of the two centre panels and of every alternate panel travel in the ceiling track.

Stanfield Collects Kisses

Special to the Times

KELOWNA—The "kissing campaign" came to interior British Columbia on Friday—but for a change it was Conservative leader Robert Stanfield receiving the kisses.

When the Tory leader, former premier of Nova Scotia, hit Quesnel, in his first B.C. visit since becoming leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons, he was bussed and rocked by a mob of fans almost as if he were political foe Pierre Trudeau.

The only difference was the Quesnel kissers and autograph seekers were public school age rather than teen-agers and teeny-boppers—and they had been given time off from classes if they attended the Stanfield meeting with their parents.

At Kamloops, however, where the kids hadn't been given the day off, a respectable crowd still turned out, and, like High River, Alta., on Thursday, a large group of Indians were present.

In this case, however, in the home town of former justice minister Davie Fulton, the Indian children were members of a band and were in snappy red and white uniforms rather than native dress.

It was that kind of day for Mr. Stanfield—full of anomalies.

It was better than Manitoba and Saskatchewan, yet not really as personally or politically satisfying as the polished, near-perfect performance in Calgary, Thursday night.

NEW STYLE

But it was a new kind of Tory reception in the Interior, not like some John Diefenbaker meetings in the area in the years past.

Mr. Stanfield stumped for himself in all of the B.C. communities but went out of his way to support Mr. Fulton, incumbent Dave Pugh in Kelowna and the whole party in Quesnel.

The youngsters at Quesnel clutched at Mr. Stanfield, mobbing him, and scrambling for a signature.

At Kamloops again, though, where the Stanfield chartered DC7 stopped for only 25 minutes, the scene was comparatively subdued.

The Bluenoser—as Tory candidate Jack Horner dubbed Mr. Stanfield in High River—reviewed the Indian band, marching down the ranks of kids as if they were a NATO squadron.

Approximately 50 adults were also at the Kamloops airport, and applauded both the national leader and his home-town contender at the Tory leadership convention, Davie Fulton.

LOUD OVATION

When Mr. Fulton introduced Mr. Stanfield at the Quesnel meeting, the leader received a standing ovation.

In Kelowna, where Mr. Stanfield and the travelling press took over Herb et al Capozzi's Capri hotel, the Opposition leader gave his major address of the day.

He made the charge to the packed hall that inflation is eroding the strength and stunting the growth of the Canadian economy.

Mr. Stanfield said a new economic coalition is emerging in the world today and lies in the Pacific area.

He said the coalition would involve Japan, China, Eastern Russia and Western United States.

"I want Canada to be a partner in this coalition," he said.

"And I know British Columbia will take a leading part in making this partnership come about."

He said that great investment and resources-based complexes would be necessary, but added that a Conservative government would be devoted to this aim.

Mr. Stanfield combined an attack on the Liberal government with a Tory message to the fruit growers of the Kelowna area.

He said, "I know how important the fruit industry is to the economy of this area.

"The problems of this industry are among the many matters that were tossed aside when Prime Minister Trudeau decided to send Parliament packing after one weekend (as prime minister).

"What have the Liberals done?

"Nothing," Mr. Stanfield said.

IMPORT QUOTAS

He suggested that a Conservative administration would establish import quotas with foreign countries for the food and fruit industry.

He said the Kennedy round negotiations would also be ratified by a Tory government without delay.

Finally, he said, the entire Canadian agricultural tariff structure would be carefully reviewed.

Youth Remanded For Report

An 18-year-old Ladysmith youth Friday pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance.

Jonah Mitchell was remanded to May 30 for pre-sentence report.

Court was told Mitchell was found drunk in Colwood Thursday and had threatened his mother with a knife.

NDP to Double House Seats, Douglas Says

VANCOUVER (CP) — T. C. Douglas, national New Democratic Party leader, predicts his party will double the number of members it had in the last Parliament.

Pressed for a forecast when he arrived here Friday after a Northern Ontario visit, Mr. Douglas said he'd be disappointed if his party doesn't double the 22 seats it had in the last House.

He was critical of a decision by British Columbia Liberal Leader Ray Perrault to contest the Burnaby-Seymour constituency where Mr. Douglas is running.

"I'm running for the Commons and he's running for the Senate," said Mr. Douglas in reference to reports that Mr. Perrault is opposing Mr. Douglas so as to keep him off the campaign trail.

The NDP chieftain said a Senate seat was the reward of party bagmen, tired provincial leaders and defeated Liberal candidates.

NAMES NDP AREAS

Asked to name points in Eastern Canada where NDP is strong, Mr. Douglas said some industrial areas in the Atlantic provinces, mining areas of Northern Quebec, industrial areas of southern and western Ontario and some districts of Montreal.

Criticizing Prime Minister Trudeau's approach to politics, Mr. Douglas said: "Mr. Trudeau may have done a lot of kissing, but I can't find any single thing Mr. Trudeau has said about policies or programs to deal with the economic crisis this country has been facing in the last 18 months."

He said he thinks Mr. Trudeau has satisfied Canada's need for a Kennedy.

"He may be a substitute for Bobby Kennedy but he's certainly not as articulate."

Mr. Douglas said Conservative Leader Stanfield's policies could only lead to higher unemployment and interest rates.

The NDP leader returns to the campaign trail Monday with a bus tour of southern Ontario.

Broadcast Rules Laid Down

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Radio-Television Commission said Friday broadcasting personalities who become candidates in the June 25 federal election must cease broadcasting unless their opponents obtain similar opportunities.

Its brief announcement read:

"Any broadcasting personality who is a candidate for election and continues his broadcasting during the campaign is considered by the commission to be receiving an inequitable advantage unless the broadcasting outlets over which such a candidate appears agree to provide similar opportunities for his opponents.

"If similar facilities are not provided the commission feels that such a candidate receives publicity that is not available to those opponents and therefore requires that these candidates discontinue their broadcasting activities until after the election."

Philips Givens, former mayor of Toronto who is a Liberal candidate in York West, reported Thursday that the CRTC had ordered him to stop his activities on radio station CHUM.

Trudeau Campaign All Sun and Flowers

OTTAWA (CP) — Pierre Elliott Trudeau is largely an open-air campaigner who tries to zero in on the people with the blue sky and sunshine as a backdrop.

His agents promote crowds at shopping centres in major urban centres, at main street intersections in smaller twons. The prime minister drives up in a motor cavalcade for a brief mob-scene and delivers a few words.

Set-piece indoor speeches at more formal functions have been kept to a minimum in the four days he has been on the road so far.

If there's to be switch later, it's a well-kept secret. The Liberal leader's staff is close-mouthed about campaign plans beyond the few days immediately ahead.

The few times he's been called upon to deliver formal speeches were not his most successful ventures. His best speaking format is off-the-cuff stuff including question-and-answer sessions.

The breezy Trudeau method has produced little in the way of policy guidelines. The guessing is that the "reform platform" which he has been working on will be saved for later in the campaign.

From past practice and hints of the future, the Trudeau plan seems to retain Ottawa as the operating headquarters. The candidate flips out to a particular region for a day or a few days and then returns to the capital.

Because of his open-door approach, his crowds are mixed bags of the curious, awe-struck children, teeny-boppers, Liberals, supporters of other parties and so on.

One observer's conclusion is that one aim is to present the candidate in a modern, informal context.

Presumably, the shirt-sleeve situations would also fit his image as a casual swinger.

Fined for Assault

A man was fined $100 Friday for hitting a woman on the head May 15.

Gerald Clanton, 550 Johnson, was charged with common assault. The wound required three stitches.

Court was told he had a previous record for vagrancy.

Introducing the Volkswagen automatic stick shift.

Why it's automatic.

First of all, it doesn't have a clutch pedal.

Second of all, even though it still has a shift lever, you don't get to shift it very much.

When you want to go somewhere you just move the stick shift forward. Then leave it there. You can drive all over town (even in stop and go traffic) with the shift in that one position and never have to touch it again.

Out on the highway you shift into cruising gear, which is like an overdrive, to save on gas.

And that's about it.

Except there's a low for steep hills, snow or mud. And of course, a reverse for going backwards.

But all in all, you don't get to touch the shift very much when you drive the VW automatic stick shift.

It drives you.

Why it's a stick shift.

It's a stick shift because it still has a stick you can shift.

So that means if you're the kind of person who likes to shift for himself, you can.

The Volkswagen automatic stick shift gives you a choice: you can drive it the lazy way (see left) or, whenever the old sports car bug hits you, you can start out in low and take it through the gears 1, 2, 3, just like a regular stick shift. (And get some pretty lively acceleration doing it.)

The Volkswagen automatic stick shift is available as optional equipment on the Bug and Karmann Ghia.

Why not take it for a test drive?
You've got nothing to lose, except a clutch.

Doctor Diagnosed In Lengthy Novel

TESTIMONY OF TWO MEN, by Taylor Caldwell. Doubleday. $7.95.

Reviewed by Grant McOrmond

This is the 26th novel written by Taylor Caldwell in 30 years and according to the statement on the dust cover it is "a major novel."

The mere fact that the book is more than 600 pages long is perhaps support for this claim. But the fact that it is already on some U.S. best-seller lists suggests that many American readers are willing to accept the assertion as reality.

The setting for this story is the Pennsylvania town of Hambledon, just after the turn of the century. It depicts the activities of a young surgeon, Jonathan Ferrier, as he battles against the incompetence and old-fashioned techniques of his fellow doctors.

But Dr. Ferrier has personal, as well as professional, battles to fight in this wealthy community where seemingly everyone except the servants is living off inherited wealth. For Ferrier was charged with having performed an abortion on his own wife, causing her death.

Although he was acquitted by the courts, he was condemned by his fellow townsmen. Much of Testimony is taken up with still further enmeshing the hero in the web of suspicion and distrust arising from his trial, and then in untangling the web.

There is, then, a suspense-filled, complicated plot running through the novel. Suspended from this line are a number of case histories of Dr. Ferrier's patients.

Never, apparently, did he encounter in his practice anything so ordinary as a common cold or tonsilitis. His patients all suffer from the nastier forms of mental ailments, heart disease, cancer or leprosy.

Each case is diagnosed with uncanny precision, and almost every time the patient or his family holds the doctor responsible for the disease rather than for the diagnosis.

Wall of Mistrust

The community seems actively engaged in building an ever-thickening wall of mistrust around the figure of this doctor.

Taylor Caldwell has added other intriguing touches. There is the gothic note contributed by the forbidding castle in the middle of the river.

Within dwells the inarticulate, glowering but beautiful Jenny and her youthful step-father, Harald Ferrier, brother of Jonathan. There are also lengthy discussions of philosophical, religious, moral and medical questions, with a generous sprinkling of debate concerning the political issues of the McKinley-Roosevelt era, handled with the profundity of late-century hindsight.

In these discussions are debated the problems arising from the manifest destiny of the United States as the inheritor of the power and responsibilities of Europe.

'Infuriating'

Perhaps the word that comes first to mind when describing Testimony is "infuriating." Taylor Caldwell can tell a good, intricate story; she can create characters that live; she can manage suspense.

But these qualities are often obscured, if not negated, by her long-windedness. Not only does she use more words than necessary to convey her ideas but she constantly repeats herself and is often explicit where she could and should be implicit. She leaves too little up to the intelligence and imagination of her readers.

Perhaps the leisurely pace of life in a small American town at the turn of the century so captivated her that it infiltrated her work, creating the slow movement of the novel.

Many readers, however, may feel that if she had deleted half the words and introduced a little more variety into her characters, Testimony would have been half as long and twice as good.

Has Success Spoiled American Jews?

HERMAN HAD TWO DAUGHTERS by Zelda Popkin. McClelland and Stewart, $8.50.

This novel depicts the changing pattern of Jewish life in America in the 20th century.

Since the family is at the centre of this pattern Zelda Popkin chooses the family of Herman Weiss on which to register the changes she perceives. Herman, his wife Ida and his two daughters, Jessie and Celia make their home in Grady's Mills, an undistinguished American city.

From the ghettos of Europe, with their programs and poverty, came Herman Weiss and thousands like him. In communities such as Grady's Mills they found themselves in less well defined, but none the less real ghettos.

Here they huddled together, the Jews from many lands, united by their poverty, their race and religion; they dwelt in poor homes in shabby areas, but they were strengthened by their mutual love, by their dreams of education and wealth and the security they would bring.

Mrs. Popkin shows the different course followed by Weiss's daughters. Jessie, the brilliant one, uses her education to free herself from the confinement of Judaism. She becomes a successful playwright in New York. Her sister Celia contracts an unlikely and unpromising marriage to Joey Slomowitz. They later change their names to Sloan and become the wealthy Centre of Jewish society in New York.

Changing Character of Jew

The story of the two Weiss girls is told by Sam Rosenbaum, a newspaperman and their lifelong friend and confidant. They call on him for advice and help; they use him without apology or thanks.

From the intermittent encounters between Sam and these two women, continuing through a lifetime, the reader can perceive the changing character of the American Jew and particularly the changes taking place in the social life of the group.

They start as aliens in a land that needs the help of every person it can entice to its shores if it is to exploit the resources it possesses. The second generation are driven by ambition and aided by the sacrifices of the first to secure the education or position that will enable each one to take advantage of the opportunities presented.

In the face of such resolution and success it is little wonder that during the years of Hitler's rise to power the American Jews were often made the victims of overt or hidden anti-semitism.

From the hostility and opposition they faced during this period the Jews seemed to derive new strength and resolution. Jessie Weiss wrote her play, The Arsonists, on the theme of the malicious persecution of her aged father by the citizens of Grady's Mills. Celia's husband amassed a huge fortune, for his scrap metal business expanded rapidly in preparation for war.

Failures Amid Riches

With their new wealth and new security, the Jewish community began to engage in vast fund-raising schemes to enrich their own community life, but more important, to assist in the creation of a Jewish state in Palestine. Sam Rosenbaum actively participates in the Zionist movement, subsequently becoming one of the chief fund raisers.

But in contrast to the economic and political success the Jewish community is able to achieve, Mrs. Popkin points out with skill and subtlety the personal failures that are the price that must be paid. Jessie Weiss, in the comfort and security of her second marriage writes no more plays.

Celia, pampered by her husband's wealth, loses touch with her young daughter. Her husband's corruption and her own insensitivity lead directly to the tragedy enacted on the lonely shores of Israel's Mediterranean coast.

Zelda Popkin seems to be suggesting that the American Jews, by virtue of the success with which they have gained the things they have striven for, have destroyed the very qualities of family loyalty and virtue, of religious faith and coherence that enabled them to achieve their goals.

The repudiation, by the wealthy country club set, of Sam Rosenbaum's bride, newly arrived in their midst from Hitler's concentration camps, with the marks of her imprisonment tattoed on her arm for all to see, is dramatic evidence that the new generation of Jew has turned his face from the unpleasant affirmation of past and continuing persecution.

Herman Had Two Daughters is interesting and easy to read. Mrs. Popkin adapts her style to the journalistic background of her narrator. She scrupulously avoids sentimentality, and there are touches of both humor and irony in her work.

She is at her best when immersing the reader in the very current of Jewish life. She has produced a novel that is informative without being didactic—G.G.M.

Hearts of Gold In Buccaneers

THE BOLD, BAD BUCCANEERS, by Hugh McClelland. Macmillan of Canada, $2.95.

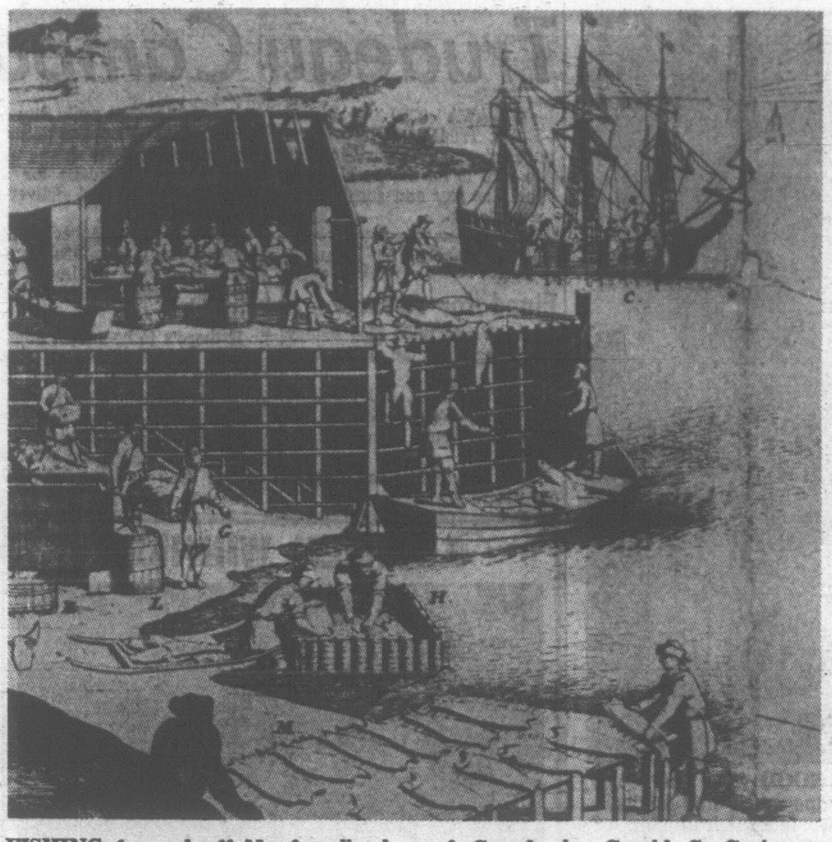
In this lively new children's book, bold bad buccaneers terrorize travellers on the high seas in the traditional way of pirates until the day a ship gives in to them without a struggle.

It is chock-full of children, refugees from an over-populated country.

The pirates have hearts of gold; they take the children back to their Tropical Island and a new Never-Never Land is formed.

Toronto cartoonist Hugh McLelland has created suitably bold red, black and white illustrations for his story; the faces of the pirates, whether in their fierce or angry moods, are a special delight.

ANIMAL FANTASIES of Edward Lear brought new interest and entertainment to late Victorian children's books. Picture is from David Bland's History of Book Illustration, published by Faber and Faber.



FISHING for cod off Newfoundland began Europe's economic connection with Canada. Early picture is among 181 illustrations in A Concise History of Canada by Gerald S. Graham, published by Thomas Nelsons and Sons at $6.95.

Stories Don't Change . . . Only the Background

A HARVEST OF WORLD FOLK TALES, edited by Milton Rugoff. Macmillan of Canada. Paperback, 734 pp. $4.15.

Nineteen cultures contribute a sampling of almost 200 folk tales to this fascinating collection.

Or, if you prefer, some 4,000 years of story-telling have polished and refined these tales until they have taken on the characteristics and very nature of the numerous cultures into which they have found their way.

For one of the most intriguing aspects of folk literature is the certainty that somewhere else, in some other time, the same basic story pattern will show itself, no matter how varied the costume or local the details and dialect.

The story told by "The Shipwrecked Sailor" of Egypt, some 3,700 years ago, for examples, evokes for modern listeners the image of Shakespeare's Prospero, while the Spanish trickster Pedro bears strong resemblances to that practical joker of Germany, Tyll Eulenspiegel, and the equally alert Taoist beggar-priest of China.

Similarly, the "pigheaded wife" of Finland is close sister to the stubborn Sicilian wife of "Scissors They Were"; while Dick Whittington's cat offers his services to many masters in many more lands. And the great mythology of ancient Greece is parallelled by the poetry of the Elder Edda of Tenth Century Scandinavia, while fables of Aesop are echoed in the French cycle of Reynard the Fox.

Despite their common background, however, each of the tales collected by Mr. Rugoff is equally distinguished for its strong local flavor.

The Discontented Grass Plant, an Eskimo tale, vividly captures the frozen world of the Bering Strait as well as the American Indian's belief in the spiritual inheritance of each aspect of nature, from plant through beast to man and sky.

Jewish parables are as distinct for their mixture of wisdom, humor and piety as the legends of the South American Indian for their bizarre enchantment, or the ironic juxtaposition of mischief and omens in the ancient Irish epics.

It is perhaps equally significant that white American folk heroes are more frequently figures of farce and bravado than tragedy or the supernatural.

The finest tales are often the shortest, such as the delightful Georgian story of "The Khevsouri and the Eshmahkie," and the numerous shrewd jests told of the Turkish Hodja (whose graveside even rouses wry laughter).

And many of the stories are told with that fine literary polish inevitable when they come down to us from the collectors of the past.

We owe much to the energy and assiduity of the philologist Grimm Brothers, Antoine Galland (who published the first European translation of the Arabian Nights), and such superb earlier gatherings as the Jataka of India, the Pentamerone of Italy, the Kalevela of Finland, the Tuatha de Danaan of Ireland.

Mr. Rugoff has provided thoughtful introductions to each section and a comprehensive index of sources, editors and translators. The book is further enhanced by the illustrations and ornaments of Joseph Low.—E.A.S.

Game of All Games Played Minus Goals

THE MASTER GAME, by Robert S. De Ropp; Fitzhenry and Whiteside; $7.50.

Reviewed by Donna Smyth

The over-used analogy of game-playing popularized by Eric Berne and Alan Watts is given a new twist by Robert De Ropp in his The Master Game.

De Ropp has followed the example of the Beatles by abandoning drugs as a means to conscious expansion of the mind and concentraing on the mystical experience itself.

This experience, the attainment of cosmic consciousness, is the Master Game, the game of all games played without external motivation or goals.

It is the game played by Boehme, Jesus, Buddha, Chuang-tze and all spiritual leaders of men. It is the game that Baudelaire hinted at when he apostrophized man's continual hunger for the "taste of the infinite."

De Ropp uses the game analogy in an attempt to define a new discipline which he calls Creative Psychology. He regards the hallucinogenic drugs as a possible means of motivation to play the Master Game but he warns that this shortcut is spiritual burglary.

The real path to the fifth and ultimate room of consciousness is the arduous cultivation and education of the self.

The process begins with simple self-awareness including a knowledge of the seeker's physical type and its limitations.

The next step involves what De Ropp calls the "theatre of the selves." As a scientist, he stresses the development of an objective I, the eternal observer who starts by watching the antic performances of the various personae of the psyche and ends by controlling these self-masks in accordance with the aims of the Master Game.

This is the Inner Theatre which is further advanced by projecting it into the Outer Theatre or the sphere of human relationships.

Vital Balance

Along the way, the seeker learns to know and educate the four brain centres, those of instinct, movement, emotion, and intellect. Eventually he achieves a vital balance of psychic energy between the four centres and, at this stage, is reborn into the fourth room or plane of self-consciousness. He is now free of the waking sleep which passes for ordinary life.

The game is played according to the individual personality of the seeker but De Ropp insists upon the need for a teacher (guru) or a small community where spiritual aims are not derided or crushed by the overwhelming pressures of a society whose present games are those of hog-in-the-trough (material possessions), cock-of-the-dunghill (fame, glory), or that of Moloch (the war game).

De Ropp's style is crisp and concise but he has the irritating habit of introducing intriguing ideas and not developing them. In this sense, his well documented notes and bibliography are badly needed.

As a whole, The Master Game is an entertaining hodge-podge of ideas from psychology, literature, and mysticism and may serve as an introductory hand-book for those tired, bored people who want a game worth playing.

The results, unfortunately, are not guaranteed.

Pioneer Parents Spared Tomahawk

RED PADDLES by Isabel M. Reekie; Mitchell Press; $3.50, and FIRE OVER HURONIA by Fred Swayze; McLelland and Stewart; $4.95.

Reviewed by Lionel Adey

Each of these books is intended for children, has an historical basis, features a Canadian boy-hero with Indian friends, finishes with a destructive fire and is illustrated. There the relationship ends.

Red Paddles is set in newly-founded Vancouver, just as the railway is arriving. It begins unpromisingly—undigested historical information together with an account of a conventional boys'-adventure hero, Dave Henderson, the sort of boy whose eyes "sparkle," while those of adults "twinkle" at him. The Indian boy, Little Bear, whom Dave uses to gratify his lust for adventure, shows infinitely more tact, maturity and consideration.

Dave repays Little Bear's father for helping him build a canoe and presenting him with red paddles, by snooping, disguised as an Indian, at a secret ritual dance. For this inter-racial rudeness he should have been tomahawked, but is only sent to bed by parents who, for pioneers, seem rather spiritless.

Gift for Suspense

Before long, however, historical and fictional elements fuse, and one falls under the spell of a natural story-teller, with a gift for creating suspense. It is impossible even to peep at the end of a chapter until Vancouver has been burned down, Dave has finished rescuing people by canoe, and city planner Lachlan Hamilton has vowed to build again.

There is then time to notice the irony by which an impossible boy's improbable adventures seem quite real, though a historical personage's actual orations would not fool a 10-year-old. To read Red Paddles is an exciting way for any child aged 9 to 12 to learn the early history of Vancouver, so long as he is warned that search parties do not always arrive in the nick of time.

Fire Over Huronia is a much more ambitious book, though less successful. Its theme is the relationship of Jesuit missionairies from Quebec with the tribes near Lake Huron, until both the Huron people and the mission of Sainte Marie were wiped out in the Iroquois conquests of 1648-50. We see the conflicts between and within the two groups as the hero, Jean Amiot, lives in turn with Hurons and Jesuits while learning to be an interpreter.

The missionaries, repressing their disgust at the cruelties practised in inter-tribal warfare, exert what moderating influence they can. The Hurons naturally become more and more hostile towards the fathers who have brought white men's sicknesses and who refuse to arm them against the Iroquois, who meanwhile, are given fire-arms by the unscrupulous Dutch. Thus, very objectively, the book presents this tragic conflict between the values of highly-civilized Christians and those needed for survival in a pitiless environment.

How to Cope

Much of this experience is conveyed through discussion by characters of how to cope with a hundred day-to-day emergencies. Even the medicine-man is allowed to speak for himself, showing as much compassion as a missionary, and more willingness to profit by experience.

Through the dialogue, the author conveys not only daily realities, but also the increasing sense of doom hanging over Hurons and missionaries alike. He is helped by illustrations skilfully placed and beautifully executed.

Fire Over Huronia is manifestly by a teacher rather than a born novelist. Its dialogue, though extraordinarily informative, conveys no sense of a speaker's individuality. There is plenty of violent action and background detail, but little excitement or suspense. It is rather disappointing that this balanced account of one of the more tragic episodes in early Canadian history should not be a better novel.

King Moves 'Half Way' To Boston

By PAUL HUME

WASHINGTON (UP) — A merry-go-round is not really an appropriate simile to use in talking about the game now going on among the orchestras of this country as they name new conductors to head their busier-than-ever establishments.

And it would certainly be a misnomer to suggest that these baton wavers were pawns in any game, no matter how vast.

Bishops at least, if not kings, and there are some of regal posture.

Figures of speech aside, things have been moving at a fast, almost dizzy speed lately.

The ramifications that can be seen, as well as those, always present but hidden beneath the surface, are quite literally more fascinating than the world of music has seen for ages.

INTERESTING FACT

The principal move lately is the naming of William Steinberg to become music director of the Boston Symphony.

That in itself is enough to bring to the surface lots of interesting facts and surmises.

First of all, Steinberg was one of the top contenders for that spot five years ago when Leinsdorf finally was named.

At that time it was reliably reported that the players in the orchestra and a large number of the audience and the board of directors favored Steinberg over Leinsdorf.

But the post went to the younger man because, it was said, RCA Victor, which records the Boston Orchestra, wanted a younger man with whom it could plan a 20-year buildup in recordings.

There is far more to Steinberg's appointment than any mere shift in conductors. It marks the beginning of a new era in Boston.

BE ON HAND

For years, Henry Cabot, president of the B.S.O. trustees, has insisted that the conductor of that great orchestra must be on hand for practically all of its concerts.

The Boston has engaged fewer guest conductors and soloists than any other major orchestra, which throws a far greater burden upon its conductor.

The addition to these immense responsibilities of the direction of the Boston's famous Tanglewood summer sessions, with a major music school plus a regular concert series, was one of the reasons Leinsdorf gave for his resignation, which takes effect at the end of the summer of 1969.

It was reliably reported that the Boston post was offered to England's Colin Davis who rejected it because he was unwilling to take on such heavy duties.

TWO POSTS

Now comes the word that Steinberg will be the orchestra's music director, but that he will also retain the same spot with his successful and busy Pittsburgh Symphony, an ensemble which he has built into one of the country's finest.

Fom Cabot comes the unusual word that Steinberg will conduct "about half the Boston winter season, and will also lead the orchestra at a number of its summer concerts at Tanglewood."

From Pittsburgh, an announcement similarly worded says that Steinberg will conduct the Pittsburgh Symphony in approximately half of its local concerts, as well as on tour."

In what seems by now unnecessary, Pittsburgh adds that "Steinberg will accept no other guest conducting engagements in order to devote himself fully to the guidance of the two orchestras."

ART IN REVIEW

Who Can Be Aloof To Siebner's Art?

By TED LINDBERG

Lindberg

Herbert Siebner, an engaging and perennial Victoria artist, is once again demonstrating his prodigious and versatile capacities at the Pandora's Box Gallery on Wharf Street.

At the moment, the medium is poured and cast concrete, invested with incised decoration and colored with wax vehicles.

The technique is loosely known as sgraffito (Italian for scratching) and has probably been employed continuously since the beginning of mankind.

There is something immediately winning about these pieces; it is the sort of work that would prompt one to want to know the artist, a sentiment not always elicited by looking at art.

Siebner is a professional; one who literally earns a living making art, no simple task on Vancouver Island, and a glance at the assembled works will indicate how he manages.

He has confined his imagery and methods to a body of work so universally appealing, yet sophisticated, that none but the most unresponsive or factionally hostile could remain aloof.

If you have ever made mudpies, sand castles, gingerbread men, carved your initials in wet concrete or scored a school desk-top, you will have a basic empathy for Siebner's Sgraffito.

Part of Appeal

Of course he takes it a bit further, because he is a trained artist and designer. But it looks easy, and that is part of the appeal.

Siebner deals in ageless themes: man in space; all kinds of space; all kinds of man; the earth, the sun and the moon.

He deals in basic forms: the slab, the wedge, the cylinder, the human, the concave and the spherical.

One special graven image which he favors is man in unassisted flight, soaring over the landscape or in trapezeless gymnastics, one of the most delightful and primordially dreamed-of desires which has occurred to man.

Unlike Chagall's weightless figures, that tended to bob in any direction, Siebner's simplified cross-hatch men glide in full control through a richly colored and textured phantasmagoria.

The least complex of these statements of flight are among the best in the show.

Other slab compositions deal with human, land and sky shapes adorned with runes (real and simulated) which fortify the ancient look and feel of these works.

Possibly there is something which compels this treatment in such a venerable tradition, whether in stone or cast stone.

Compelling

A number of free-standing pieces are included in the show, and although some of them just miss being sculpture (which by definition, should work from any angle, in the round), I find them compelling and ingenious statements. There is no doubt that these pieces will probably outlast the definitions that attempt to govern them, in any event.

Siebner makes worthy use of found objects, like smooth stones which are especially attractive. There are several such pieces in particular, titled Script Figure and numbered one through four, which may be viewed either as human figures, standing provocatively on three legs, or receptacles for the stones, like altars for offerings to the gods.

In another, a seated trunkform titled Goddess, a single black stone approximates a head lying in a niche at the top; and in yet another, a decorated column is similarly crowned. I am intrigued with their mute testimony, delivered so charmingly.

In the three-dimensional area, little has escaped Siebner's attention.

He includes a huge, towering pot, decorated with caryatid-like figures; several blocks with concave tops or facades, which could be beautiful Japanese-style rainbasins; and several more decorative tables, actually too handsome to be covered with other objects.

One table, covered with marble slabs and gold and blue glass mosaic, fails to suppress the artist's sense of humor, as he includes under a disk of glass in the centre, assembled reproductions of flies, which are disconcertingly realistic.

Other, more direct references are made to the era of visual frivolity known as Dada, and one piece, a plaque with a spigot, entreating one to wash the hands, is dedicated to Marcel Duchamp (one of the chief exponents of Dada), after 50 years.

Humor is a basic ingredient in Siebner's art, and a great deal of this spirit is transmitted to the viewer as long as one doesn't get overly concerned with esthetic considerations.

This is an aspect of art which most often escapes people, so seriously intent on meaning and beauty.

Above all, Herbert Siebner is a talented, robust and intelligent man who does his work on a day to day basis, least of all burdened by neurotic hang-ups; very open and very honest.

This exhibition may easily be considered one of the most effective by a local artist this year.

No Sad Songs is Joe Simon's newest LP. Pick of the tracks are (You Keep Me) Hanging On, Long Hot Summer, I Worry About You, Nine Pound Steel, In the Same Old Way and Can't Find No Happiness.

Riding charts all over the country are six all-Canadian hits. Andy Kim's How'd We Ever Get This Way has reached the 80th spot on the Cash Box 100 chart.

I Can't Make It Anymore by The Original Cast and Blue Bonnie Blue by The 49th Parallel are riding high in Calgary and spreading fast.

Sha La La Lee by Meddy's People and Clap Your Hands by The Beau Marks are quickly moving in and around the Toronto-Ottawa areas with a lot of call in other major cities.

The Eternal's Falling Tears has reached charts in no less than 30 Canadian cities.

Keep your ears open, maybe this is the year that a certain Canadian pop music publication will have it's motto — "Canadian music is about to explode" — come true.

Ten Years After first album issue should be on the racks within the week. This brand new group is rumored to have a clear sound even though they rely on studio tricks to complete it.

Titles include I Want To Know, I Can't Keep From Crying Sometime, Adventures of a Young Organ, Losing the Dogs, Don't Want You, Woman and Love Until I Die.

Should be interesting to hear if those rumors pan out.

All you budding medical people can now find out more about the world's first human heart transplant on a two-record set recently released by London Records. The recording was made at the University of Cape Town Medical School shortly after the first transplant.

It takes the form of a discussion under the chairmanship of Prof. Christiaan N. Barnard and other members of the heart transplant team at Groote Schurr Hospital.

Well recorded and basically in layman's language, the set should prove to be an educational addition to almost any record collection.

One interesting note is that royalties from the sale of the recording accrue to the Chris Barnard Fund for surgical research.

PLANS FOR NEXT SEASON . . . . . . RAPIDLY TAKING SHAPE

Full Symphony to Play in Park Concerts

Two of 10 free concerts in Beacon Hill Park this summer will definitely be given by Victoria Symphony Orchestra according to an announcement this week.

Tentative dates are Aug. 25 and Sept. 8.

The summer concert series is sponsored by Victoria City parks department with assistance from the trust fund of the Recording Industries of America through recommendation by Local 247, Victoria Musicians' Association.

This year, for the first time, Victoria Symphony Society itself becomes a third partner in the two VSO concerts by underwriting the additional cost of providing the full symphony orchestra instead of, as in previous years, the reduced concert size orchestra.

The symphony board makes this gesture in recognition of the support received from city and municipalities.

•

Plans for next season's activity outside the regular subscription series, are rapidly being formulated by the VSO.

The Duncan Symphony Committee has a new chairman, Murray Munsell, and has already selected a four-concert season from the Victoria 10 pairs of concerts.

Enthusiasm in Duncan is high following the successful 1967-68 series of four which saw attendance build 50 per cent over the preceding season's three concerts.

Campbell River has this week also formed a concert association with the purpose of co-operating with Victoria Symphony in a number of concerts and recitals.

The Arts Council of Nanaimo has been in touch with VSO officials, investigating possible forms of co-operation between Victoria and Nanaimo Symphonies.

Port Alberni, Courtenay and Salt Spring Island are also keenly interested in promoting more concerts.

Victoria Symphony plans to use its concert orchestra and possibly the Amity Singers which were so popular with up-Island audiences, again next season.

•

In a move toward improving calibre of performance within the orchestra as well as collaboration with the University of Victoria, any symphony musicians who wish to participate in the university's chamber music workshop in July, will have one-third of the registration fee paid by the society.

•

Auditions are announced for any student or professional performer on any instrument who is interested in playing with the symphony.

Dates of auditions are June 21 and 22. Appointment for the auditions can be made by phoning Arne Bo, 384-7154 or writing him at the symphony office, 1960 Lansdowne Road.

•

In an attempt to avoid confusion of dates with other organizations next season, the symphony board has decided on immediate announcement of dates of all activities for 1968-69.

The 10 pairs of Sunday-Monday concerts will be as follows: Sept. 22-23; Oct. 6-7 and 27-28; Nov 17-18; Dec. 8-9; Jan. 12-13; Feb. 2-3 and 23-24; March 16-17 and 30-31.

Recitals at McPherson Playhouse by symphony soloists will occur on Sept. 25, Oct. 9 and 23, Jan. 8 and 29 and Feb. 19.

Dates tentatively set and awaiting confirmation are the Canadian Opera Company in Rossini's Barber of Seville, Dec. 1-2, and Ballet Concert by the National Ballet of Canada, Jan. 19-20.

Another Victorian Accepted

Still another former Victoria student has been accepted for the National Youth Orchestra.

Word has been received by his parents, Canon and Mrs. C. Hilary Butler, that their son, Mark, currently finishing his second year as a violin student at the Royal College of Music, was auditioned by Brian Priestman in London.

This will be Mark's fourth season as a member of the NYO although he was unable to return to Canada last year.

Mark's acceptance brings the total of students playing with the 1968 NYO, and who have received basic and advanced training in Victoria, to nine.

'Sex Used as Crutch' Says Still-Saucy Mae

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The summit meeting of two film immortals took place one recent evening in the sumptuous salon of George Cukor, the director.

The principals: Greta Garbo and Mae West.

Miss Garbo had surprised her longtime friend and director by expressing a desire to meet Miss West. Cukor arranged a dinner.

Garbo, always prompt, arrived first. Miss West, who dearly loves an entrance, came later. She disarmed Garbo at once by greeting her with a "Hello, dear" and a Hollywood-style kiss on the cheek.

"From that moment on, they got along famously," says Cukor.

"Garbo wanted to know about Mae's muscle-men, and Mae explained that this one and that one were infatuated with her."

Miss Garbo was unavailable for comment. But Miss West said she enjoyed the evening. What did they talk about?

"Well, she said that she loved my pictures, and I said the same about hers," Mae recounted.

"I said to her, 'You know, you really ought to make another picture — you look great.' She said, 'I dunno; I'll think it over'."

The meeting with Garbo was another event in the recent renaissance of Mae West, who has had an amazing number of careers in her 74 years.

Why has she been off the screen so long?

"Well, it wasn't because I didn't have offers," she remarked. "I just couldn't find anything I wanted to do.

"Also there were years when my income tax was such that I would have ended up working for the government.

"And I was busy doing plays and nightclubs. The rest of the time I spent getting some writing done. Now I've finished the writing, and I want to do some work while I still look the way I do."

LOOKS GOOD

The way she looks is remarkable. the eyes still sparkle with "Come-up-and-see-me-sometime" sauciness, and the face is smooth.

The figure is ample, but then, didn't Mae set the well-padded style in the early 1930s, eliminating the scrawny, flapper look. Not for nothing did the British in wartime name their inflated life preservers "Mae Wests."

A pioneer in censor-baiting, she is amused by today's licence in entertainment content.

How does she feel about today's sexy films?

"I think they're going too far," she said. "They're using sex as a crutch; whenever the story starts to drag, they throw in a naked body so you'll forget how lousy the script is.

"That's a mistake. When you have a good story, you don't have to throw the sex in."

Mae admitted that her plays and movies were sexy, "but I never threw anything at the audience; everything was done subtle."

She also claimed to have been ahead of the times in subject matter.

She cited her plays The Constant Sinner, which concerned a romance between a Negro man and white girl, and The Drag, about a homosexual. Both themes have occupied films of late.

ARTICLE DELAYED

Due to interest in the first part of the feature on the arts in education in British Columbia by Audrey Johnson, which appeared last Saturday, so much additional information on the subject has come to hand that it has necessitated a delay for one week in publishing the second article.

She's Still 24-Carat After 'Smoke' Clears

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Gunsmoke is shooting again, and all's well in the television world.

Jim Arness is back as tall in the saddle.

Good ole Doc—Milburn Stone — remains thoroughly crusty. As for gold-hearted Kitty, she's still 24-carat.

"Nobody's going to tamper with her character," said Amanda Blake. "She has been the same since about the second season, when she became Matt Dillon's girl.

"Before that, she was just one of the girls in the saloon and didn't play any favorites."

Well, maybe Kitty's activities have changed a bit since Gunsmoke moved to an early hour on Monday nights, Miss Blake admitted.

'TIRED OF IT'

Kitty hasn't been in danger of rape since the youngsters were invited to share the adventures of Dodge City. But she has been kidnapped.

"Good lord, have I been kidnapped!" she exclaimed. "I'm sick and tired of it.

"The writers claim I can't be in jeopardy as long as I'm in town — because Matt would protect me. So they keep having me kidnapped. I sure wish they'd think of something else."

Like a bedroom scene with Matt.

She used to have some good scenes upstairs with Matt, all very chaste of course — "We didn't even have a bed in the room!" Nowadays Matt never gets up those stairs.

Despite her complaints, Amanda Blake leaves no doubt that she is deeply devoted to Gunsmoke. It has brought her wealth in the millions and honors galore.

Being so loyal to the series, she was naturally upset when CBS cancelled Gunsmoke a couple of years ago.

"I've heard many stories about the reason for it and I consider all of them lies," she said. "One of the reports I got was that we were done in by a computer.

"Yes, that was what I heard: That the computer said we weren't reaching the 18-25 age bracket — they're supposed to be all-important.

"We were getting to the 25-40 audience, which supposedly didn't count. So the computer said to fire us."

A wave of protest caused CBS to reconsider. At the new hour Gunsmoke came back in the ratings.

Bob Hope One Putt From 65

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Hope, who is only a short putt from being 65, has already set a goal for his 100th birthday.

"I'd still like to be around then," he said, "and playing in a show on the moon."

That isn't just one of the blithe-spirited comedian's 5,000,000 catalogued jokes. He has a good chance of making history as the first professional laugh-man to become a centenarian.

"My grandfather lived to be a month short of 100," he remarked, "and I have a couple of uncles who are about 90 and still hale."

Poor, Aged Can Earn More Before Cut-Off

Old age pensioners, disabled and social welfare recipients receiving supplementary allowances from the province will be allowed to earn more on their own beginning June 1.

Social Welfare Minister Dan Campbell announced Thursday a new ceiling of permissible monthly income before deductions are made from the provincial supplementary allowances of $30 a month.

He said single persons will not be docked if they earn no more than $137.10 a month and married persons will be allowed to boost their income by $244.20 a month through their own resources.

Current ceilings are $105 a month for single persons and $218 for married persons.

Here Come De Emmy Awards

By AL FORREST

The most persuasive guy in the world has to be Dan Rowan, the brains behind the top-rated Laugh-In $how.

A silver tongue? Why, sir, he could sell life insurance to Methuselah or a Chevrolet to Henry Ford II.

Instead he peddles the belief that we live in a daring but anxious time, that we need desperately to put our feet up and let our tummies quiver with laughter.

When he talks, it's not the newly-crowned king of show business talking. It's more like Albert Schweitzer's mission to the Africans.

ROWAN
. . . sell, yes

"We believe it's important that people get a break from war and violence and crisis. We're just grateful we've been given a free hand so we can bring a little fun into people's lives.

"If we win any Emmy awards," he said during his recent visit to British Columbia, "it will be pleasant but we already feel well-rewarded because so many people seem to like our show.

"Any Emmy awards will be the icing on the cake."

Rowan and Martin were up to their ears in icing this week. The TV academy socked it to them and when the judges had come and gone, the Laugh-in program had won three awards.

It was pleasing, indeed, and certainly no surprise.

●

TV viewers may recall that expansion hockey game in which the play-by-play announcer said:

"And now Alain Caron (of Oakland) has the puck behind his own net . . . he's in the corner . . . in Oakland they call him boom-boom . . ."

Then he passed the puck in front of his own goal. It was intercepted by an opponent who scored easily.

A note in the news today says that Caron has been traded by Oakland.

After that play, they didn't call him boom-boom.

●

The June 9 two-hour TV debate between the party leaders is looked upon as the make-or-break event of the federal election campaign.

But unless Prime Minister Trudeau is a disaster (which is unlikely, because he masters the TV medium) it looks like a Liberal landslide.

On the front page today, the Gallup poll shows Liberals with support of 50 per cent of the voters. In the Diefenbaker landslide of 1958 in which the Tories won 208 seats out of 265 it was done with 54 per cent of the vote.

●

One other political note: That NDP provincial byelection victory in Vancouver South was another sure bet.

It's the same thing that happened away back in 1952. Only, then, the Liberals were going down and Social Credit coming up. The NDP won 21 out of 48 seats. On the straight X system they would have formed a minority government.

But the alternate ballot, in which second and third choices were counted, saved the day for free enterprise in 1952.

In next spring's provincial election (with Premier Bennett resigning this October) the NDP will win it all unless all Socreds get behind the Liberals or vice versa.

●

The Wild Heart, a Walt Disney production about animals on Vancouver Island, is re-run 6 p.m. Sunday on Channel 2.

It stars two Victoria children, Andrew Penn and Kitty Porteous.

●

Elsewhere, it seems to be holiday time on TV so it is a good time for show business writers to set typewriters aside and get a suntan.

If you notice the lack of a This Week column next week, it's because I'm in beautiful downtown Burbank, California.

French Lessons to Start With Kindergarten Class

Pupils at St. Margaret's School will get instruction in oral French from kindergarten up starting in September.

The girls' private school at 1684 Fort already gives French instruction from Grades 3 to 12, headmistress Mrs. Lorna French said today.

"We've always felt it was absolutely essential if they are going to learn a language they should learn to speak it from an early age," she said. "Obviously in this country they should learn to speak French."

The early years in French instruction deal in conversation and pupils learn to speak the language through games and songs.

From Grade 8 up they take the same textbook course as public schools. But teachers find the earlier experience with the language make an "enormous difference" when students begin to study its grammer, Mrs. French said.

There are 250 girls, 34 of them resident students, in kindergarten to Grade 12 at St. Margaret's. The school has been in operation for 60 years.

Diamond In the Groove

Man of La Mancha KRL 4505

By BERYL PROUDMAN

People have always roared with laughter at the notion that Don Quixote could be such a fool as to dream the impossible dream of righting all the evil in the world.

But their laughter has always been accompanied by a wistful yearning that such a man could exist and such a dream could come true.

This musical play achieves just the right balance between grotesque comic antics and noble imaginings, to appeal to our mixed feelings on the subject.

Noble purity is pitted against shameful degradation throughout and one particularly cleaver device is used. Beautiful love songs like "Dulcinea" and "Little Bird, Little Bird" are sung with simple sincerity and then are guyed up or changed to grating discord by the bad-guy muleteers.

The tunes are particularly lovely and the orchestration light and intelligent above the average of a Broadway Show.

The touch of a guitar, of clacking heels and the interesting rhythmic variations used strongly suggest a Spanish background without confining the action to Spain.

Don Quixote sounds like a handsome, aging gentleman and there is real pathos in his final attempt to ride out against evil. Sancho's unbelievable voice and rudimentary songs like "I Really Like Him" makes him a perfect foil for such a knight, and an appealing little man.

The dual personality of Aldonza is clearly characterized in her songs. The sultry, cynical, disillusioned, brutalized kitchen wench, softens and stands straighter when she recognizes the potential Dulcinea Don Quixote saw in her, and her voice changes to match.

The world which winks a kindly eye at such gentle insanities is represented by the landlord who, while he is willing to dub the knight of the woeful countenance, prays that he may never see him in battle.

A gentle swipe is taken at hypocritical relatives and over-consolatory churchmen in the trio's singing of "I'm Only Thinking of Him."

One or two important events are missed on the record but the gaps are adequately filled by the explanatory sleeve notes.

The Barber's Song, perhaps more than any other symbolizes the confusion of the noble with the bizarre.

Is it a shaving basin or the golden helmet of Mambrino?

It depends entirely on your point of view and this delightful record keeps living the possibility that good will triumph.

Youth Drama Meeting Set

The Canadian Child and Youth Drama Association, Greater Victoria Branch, will hold a meeting Monday at 8 p.m., in the Workshop Theatre, Hut Q, University of Victoria.

Purpose of the association is to encourage, support and develop creative dramatic activity amongst children and young people, and to develop an understanding of these aims.

Professor Richard Courtney, specialist in developmental drama in the university's Theatre Division, will chair the meeting.

Mr. Courtney has just returned from Toronto where he was one of the speakers at the national conference of the CCYDA.

During the conference he was made a member of the board and national executive of the association, with specific responsibility in the area of teacher training.

Good Start On His Career

A young man who is well started on a fine professional music career in England is former Victorian Michael Adamson, violinist son of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Adamson, Yale Street.

After gaining his Bachelor of Music degree in the United States and further study at the Royal Academy of Music in London, Michael is now on the music faculty of Keele University in Staffordshire.

He is also playing in a quartet that has been awarded scholarships for study at noted music centres, including Budapest, and has been described by critics as promising to be another Amadeus Quartet.

The young violinist will be making his professional debut in London next November.

MUSICAL ART SOCIETY

Award Again Available

For the third successive year, Victoria Musical Art Society will make an open scholarship available to vocal and instrumental students of the area for furtherance of their musical education.

Pianists and violinists must be under 21 years of age. Other instrumentalists and vocalists must be under 25 as of May 25.

Minimum age for all applicants is 15.

Visiting examiners have been invited to do the adjudicating.

Application forms can be obtained by contacting Mrs. Molly Watts, telephone, 382-1060.

Musical Art Society's 38th annual meeting took place recently, concluding a successful season.

Reports from the Junior, Intermediate and Studio Groups fostered by the Society were read and the possibility of Musical Art sponsoring further activity among young musicians was mooted.

As a result of nominations, the names of Miss Catherine Wendol and Dr. H. B. Barnett were added to the board.

Plans for next season's concert series at the McPherson Playhouse are under way.

Confirmed as the artist who will open the season is former Victoria pianist Philip Adamson.

Mr. Adamson, since winning the Musical Art open scholarship two years ago, has been studying at the University of Indiana. He now has his Master of Music degree and is working for his doctorate.

This year he holds a $3,500 Canada Council Grant as well as an assistantship at Indiana.

Following the business meeting a short program was given. Arranged by Mrs. W. Luck it featured pianist Connie Mack, the boys' choral group from St. Mary's Church, directed by Charles Palmer, and Laura Groos and George Kiraly, winners of the Musical Art vocal and string awards in the recent Music Festival.

Cellist George Kiraly was accompanied at the piano by Stuart Calder.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Small Declines In Major Groups

By GERALD CLARKSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets continued to slip this week and closed Friday with small losses in most of the major groups.

Gold shares, which had been running up to their mid-March panic levels, dropped off in the wake of the free bullion market but recovered some ground after a steep plunge Wednesday.

Analysts say prices generally are marking time for a clear signal, and they poin to three ominous factors:

- The future of paper money and the price of gold;
- The success of the Vietnam peace talks;
- Progress towards a U.S. tax increase-spending cut bill.

The latter has been having the most impact recently, and brokers say the tax bill should boost the market by dramatically improving the Unites States' fiscal position.

However, only a strong injection of institutional funds — predicted before June 30 by a number of brokers — can raise price levels without other major developments.

UNCERTAINTIES

Optimism is not universal. Madison Fund of New York said Thursday it fears a sharp summer drop in the market if the tax increase is delayed. Accordingly, the fund plans to keep over 30 per cent of its assets in cash to avoid perils.

Harris and Partners Ltd. of Toronto had similar thoughts and said many investors believe the tax bill may be put off until after the November presidential election.

Commenting on Canada's stock markets this week, John S. Deacon, former chairman of the Toronto Stock Exchange, said there is still a shortage of quality Canadian stocks. He said this could become more obvious as the demand for shares rises sharply over the next few years.

He told the Canadian Society in New York that about half the largest Canadian corporations are not listed on the exchange, and most companies in this group are foreign controlled.

He said this was largely due to the way in which American capital had entered Canada.

Plans for broadening the Toronto stock market were announced mid-week by Robert Steiner, the new chairman. He said he aimed to increase the number of listings, possibly with some active U.S. stocks.

Action in the market centres on speculative industrials and shares spurred by takeover rumors.

Massey-Ferguson was hit by another wave of gossip and closed at 19¼, after touching 21⅛. Albert A. Thornbrough, president again denied merger plans after Chrysler Corp. and Deere and Co. were mentioned as possible partners.

Lowney was up 2¾ to 67½. The stock's recent advance from 24 is under scrutiny by the Ontario and Quebec securities commissions. Standard Brands Ltd. has offered to buy the company for $68.22 a share.

Levy Industries gained 2½ to 31. Benjamin Levy, president, denied merger rumors Friday.

Small mines with property in Quebec's Louvicourt Township were struck by Quebec Mining Exploration Co.'s statement that the new copper-silver discovery in the area may not be worthwhile commercially.

However, Quebec Mining, which is a Quebec government corporation, said drilling will continue.

Dunraine fell 41 to 61 cents, First National Uranium 32 to 97 cents and Louvicourt 2 to 19 cents.

Reichhold Chemicals Buys Ink Company

TORONTO (CP) — Reichhold Chemicals Canada Ltd., says it has acquired all the outstanding shares of Canada Printing Ink Co. Ltd. of Toronto. Both firms have plants throughout Canada.

The purchase price was not disclosed. Reichhold Chemicals Canada is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Reichhold Chemicals Inc. of Delaware.

FIRING UP pipe at General Motors stockholders' meeting in Detroit Friday is Charles S. Mott, 92, who helped guide the industrial giant to its pinnacle as the world's largest manufacturing company. At one time Mott was the largest single stockholder in GM and has given away more than $130 million in his lifetime. He is dean of GM directors, having served continuously since 1913.

'Ominous Signs Of Inflation'

LONDON (CP) — Viscount Amory, governor of Hudson's Bay Co., told shareholders Friday the immediate business outlook in Canada calls for caution.

In an address to the annual meeting, Amory said there are "ominous signs of inflation" in Canada, where 95 per cent of the company's business is conducted.

Incomes still were outstripping production growth. Therefore, there must be a note of caution in any forecast of net income in the coming year.

Encouraying developments since the company's current financial year began Feb. 1 included "substantially higher" prices for furs after a depressed market last year and a continued "splendid showing" by the subsidiary Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas in the first three months.

However, Canadian retail sales were only modestly ahead the profit margin was lower in the first three months and than in the same period last year. An exception was the new Regina store opened Feb. 29, where sales exceeded expectations.

Amory said informal discussions are under way with British authorities about moving HBC headquarters to Canada — probably Winnipeg — a proposal announced when the annual financial report was published April 29.

He said it is felt the company's interests would be served better by the transfer, but no formal proposal will be put to shareholders immediately.

British treasury approval is required to move a British-incorporated company out of the country. Although most of the 298-year-old company's business and 14,000 employees are in Canada, 88 per cent of its 30,000 shareholders and about 85 per cent of its 13,000,000 shares are in Britain.

Two shareholders protested that less than half last year's after-tax profit of £5,426,000 ($14,107,600) was being distributed in dividends.

Amory replied the directors felt caution was the best policy in retaining profits and keeping dividends at the same rate as last year in view of the uncertain enonomic outlook and the difficulty of borrowing for any capital development.

Another shareholder received an assurance that the company has nothing to do with killing or buying pelts of baby harp seals in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. The gulf harvest received adverse publicity in Britain earlier this year.

CURB AIMED AT CONSUMER

Britain Puts Squeeze on Credit

LONDON (CP) — The Bank of England Friday tightened the screws on credit available for financing imports as perhaps the first government move to discourage foreign purchases which continue to swell the country's international payments deficit.

The move was aimed directly at the consumer who has been buying imports despite the devaluation of the pound last November.

In response to the Bank of England announcement the pound fell to a new low and the stock market eased.

The central bank asked commercial banks to hold over-all loans to a rate four per cent higher than the total outstanding in November—roughly the current level—and to give priority to loans for financing exports.

RESTRICT LOANS

A bank spokesman said the aim is to restrict loans available for non-priority financing, such as imports of manufactured goods.

This will virtually eliminate bank borrowing for cars, vacations and other consumer spending. One bank spokesman said:

"The private borrower has had it completely. He hasn't a hope of getting anything."

Also hit are local governments which will have a tougher time raising money for public housing.

On the foreign exchange market buyers simply stayed away from the pound. There was no question of anyone dumping the pound, but business was extremely light.

Friday always is a bad day for the pound because dealers fear holding it during the weekend in uncertain times.

SPENDING BLAMED

These fears were intensified by what traders took to be a sign of government weakness in putting down new credit curbs.

Another factor was a warning by the authoritative National Institute for Economic and Social Research that Roy Jenkins, chancellor of the exchequer, will not reach his balance-of-payments targets. It predicted Britain will still be in deficit this year and will not reach Jenkins's target of a $1,200,000,000 surplus in 1969. The institute blamed this on the continued consumer spending spree following devaluation.

The uncertainty spilled into the gold market, where the price rose 35 cents to $41.75 U.S. an ounce in London. But dealers said much of the rise could be attributed to normal market fluctuations.

A Bank of England spokesman said in an interview the credit squeeze is considered by authorities to be far more acceptable than imposition of direct import restrictions which could bring retaliation from other countries.

Bond Market Marked Time

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian bond market marked time at the close of the week after opening sharply lower. The market fell one to four points following announcements that Ottawa will seek $100,000,000 in the United States and $62,500,000 in West Germany.

Corporates continued to decline. The Imperial Oil 7⅝-per-cent, 1988, issue dropped 1¼ to 97 bid and 98 asked and the Bell Telephone 7⅝-per-cent, 1991, issue ½ to 98¾ bid and 99¼ asked.

In short-term Canadas, the 5½-per-cent Dec. 15, 1969, issue lost 10 cents to 97.90 bid and 98 asked and the 6 per cent Feb. 15, 1970, issue five to 98.55 bid and 98.65 asked.

In long-term Canadas, the 7 per cent April 1, 1973, issue picked up ⅜ to 99 bid and 99¼ asked.

In provincials, the Quebec Hydro 7½ per cent May 15, 1980, issue gained ¼ to 95¾ bid and 96¼ asked.

Day-to-day money was up ¾ to 6¾ per cent.

Newsprint Exports To U.S. Decline

MONTREAL (CP)—Increased U.S. production of newsprint has affected Canadian export shipments, a spokesman for the industry says.

Canadian shipments of newsprint to the U.S. dropped 5.2 per cent to 1,931,801 tons during the first four months of the year, about 66 per cent of the newsprint used in the U.S.

Subsidies End In Three Years For Coal Firms

Three western Canadian coal companies will have to operate without federal subsidies after 1971, federal energy mines and resources minister Jean-Luc Pepin said here Friday.

Since 1957, he said, Ottawa has contributed $25,000,000 to subsidizing operations of Crows Nest Industries, near Fernie, and two southern Alberta companies, Coleman Collieries and Canmore Mines.

"Since the recent very important coal sales to Japan by these companies, totalling nearly $1,000,000,000, the federal government has agreed to extend the subsidies to 1970-71," Mr. Pepin said.

"After then, however, these companies must be in a position to stand on their own feet. The federal subsidies will end there and, if these companies can't go their own way, then others will come in without subsidy to pick up their contracts in Japan."

Dividend Dropped

TORONTO (CP)—The Jockey Club Ltd. will omit its dividend of five cents on its common stock payable to shareholders in June.

The Jockey Club previously had omitted its common-stock dividend payable in March.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Economy Needs Encouragement

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Finance Minister Benson's promise Friday of tax reform legislation if a Liberal government is re-elected recalls remarks made earlier this week by a Vancouver investment dealer.

Mr. Benson was reiterating a stand that no government white paper would be necessary as his predecessor Mitchell Sharp had proposed for last fall. There is precedent for immediate legislation in revisions to the Tax Act of 1948, he said.

Kent

The former revenue minister's name has been linked with the lingering shadow of the Carter royal commission on taxation, which recommended drastic changes in the taxing of private and corporate income and capital gains.

Vancouver investment dealer, H. W. Tingley, of Wood, Gundy Securities Ltd., spoke as past-chairman of Investment Dealers Association of Canada, Pacific division, which he turned over to M. M. Ryan, of Ryan Investments Ltd., for the 1968-69 term.

* * *

What he said was in effect a warning to business and government against Carter report revival at a time when the economy needs encouragement rather than suppression.

Capital investment in both forestry and mining in B.C. has been showing lower profit return, he said.

This has been due to an easing of market demand, to high wages and to high taxes, he said, and if this province is to continue to enjoy investor confidence, there must be a sound, long-term approach to wages and taxation.

His definition of investor included persons putting foreign, pension and insurance dollars into the economy.

The government should establish ground rules that will allow corporations consistent increases in profitability, in that way assuring itself of its proper share of income taxes, Mr. Tingley said.

His position makes sense, whether or not Canada is to have Carter recommendations worked into taxation. Industry and individuals have a right to arrange their finances to their best advanatge, while yielding up to Caesar what he is due.

But for large corporations especially, planning takes time.

A group headed by Dominion Securities Corp. Ltd. is offering at par a $25 million, 25-year, 8 per cent bond issue to provide funds for Toronto-Dominion Centre, whose capital stock is owned equally by Toronto-Dominion Bank and Cemp Investments, the Bronfman family holding.

Colored lights and bunting will outline what promises to be the most attractive feature of B.C. Automobile Dealers' Association annual meeting here May 30-June 1.

Sponsored by Seaboard Life, the 110-foot motor yacht Senarieta II will be transformed into a floating casino named Miss Sal (short for Seaboard's sickness, accident and life plan for conditional sales contracts).

Moored in the Inner Harbor in sight of convention delegates at the Empress Hotel, Miss Sal will be a hospitality centre, games room (with funny money and merchandise prizes) and cruise ship for up to about 100 persons at a time.

Cryogenic Enterprises Ltd. will let contracts this summer for a gas liquification plant near Vancouver, augmenting a plant that now compresses natural gas for storage at —260 degrees F. and shipment in specially insulated tankers to a distribution system at Squamish.

That is the first such installation in the world, but it may soon be duplicated on Vancouver Island.

For two years, Cryogenic has had its sights on Vancouver Island as a market for its product, which may serve areas remote from gas pipelines.

The company will apply for island franchises, said president J. T. Sparling, who also told shareholders a 20-year contract has been agreed upon to supply B.C. Hydro with natural gas at peak-load times on the lower mainland. Revenue from this is expected to reach $10.4 million, he said.

Cost of a new plant to make the Hydro deal work would be in excess of $4 million, he said. Capacity of the proposed plant would be 15 to 20 times the existing plant's 140,000 cubic feet per day, and storage would be big enough for 700,000 million cubic feet.

Financing is well advanced and should be completed within a few months, the president said. He added that further capital demands would be made over the years and that it is intended to broaden the market for shares by seeking Vancouver Stock Exchange listing. The company is listed now at Calgary.

Another Vancouver company, Offshore Oil and Gas Corp. Ltd., has added to its west coast seaward holdings by obtaining eight new permits covering exploration rights to 314,633 acres of the Pacific shelf between Vancouver Island, the Queen Charlotte Islands. Permits were granted by the federal government.

Satellites Will Aid Industry

CALGARY (CP) — The greatest demand in satellite telecommunication will be in the transmitting of data material for industrial and scientific use, the president of Communications Satellite Corp. of Washington, D.C., says.

While satellite communication technology will make direct telephone dialing between continents feasible, this kind of traffic is expected to take second place in utilizing space facilities, Dr. Joseph V. Charyk said in an interview.

He said television will mainly use satellites to cover special occasions where immediacy of news has a bearing on events.

Business usage with telex circuits and computer connections will speed up and simplify the administration of international companies.

RECEIVES AWARD

Dr. Charyk, a native of Canmore, Alta., received an award for pioneering work in the aircraft industry at an aviation conference sponsored by the Calgary Chamber of Commerce.

He said the commercial satellite program being hangled by Comsat now is confined to the international scene but may take on responsibility for domestic communications as well when individual countries decide to operate a system for their own internal networks.

Dr. Charyk said Comsat, which now has two satellites in service over the Atlantic, will launch a third later this year to connect North America with Europe and a fourth in 1969 over the Indian Ocean.

Chamber Talks Urged

Victoria Chamber of Commerce executive wants to talk things over with Saanich representatives before they endorse quitting Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce next month.

Ex-Victoria chamber president E. E. Pearlman told directors Friday it would be most unfortunate if Saanich withdrew at a time when the capital region trend is toward dealing with common subjects collectively.

Directors decided a discussion should be arranged with Saanich representatives before the annual meeting of the Saanich Chamber of Commerce.

Saanich directors decided to quit the Greater Victoria chamber at a meeeting Wednesday and the question will be put to the membership June 20.

A suggestion was made at the Victoria chamber meeting Friday that lack of identity may be a strong reason for Saanich wanting to abandon the Greater Victoria chamber.

"I've been here nine years and I don't know where Victoria ends and Saanich begins. That may be their trouble," a director commented.

Misunderstanding of the terms of association earlier was suggested as a reason for withdrawing from Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

"I really don't understand the reason for it," said Victoria president William Armstrong.

Mr. Armstrong said the original idea of associating all capital region chambers of commerce was to provide an opportunity of speaking with one voice on common issues.

"It looks like opting out of the liaisonship. They've always acted on their own. The Victoria chamber never tried to take over and there was no thought of proportionate representation," he said.

"It's just a liaison, and it should reflect more favorably on them, a younger chamber, through the use of our facilities," he added.

Victoria Chamber of Commerce, the original unit in the capital area, was renamed Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce last year when it invited one representative from each of the Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Sooke chambers of commerce to sit on its board of directors.

NEW PRESIDENT of the Victoria chapter of the Administrative Management Society is James Flatman. Other officers are P. C. Bocking, first vice-president; Earnest Shaw, second vice-president; J. E. Burnett, secretary; M. H. Flett, treasurer, and directors M. M. Whitehead, H. R. Patterson, J. D. Wilson, Mrs. Ada Severson, A. B. Auchinvole and George Milne.

Atlantic Fishermen Pledged Aid

OTTAWA (CP)—The Atlantic provinces' groundfish industry won a promise from the federal government Thursday for financial aid if returns from the 1968 season "cause a serious drop in fishermen's incomes."

However, the announcement from Fisheries Minister Robichaud's office did not outline what might constitute a "serious drop" or what level and type of assistance may be forthcoming.

A department spokesman said later the assistance is likely to take the form of an income supplement, paid to fishermen whose 1968 incomes from fishing fall below the average income for all Atlantic fishermen over the last three years.

Government assistance programs in the past have been triggered by the average income in a sector dropping below 80 per cent of the average income over preceding years. The spokesman speculated that this is likely to be the interpretation of a "serious drop" in incomes.

The degree of assistance, should it be required, could lift fishermen's incomes up to the three-year average, the spokesman said.

The announcement follows a government study of conditions in the Atlantic groundfish industry resulting from a depressed market for frozen fish products.

Electrohome Sales Show Increase

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Electrohome Ltd. increased sales in the first quarter by 14.4 per cent and showed a profit compared with a loss in the similar period a year ago, Carl A. Pollock, chairman and president, told the annual meeting.

He gave no figures, but said the company showed these improvements: Color television sales for the industry were up 57.5 per cent from a year ago while Electrohome sales rose 134 per cent; in black and white TV, industry sales decreased by five per cent while Electrohome's rose four per cent; the company's stereo and hi-fi set sales rose 23 per cent while the industry achieved only a 2.7 per cent gain.

Sales of other consumer products such as humidifiers were up 27 per cent, Mr. Pollock said. Furniture shipments from the company's Deilcraft division were lower, however.

HOWIE GLOVER REPLACES OLMSTEAD

PLAYER DEAL WITH CANADIENS

New-Look Plans of Seals Don't Include a New Home

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oakland Seals will remain in Oakland, but just about everything else about the National Hockey League team will be different next season.

Barend Van Gerbig, chairman of the Seals, announced Friday that the Oakland franchise will not be moved to Vancouver. He said the John Labatt Ltd. brewery company which loaned the Seals $700,000, so the team could pay its debts to the NHL, has withdrawn its bid to have the team moved to British Columbia.

As part of a move to give the Seals a new look next year, Van Gerbig said Fred Glover will replace Bert Olmstead as coach.

Glover, 40, has coached Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League for the last six seasons.

Van Gerbig, who said he lost $1,500,000 on the Seals last season, also announced a player trade with Montreal Canadiens.

Montreal sent right winger Norm Ferguson, defenceman Stanley Fuller and two amateurs to be named later to Oakland for centre Wally Boyer, right winger Alain Caron and an unnamed amateur.

Boyer, 36, scored 13 goals and assisted on 20 in 74 games for the Seals who finished a distant last in the NHL's Western Division. Caron, 30, had nine goals and 13 assists in 58 NHL games.

Fuller and Ferguson, both 22, played last season under Glover at Cleveland. Ferguson was ninth in AHL scoring with 42 goals and 33 assists.

Although the Seals' home base will remain the same, Van Gerbig announced a change in the team's training site. The Seals will train in Oshawa, Ont., rather than Port Huron, Mich.

Elsewhere, Sid Abel, manager-coach of Detroit Red Wings said his team has made a multi-player deal with another NHL team.

Abel declined to name the other team or the players involved, but said the deal would be announced Monday.

Speculation was that the trade would send veteran defenceman Bob Baun to Detroit from Oakland.

It was reported that Detroit will receive Baun and another player for either Dean Prentice or Bruce MacGregor along with defenceman Howie Young and forward Gary Jarrett.

Van Gerbig's announcement that the Seals will stay in Oakland contradicts a report he made to the NHL board of governors May 16 when he said the Seals would seek permission to move to Vancouver.

He said Friday that Labatt has agreed not to seek transfer of the franchise because of complications. These include the fact that Labatt, which would have become a major shareholder in the club if the franchise shift were granted, had been unable to clear the Western Hockey Leaue's prior rights in the Vancouver area.

Labatt put up most of the $680,000 that the Seals sent the NHL prior to May 15 to complete payment for its franchise. It was the last of the $2,000,000 each expansion club had to pay to the league.

The same day, Vancouver Canucks of the WHL indicated they would seek an NHL franchise on their own.

The presentation of the rival application followed the failure of negotiations between Labatt and the WHL club, designed to bring the Canucks into the Oakland deal and clear the way for the NHL team to enter the WHL territory.

Van Gerbig said if the Oakland franchise was moved to Vancouver, the money advanced by Labatt would be "equity." But if the club remained in Oakland, Labatt would be a "creditor, having given us a term loan."

IT'S MY VIEW . . .

By Ernie Fedoruk

Paragraphs For Saturday's Parade . . .

"Our Heavenly Father," Samuel Langhorne Clemens once declared, "invented the monkey because He was disappointed in man."

Then, much later, some disgruntled individual came along and invented the B.C. Soccer Commission because he was disappointed in democracy.

★ ★ ★

This isn't the soccer season, but an old sore spot began to fester this week when it was learned that Victoria's two voices on the commission announced they are retiring from the provincial body. The notices were signed by both Pat Mulcahy and Sam Smith.

Two other bodies will inherit their seats on the commission and will serve, probably, from now until doomsday.

"Inherit" best describes the manner in which Smith and Mulcahy will be replaced.

There is no quarrel with the two old soccer friends. The objection is with the antiquated system which the B.C. Commission uses to fill its executive seats.

The Viotorians will recommend a pair of successor, and the commission will "vote" the new men in. It's that simple.

Election by inheritance is wrong. It needs reform because the people who direct the game at the roots have no voice in the matter. It is wrong because there is no time limit on the length one must serve. New faces bring in new ideas . . . and that sort of thing . . .

Though I must admit B.C. hasn't suffered, the promotion of soccer by its leaders hasn't been inspiring. It's strictly a guess on my part, but I would think that the new North American professional league has spent more time and money in promoting the game during the past two years than the Canadian Association had put out in the decade before the pros came along.

★ ★ ★

Now, changing the game ball, it can be suggested that only a handful of relatives and friends bothered to catch some of the action in the Victoria City junior golf championship at Gorge Vale today.

If that was the case, it is unfortunate because at this time we can lay claim to the finest crop of junior golfers ever developed in Victoria.

It used to be you could put your finger on two, possibly three players, and pick a winner. It was like that when Dick Munn and Bill Wakeham were still of junior age. Then Gary Smith and Rick Kent came along and most of the other names are caught up in a haze of inconsequence.

Those who follow junior golf closely could put their fingers today on any one of 14 or 15 players and have only a fair-dinkum chance of picking the winner.

The defending champion is Mike Gray of Uplands, and he served an early reminder with a strong showing in the Times Island Open. Oak Bay's Carl Schwantje won the Mid-Island title last week in a playoff with Gorge Vale's Brian Stott, and both are capable of winning out today.

Gorge Vale's Cec Ferguson made the B.C. junior team last year, and is another favorite.

A know-it-all also could drop the names of Al Brown, Ian Anderson, Ken Nott, Murray Lawson, Brian Gandy, Ken Floyd, Dave McCall, Ron Howard, Randy Lee, Kirk Olsen and Dave Mick.

★ ★ ★

Chances are, the winner will turn out to be a name that has been overlooked, and it will serve the know-it-all right . . .

Hot Mustangs Carry Unbeaten Run to Six

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Streaking Chicago managed to hold off a furious, second-half Houston rally and today is again in sole possession of first place in the North American Soccer League's Lakes Division.

The Mustangs defeated Houston 2-1 at Chicago Friday night, extending their unbeaten string to six—two victories and four ties. Houston's Stars suffered their fourth straight loss.

Toronto edged Detroit 3-2 at Detroit on a second-half 45-yard free kick by Tony Lecce in the only other game Friday.

Chicago entered the game against Houston in a tie with idle Cleveland for first place and built up a 2-1 first half lead on goals by Werner Glanz and John Kowalik.

But Houston put on a second-half rally, taking 16 shots on goal to only five by Houston, all of which were off target. Luiz Juracy of Houston got the only second-half goal. The victory put Chicago eight points ahead of Cleveland.

Toronto and Detroit were tied 2-2 at the end of the first half with Lecce's winner the only goal of the second half. Oscar Lopez scored twice for Toronto, while John Kerr and Jorgen Christensen scored for Detroit.

Baltimore is at Cleveland and Vancouver at Washington in today's games.

Foster Pays for Title; Return Battle Unlikely

NEW YORK (AP)—It cost Bob Foster and his backers about $21,000 to get the light heavyweight title from Dick Tiger. But the gangling, newly-crowned champion won't waste much time getting it back.

Floyd Patterson or George Chuvalo may be his next opponent.

Shortly after Foster, 29, bombed the Biafran with a left hook to the jaw for a knockout in 2:05 of the fourth round Friday night, his bankrollers started lining up non-title fights.

"Bob will fight in Albuquerque, N.M., where he was raised, in about three or four weeks against an opponent to be determined," said Vince McMahon, the Washington, D.C., promoter who guaranteed Tiger $100,000 for the title shot. "Then there will be other non-title fights for a while."

The big one would be against either Patterson, the former two-time heavyweight champion, or Chuvalo, the Canadian heavyweight champion, in Baltimore in about two months, according to sources close to Foster.

Foster said he'd be glad to give Tiger, 38, a return bout—"for the same $100,000 we got up"—and Tiger said he'd like another chance. But a second fight between the two is highly unlikely after the rout at Madison Square Garden. Foster was an 11-5 favorite as a challenger.

HAD ADVANTAGES

Foster had too many physical advantages in addition to his jolting left hook. The challenger from Washington, D.C., had age, weight (173¼ to 168), height (6-foot-3½ to 5-foot-8) and reach (79 to 71) going for him.

The former air force boxing champ used his long left jabs to set up Tiger and keep him back for three rounds. In the fourth he peppered the aging vet with left jabs and then unleashed a right uppercut and the lethal left hook to the jaw in a flashing combination.

Tiger, never before knocked out in a 16-year career, went flat on his back. He was struggling to raise his torso when referee Mark Conn counted 10.

"I didn't even know I was down," said Tiger. "The first I remember is hearing the word 'ten.' It was too late then."

A crowd of 11,547 paid $113,728. The net gate was about $107,000, with $25,000 more coming in for the ancillary rights, including television. Foster collected 60 per cent of this—about $79,200—and paid Tiger $100,000, for a loss of $20,800.

Foster, a pro for eight years, scored his ninth straight victory for a 30-4 record, including 24 knockouts. Tiger's record is 58-14-3. He had been floored once, by middleweight champion Emile Griffith, but never stopped before.

Ashe defeated Rafael Osuna, Mexico's No. 1, 6-0, 6-3 and 6-0 in only 57 minutes. The American won nine straight games to start and finished with seven straight.

Graebner, 6-foot-4, outlasted Joaquin Loyo-Mayo, 6-3, 8-6, 4-6 and 6-4 in a rain-interrupted match.

The United States could complete a sweep of the North American zone finals against Mexico by winning today's doubles. The Southern California pair of Stan Smith and Bob Lutz were to meet Osuna and Loyo-Mayo.

Any Hit Confusing To Batter Like Lee

By Associated Press

Stange, a wallflower at the plate, grounded a run-scoring single for the decisive run in the seventh inning and then protected it with fine relief pitching as the Red Sox outslugged Minnesota Twins 9-7.

"I actually didn't know what to do after I hit it," said the veteran right-hander of his first hit this season.

In contrast, team-mate Carl Yastrzemski had no trouble getting around the bases when he slugged a two-run, first-inning homer.

Elsewhere in the American League, George Brunet of California Angels confused Cleveland Indians with a four-hitter for a 2-1 victory, New York Yankees tripped Chicago White Sox 1-0 in 13 innings, Baltimore Orioles staggered Washington Senators twice 5-3 and 3-2 and Detroit Tigers and Oakland Athletics tied 2-2 in a seven-inning rain-shortened contest.

HITS HOMER, SINGLE

Yastrzemski got Boston into the swing of things with his fifth homer of the season. Rico Petrocelli added a two-run shot in the third and Yastrzemski singled home a run in the fourth for a 7-4 lead.

But it was 7-6 when Stange—3-for-49 last year and 0-for-2 this season—took bat in hand in the seventh. Jose Tartabull followed with another run-scoring hit.

He relieved Ray Culp in the fifth inning and allowed only three hits and two runs in 4 1-3 innings for his second victory without a loss.

THROWS BUNT AWAY

A bloop double by Bobby Cox leading off the 13th led to the downfall of the White Sox and substitute third baseman Sandy Alomar completed the collapse moments later by throwing away a sacrifice bunt by Horace Clarke that allowed Cox to score.

Stan Bahnsen hurled a four-hitter over the first 10 innings for the Yankees and Tommy John matched him for nine innings with a six-hitter for the Sox.

Baltimore overcame Frank Howard's 18th homer in the opener with two unearned runs on loser Phil Ortega's two wild throws, Mark Belanger's suicide squeeze and a two-run single by Dave Johnson that built a 5-0 lead.

Howard's homer was his 14th in May, four short of Rudy York's one-month record of 18.

MAYS MOVES UP

In the National League, Los Angeles Dodgers pushed over five runs with two out in the top of the 10th inning and then held on for 9-7 victory as Houston Astros came back with three runs in the bottom half of the inning.

Willie Mays moved into fourth place on the all-time total-base hitting list and pitcher Juan Marichal became the first seven-game winner of the season in the majors while pacing San Francisco Giants to a 4-2 win over Chicago Cubs.

Mays blasted two singles to move past Tris Speaker with 5,103 total bases for his career. Only Stan Musial, Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth produced more.

Atlanta Braves stopped New York Mets 4-2, Pittsburgh Pirates defeated Cincinnati Reds 8-5 and St. Louis Cardinals downed Philadelphia Phillies 5-1 in other NL games.

Playoff Payoff Boosted As Hockey Session Ends

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The professional-like executive of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association wound up regular annual sessions Friday after brushing aside a full-scale threat to its authority earlier in the week.

The officers listened but appeared unconcerned after lawyer Joe Mattson of Kitchener, Ont., outlined his plan to break CAHA legislation that has lowered the age limit for junior players by five months.

The age limit issue threatened to turn the association's five-day meeting into chaos several days before the actual plenary sessions and committee meetings opened last Monday.

But the CAHA executive countered the attack by Junior A hockey operators before it really got organized with a compromise Sunday.

The association granted its branches a seven-month increase in age limit for minor league players in return for the right to reduce the junior age to under 20 years as of Dec. 31.

At least two groups—the Western Canada Junior Hockey League and the Ontario Hockey Association—were dissatisfied with the compromise. The WCJHL representative stamped out of the meeting and out of town while the OHA people made it clear they had not withdrawn their motion but were only unable to have it passed.

OFFICERS WANT BRIEF

Mattson arrived Thursday asking for a meeting with the delegates. He was granted a half-hour hearing by the association officers after the annual meeting was adjourned Friday and was told to put his case in writing to be reviewed by legal advisers.

Mattson said after the meeting that he will first try to get the backing of the OHA before attempting to take the matter before the Ontario legislature.

Mattson said he will take no further action until he asks the OHA for its support at the association's annual meeting at Kitchener May 29.

RAISE GATE RETURN

Meanwhile, the delegates wound up their regular sessions by voting to raise the CAHA's return from playoff gate receipts by five per cent to 20 per cent in hopes of covering the $15,000 deficit gathered during the last fiscal year.

There was hot discussion on the motion, which also asks that the interest from the CAHA trust fund be used to balance the budget, and the delegates voted 15-15 on the question.

Retiring president Fred Page of Vancouver then cast the deciding vote in favor of the motion.

Lloyd Pollock of Windsor, Ont., was installed as president while Earl Dawson of Rivers, Man., is the new vice-president. Leo Attwell of Trail, B.C. and Alf Taylor of North Gower, Ont., are the new directors.

The delegates were told Canada has been invited to hockey tours in Czechoslovakia, Finland and Russia during 1968-69 but the matter was deferred to the executive committee.

The association's annual meeting will be held in Calgary next year.

ANNUAL DERBY SLATED SUNDAY

Plenty of prizes will be waiting for contestants when the annual membership salmon derby of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association is staged Sunday.

Derby hours are from dawn until 2 p.m. and prizes will be presented at the Anglers Anchorage (Brentwood) about 2:30. Catches may be entered at all Saanich Inlet boathouses and the Deep Cove Marina.

No entry fee is required but contestants must possess either a senior ($2) or junior (50 cents) VSIAA membership ticket.

Co-Leaders Keep In Two-Hit Step

Bob Labelle wasn't too happy with the trouble Carlings' leadoff hitters insisted on presenting the Colony Inn pitcher in Friday's Senior Men's Softball League game at Central Park.

If Labelle was unhappy, how does he think Carlings feel?

Labelle blanked Carlings on two hits, 1-0, to keep Colony in a first-place deadlock with Nanaimo O'Keefes. The O'Keefes blanked cross-town rival Tally-Ho 3-0 in a game at Nanaimo.

GREAT CATCH

Labelle walked leadoff batters in two innings and it took a brilliant catch by Eric Walker to bail out the pitcher in another frame. In each of the seven innings, Carlings' leadoff men worked the count to 3-2.

But sharp fielding and Labelle's timely strikeouts (he had nine in all) erased all the leadoff threats. Ken Griffin was the most troublesome Carling, collecting both hits off Labelle.

Walker's catch was a doozer. With his back to the plate, the left fielder made an over-the-shoulder grab at the fence to rob Roy St. Denis of an extra-base blow. St. Denis was rounding second base when Walker made his catch.

At Nanaimo, a pair of errors and Bill Haslam's two-run single broke open a scoreless duel and carried O'Keefes' Ken Larsen to victory. Larsen, like Labelle, also dished up a two-hitter.

Sooke Crew Strutting After Second Straight

Quite suddenly, Sooke is showing new zip in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League.

After losing their first five games, the Sookers have socked it to rivals in two straight games to move out of the league cellar. The latest victory was Friday's 7-4 duke over Bottle Exchange at Heywood Avenue Park.

Double-duty performer Wayne Stolth provided Friday's guidance. He survived a shaky start (four runs, six hits and three teammate errors) to gain the pitching victory.

Stolth also helped the offence with a single and triple and scoring Sooke's first run. Len Morris, Jim Kennedy and Bill Perry also banged out a pair of hits for the winners.

HINSON MAKES BID

Polio-Cripple Proving Point

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Larry Hinson believes he might not be a professional golfer today and challenging for the $20,000 top prize in the Memphis Open golf tournament if it hadn't been for polio 18 years ago.

"It proves anyone with a handicap can do what they want if they don't let it get them down," said Hinson, 23, of Douglas, Ga.

Hinson's left arm is one inch shorter than the right, but he powered long drives and drilled in long putts Friday to shoot a four-under-par 66 for a two-round total of 133, just one stroke behind leader B. R. McLendon Jr. of Birmingham, Ala.

"I carried my hand around in my pocket for a year," Hinson said. "The thing that saved me was being naturally left-handed. I was forced to use it."

People told him he would never be good athletically, he said.

"What they said about my arm made me want to prove I could do something."

EXERCISES ARM

Hinson, hit by polio when five years old, began playing golf at 15 and now maintains an exercising schedule to strengthen the left arm.

McLendon is new to the pro tour but played like a seasoned veteran Friday. He fired four birdies, one on a 60-foot putt, to post a second round 67.

Tied with Hinson at 133 were veteran Lou Graham of Nashville, Tenn., and Bob Lunn of Sacramento, Calif., who had 66s.

Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, off to a slow start in the first round, roared back with 65s, leaving Palmer two strokes behind McLendon and Nicklaus only four strokes back.

The 65 equaled Palmer's best round of the year.

Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg was well down the list with a 139 on rounds of 70 and 69.

Grid Salaries Go Up While Profits Drop

NEW YORK (AP) — Profits are down and salaries are up, the National Football League clubowners have told their players who want more money and improved benefits.

The owners held a news conference Friday in answer to statements by the NFL Players' Association that they had refused to budge on the association's demands.

Theodore Kheel, New York attorney and labor mediator who is counsel for the owners, said an unaudited statement of NFL income showed a drop in average before-tax income from $827,159 in 1966 to $635,125 in 1967.

Kheel said that the average player payroll had risen from $1,161,875 to $1,373,801 in the same period. Kheel said the owners would agree to an audit of the records by a reputable firm. The players said Thursday they wanted such an audit.

Kheel said the average player income in the NFL was $25,000, including pension benefits and pre-season pay, and actual salary averaged $22,500.

Kheel said the owners had agreed to increase the minimum salary to $10,000 and to hold an All-Star game with the American Football League for the benefit of the pension plan as soon as possible, but not next season.

The owners refused, however, to grant players' request for $500 payment for play in exhibition games. Kheel said each player's contract was for the whole season, including pre-season games.

It was disclosed in the detailed financial statement presented by the owners that the AFL had agreed to pay the NFL's New York and San Francisco teams $18,000,000 over a 20-year period as price for the merger of the two leagues.

Also, the 15 NFL clubs will receive $4,500,000 from the AFL teams for the entry of Cincinnati into the AFL.

Saanich's Depth Tops Newton's Individuality

Mount Newton athletes dominated the individual prize-gathering, but North Saanich raced through to capture the coveted team championship Friday in the 41st annual Saanich Junior High Schools' track and field championships.

Pulling ahead on its depth and three big, point-producing relay victories, North Saanich topped an outstanding meet with 287 points. Mount Newton finished second with 261½ points while Royal Oak finished third with 239½ points in the meet at North Saanich.

Newton's athletes stepped up to collect four of the six individual aggregate awards. Bob Thomas claimed the senior boys' trophy, Lorna McHattie and Ken Fox took intermediate awards and sprinter Bill Sandwith won the junior boys' title.

Anne Sheridan of Royal Oak equalled the 60-yard sprint record and went on to win the 100-yard event to claim the senior girls' aggregate. Betty Jeffrey of North Saanich won the junior girls' overall title.

In addition to Miss Sheridan's record-equalling run in the 60-yard sprint, the meet produced a total of nine new individual marks.

The record-breakers were June Bickford, Wendy Beaumont, Doreen Ralph, Lynn Duncan, Colleen Jacobsen, Dan Ryan, Rick Saby, Fox and Sandwith.

Sandwith was the meet's standout performer. In addition to his record time of 25.7 seconds in the 220, he won the 100-yard dash and tacked on a victory in the long jump to emerge as the day's only triple winner.

Carol Frederick, Miss Sheridan, Ken MacRae, Gary Lloyd, Fox, Tim Murphy, and Saby scored double victories.

MONONUCLEOSIS HITS RECORD-HOLDING RYUN

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP)—Jim Ryun, world record-holder in the mile, was told Friday he has a mild case of mononucleosis and should suspend training for at least two weeks.

Dr. John Barton, University of Kansas athletic team physician, who examined Ryun, said, "as near as one can tell, Ryun is suffering from infectious mononucleosis."

"He should rest as much as possible the next two weeks. With his excellent recuperative power, combined with rest, he should do well. However, with mononucleosis, you must just wait and see and hope."

Easterner Scores Double

MONTREAL (CP) — Doug Burdett of Angus, Ont., won both the open and Canadian 20-guage titles Friday at the 13th Canadian skeetshooting championship by scoring a perfect 100 birds at nearby St. Janvier.

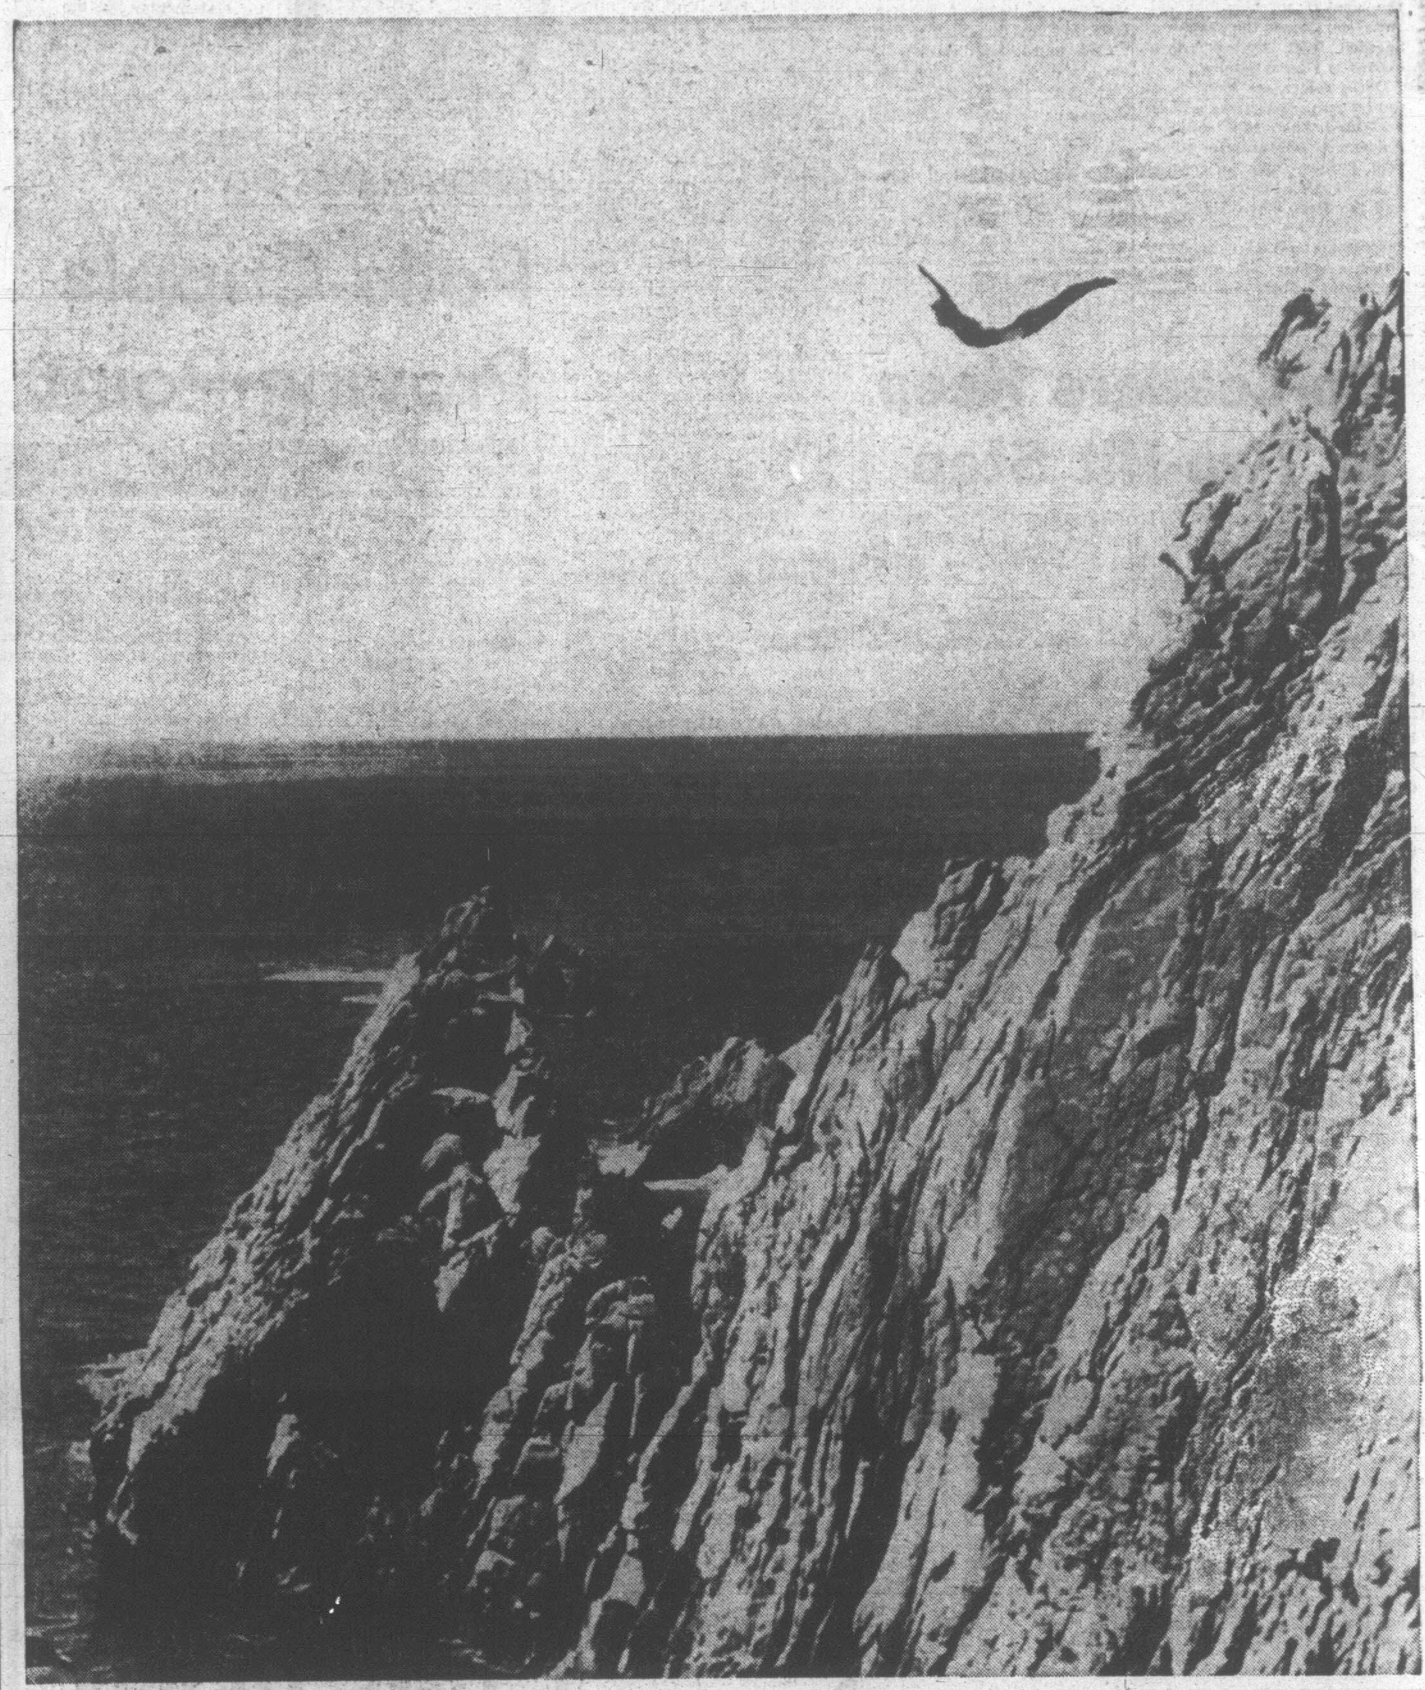
Clayton Kenworthy of Buffalo, N.Y., was runner-up in the open division. He had also shattered all 100 targets, but lost to the Canadian in a subsequent shoot-off.

Paul Laporte of Montreal, a third contestant to record a perfect score of 100 birds in the 20-gauge event, was placed second in the Canadian championship division on the basis of his performance in the shoot-off.

Mrs. Barbara Connors of Buffalo won the women's .410-gauge title when she scored 89 out of a possible 100 birds, while Mrs. Margaret Burdett, wife of the men's 20-gauge winner, won the women's 20-gauge event by shattering 97 birds.

Bill Rudyk and Nelson Starr of Oshawa, Ont., placed first in the two-man 20-gauge category with a combined score of 199 out of 200, one point ahead of Kenworthy and Randy Robb, also of Buffalo.

The .410-gauge men's event was won by Don Stahl of Rochester, N.Y., who blasted 99 of 100 targets.



A hush falls over the terraces of the cliff-hugging hotel. The music stops. High above on a rocky promontory, a lone young man kneels before a tiny altar. Slowly he walks to the edge, eyes straining to measure the rhythm of the inrushing Pacific. Then he's gone — in one great, soaring, beautiful dive — from 140 feet! It's a heart-stopping moment, even for Mexicans, who have witnessed the spectacle dozens of times. The divers of Acapulco will be just one of the things you'll never forget about your Mexican holiday. The miles of beaches, with their golden-sugar sand. The bay ringed with exotic villas and hotels. The sun so warm and reliable. Night life that goes on and on and on. And the sailfish that didn't get away.

Mexico continues to be all things to all people. It's the vibrant life of Mexico City, with its six million people, fabulous museums, murals and monuments, continental restaurants, delightful shops. To others it's the gracious beauty of Spanish colonial towns, proud plazas, lavish cathedrals and colourful Indian markets . . . the fascination of archaeological treasures, the excavations of Yucatan and other historic zones. It's all so near, by CPA's "JET EMPRESS' service. Consider the low return air fare. Life is going by so quickly. Shouldn't this be your year for Mexico?

If you lived to be a 1000 you would never forget this moment in Mexico!

Water Carried in Logs

Louisiana's first steam waterworks, supplying water for drinking and general use, was completed in March, 1818, in New Orelans. Previously residents of the Crescent City bought Mississippi water from street peddlers at the cost of one picayune (6¼ cents) for four barrels. The Louisiana Tourist Commission says that the first water mains were hollow cypress logs.

ARTIST'S concept of final location of Queen Mary after completion of conversion to hotel-convention and museum complex. The ship will be visible from all of the main arteries entering the city of Long Beach and will eventually form the centrepiece for a 3,000 boat marina.

HUB OF NAUTICAL PLAYGROUND

She'll Be a Queen Forever

By ALAN WHITE

The Queen Mary, once proud empress of the Cunard passenger fleet, will soon be one of the largest hotel and convention centres in the Pacific Ocean.

She was purchased this year by the city of Long Beach, California, for repairs and conversion. A year of work and $7,000,000 will have her turned out ready to float.

Plans call for 41 hotel rooms, banquet facilities for 1,600 persons, a complete convention complex, seven restaurants, 40 botiques, a movie theatre and a live theatre playhouse.

●

When all is finished — between March and July, 1969 — the Queen will float at slip 1 of a 5,000-slip marina complex.

There she is expected to gross several million dollars a year for the city, floating beside the nautical hub of California's playground.

The Queen is just part of the port's planned multi-million dollar development — a unique part aimed at bringing in the tourists.

The scheme calls for more than just a hotel complex on board. About 65 per cent of the vessel will become a maritime museum.

Working with some of the major companies in the United States involved in deep-sea research, planners will emphasize the scientific approach to ocean study.

Blue-printed, and actually being built now, is a display centre for deep-sea submersible vehicles, underwater research instruments and electronic devices.

The bottom six decks of the ship are being converted to accommodate the museum. Running it will be a non-profit foundation which already runs the Museum of Science Industries in Los Angeles.

●

While in the U.S. Navy's largest drydock in the city, workmen welded a steel box to the outside of the Queen's hull. In the box are one of the ship's huge, 18 foot diameter propellors and an observation platform for visitors.

They will be able to walk through the hole in the hull and look down through glass windows at the screw, under lights, slowly turning in the water.

One engine room will also become part of the display — glass tops will cover the moving turbines and reduction gears, while sound tapes play the noises of the ship steaming at sea.

Other drydock work for the 81,000 ton vessel included sandblasting and spraying of her hull with a plastic expected to last 20 years. Soon she will be ready for her parking space on Long Beach's waterfront.

A stream of tourists coming to the city for a look at the great Queen has been running for weeks. Representatives of the city in Victoria recently to publicize the venture say business has gone up by 20 per cent, since they bought her.

●

And they've been working to attract the visitors — regular tours of the drydock area are made in double decker London buses.

The city has developed some pride in owning what was once the largest liner in the world, and one that crossed the Atlantic 1,001 times.

When she goes into the water — any day now — they plan to make the museum's first exhibit the history of the Queen herself.

They are also aware that the ship, as a convention centre, is a novelty — and that novelties wear off. So they're putting extra effort into their plans.

●

The tourist facilities will be run privately in the hopes that competition will create a high level of service and comfort.

Hotel rooms will be complete suites, most of them taking up three or four of the cabins designed for Atlantic crossings. Many of them will be rebuilt into living room-bedroom suites, with ample room for small conferences.

When she is docked and ready for business she will be a part of the port's Pier J complex. Some $3,000,000 will have been poured into her for the museum, and another $4,000,000 for the hotels and shops.

Onshore from her berth will be a tastefully designed holding area, centred in an area of plazas and planted palms. Covered ramps will sweep dramatically out to the gangways of the ship.

The vessel's superstructure will remain unchanged, except for cleaning up and fresh paint. The Queen will look almost as though she had sailed into port and berthed just for the day.

Across the harbor from the 12-deck mommoth's berth sprawls the new and growing skyline of Long Beach city — centre to most of the man-made and natural attractions offered on the coast of California.

And right at her doorstep (or waterline?) will be the largest marina on the North American west coast.

We'll tell you some things you can do from a base at Long Beach in an article next week.

Airports Pressed

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Enormous increases in air travel will outstrip the ability of the nation's airports to handle the traffic, according to a report by two economists.

Profs. Philip Schary of Oregon State University and Robert M. Williams of UCLA believe air travel could increase as much as 136 per cent in 1970 over the 1965 level of nearly 49 billion passenger miles.

Safari Link Made

Big game dreams can come true with a new service offered by Tilden Rent-A-Car. Through an affiliation with Southern Cross Safaris Ltd., located in Salisbury, Rhodesia, Tilden now is in a position to arrange trips to some of the best big game areas in Africa.

Southern Cross Safaris was formed by four Rhodesian businessmen. One of them, J. M. Rowbotham, is a 20-year veteran in conducting and outfitting safaris. The company has obtained exclusive hunting concessions in Botswana. The area covers more than 25,000 square miles of wet and dry land and contains magnificent black maned lions, sable, kudu and roan.

With a view to even further expanding its hunting areas, Southen Cross is negotiating for permits in Angola, Zambia and Portuguese East Africa.

●

For visitors who just want to explore, rather than actively participate in a hunt, Southern Cross offers tours in Salisbury, Fort Victoria (the Zimbawa Ruins) and Victoria Falls.

Southern Cross flies visitors into air fields adjacent to the established camps. Then, using hunting cars, it transports them from one camp to another. At the end of the safari, the hunters are flown by air taxi to either Johannesburg or Victoria Falls to connect with international flights.

Sport 'Ballooning'

If you're bored with flying your private plane, drifting over mountains in your glider, or just plain old sky diving, then there's still something new that you probably haven't tried, and the answer is ballooning in Idaho.

This is a sport that has been around since the late 1800's, and it's still as exciting as it was 100 years ago.

●

Now a small but increasing group of people have taken up ballooning for fun and profit. One of these people is Mark Semich of Coeur d'Alene who just moved to the Gem State from California.

Semco Balloons is the name of the firm and Mark is the operator. His specialty is a large "envelope" made of nylon that is controlled by a propane torch; apply heat and you go up; take it away and you go down.

●

It's like flying a controlled blowtorch, he says. It takes only two days to learn to fly one of these balloons, and you are able to spend an entire weekend in the air for only $15.

However, there are disadvantages and risks involved, such as landing or being dragged off-target by the wind. Consequently, Mr. Semich has designed a release from the bottom that spills the air out for a fast descent.

He plans to use the balloons for commercial and advertising purposes as the Federal Aviation Agency has already approved two of his models. So if someone is looking up in the sky with a funny look on his face, it's just a balloon, so don't be alarmed.

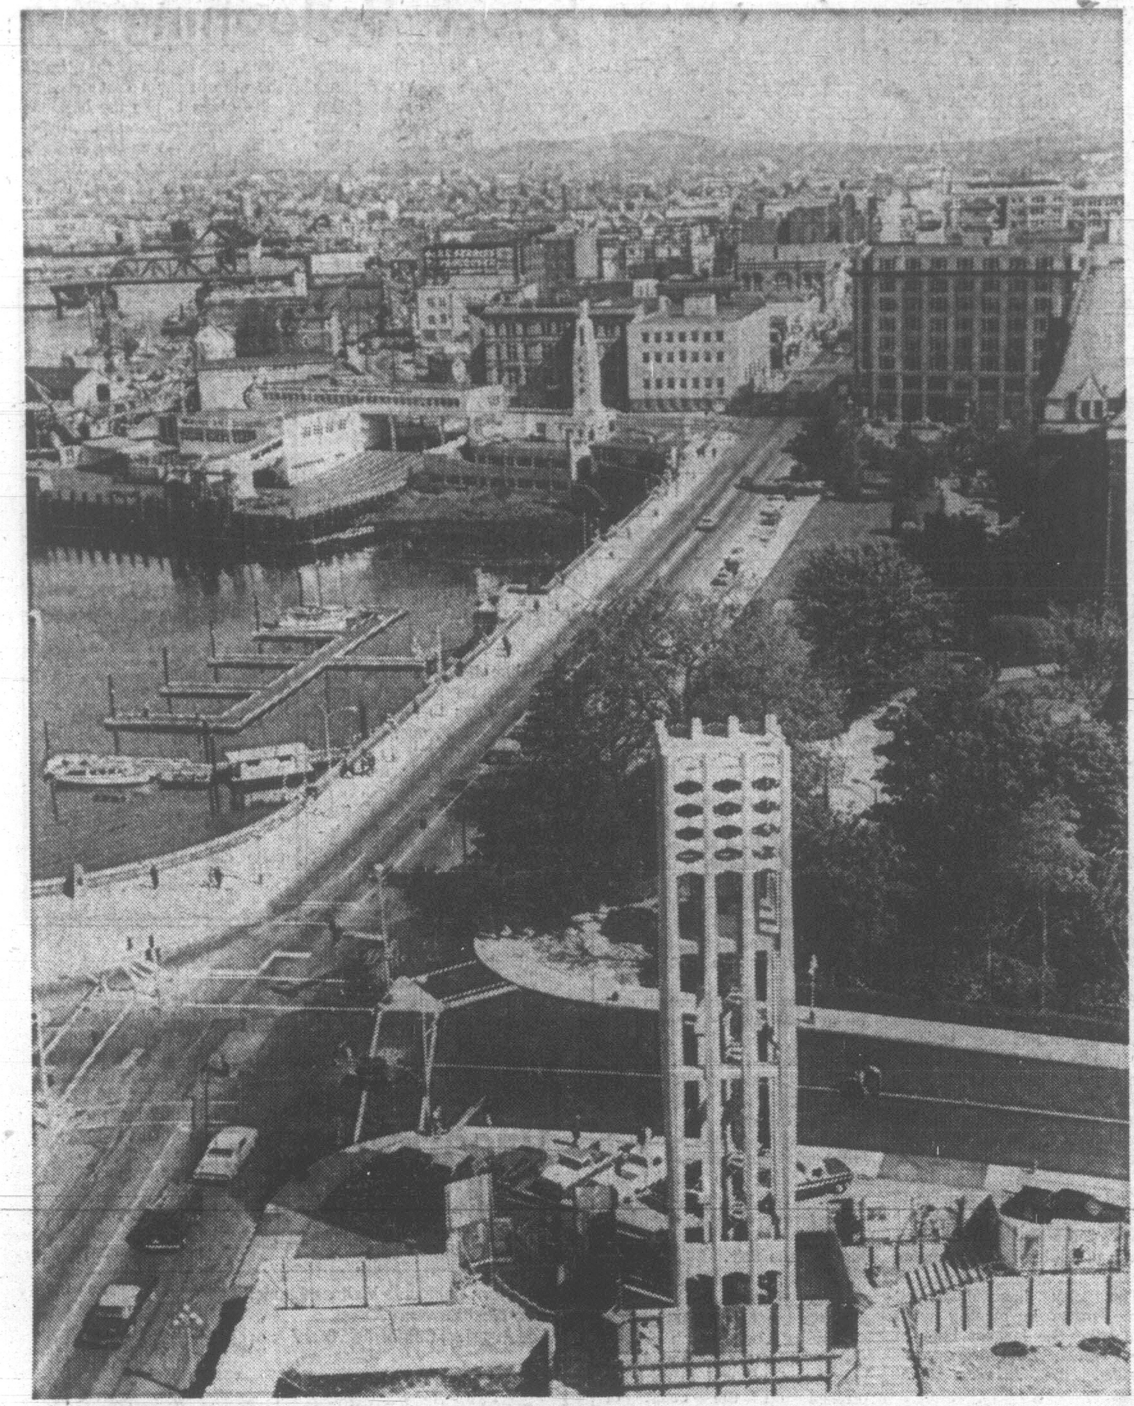
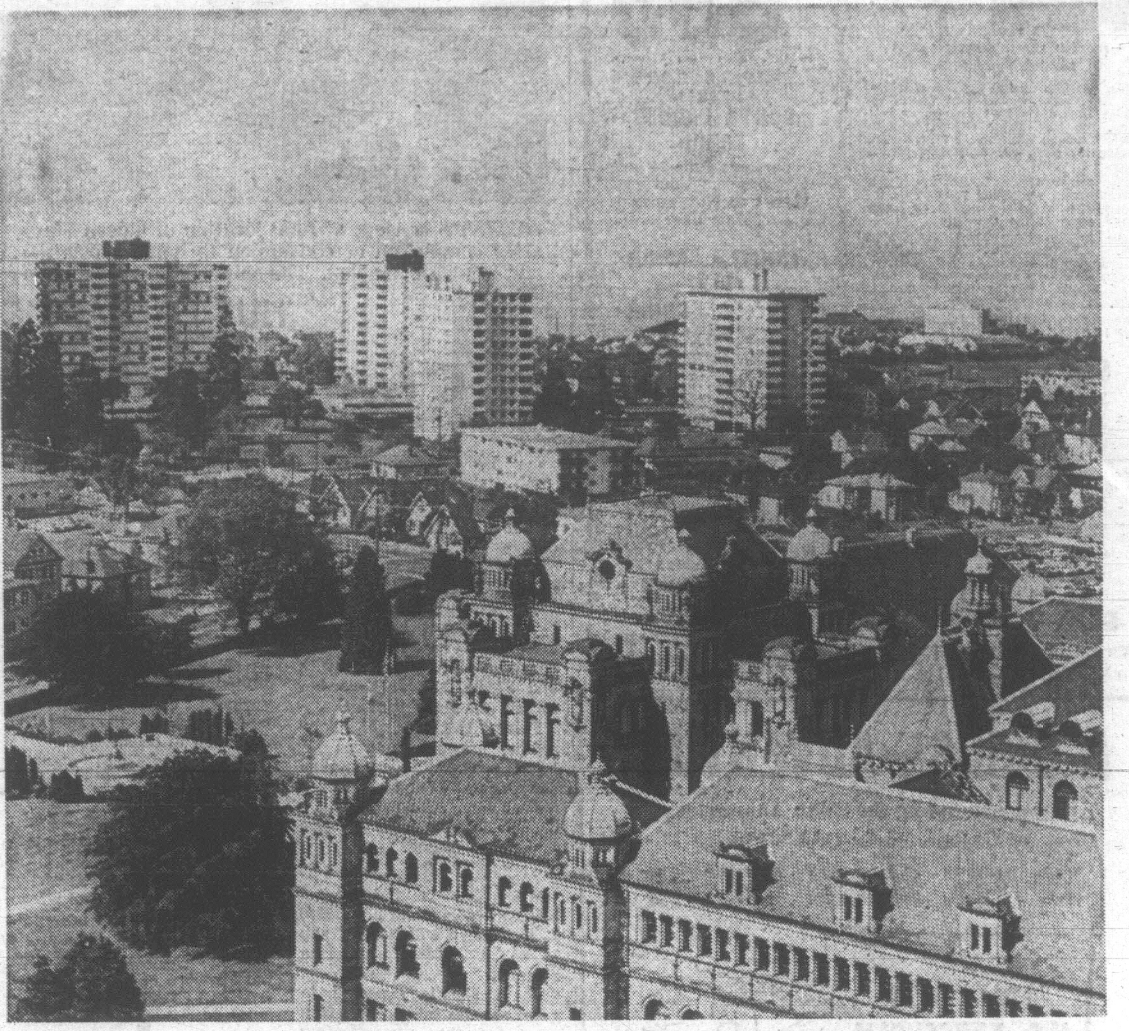
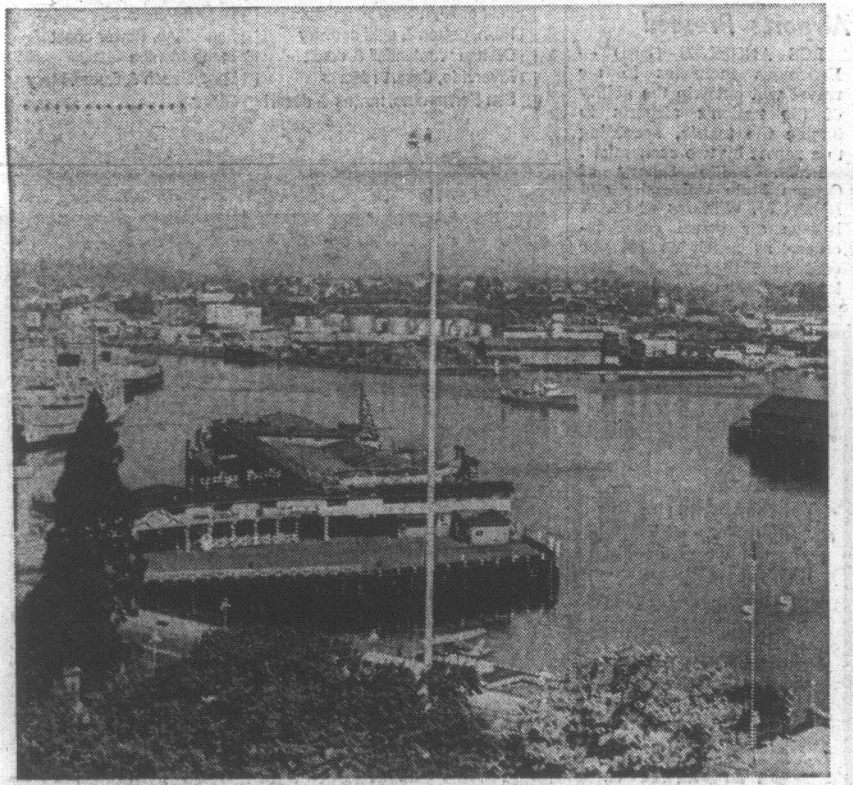
New Views of Victoria Through a Daredevil Lens



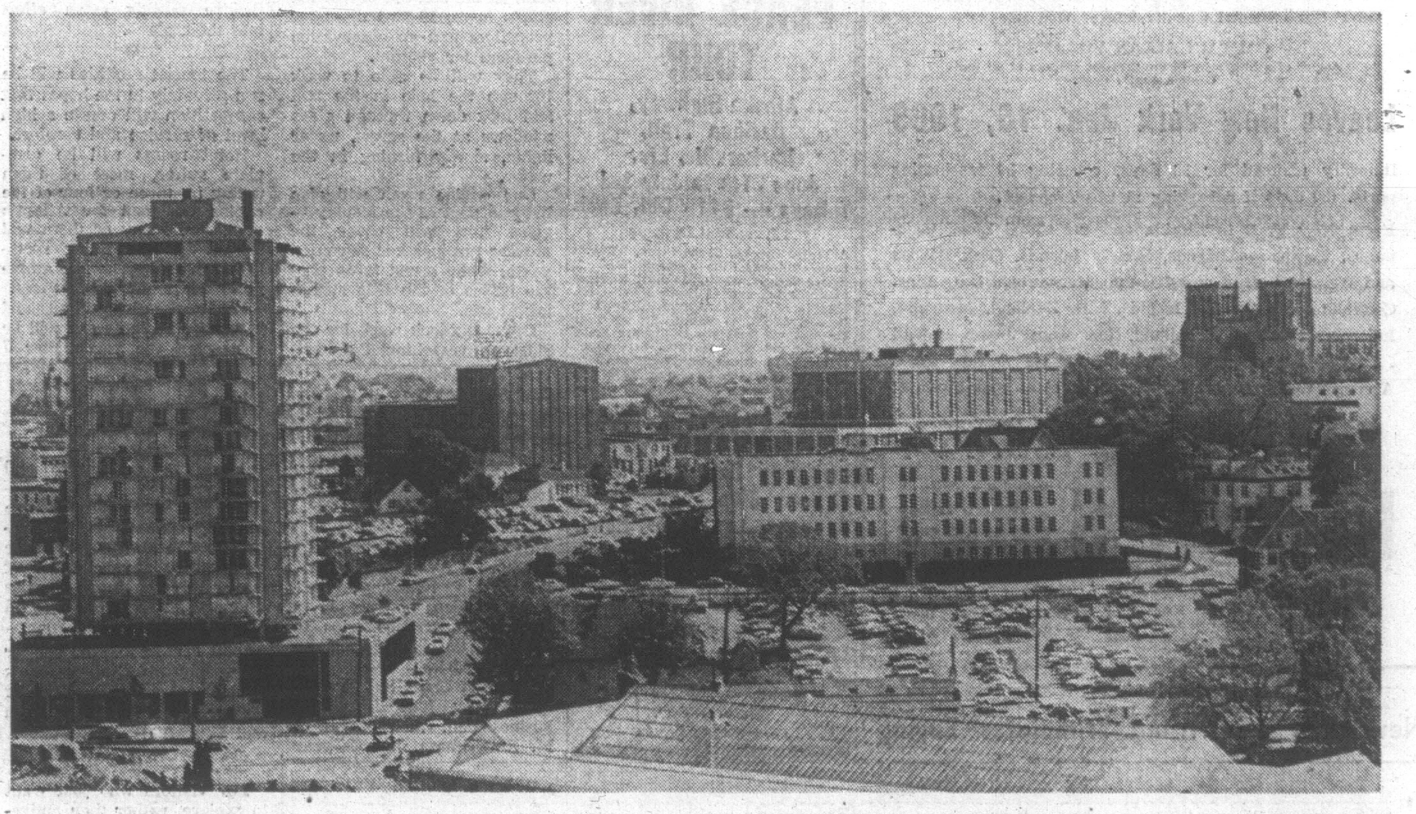
COVERING the city by camera usually calls for a helicopter, but the bare steel frame tower of the new provincial archives is almost as good a vantage point. Little Saanich Mountain in the far background seems only a giant step away. Government Street and the small boat floats in Inner Harbor are quiet, but you can tell tourist season is almost here—they're still digging up Belleville Street. That's the new carillon tower near camera. Note new contours of Empress corner.



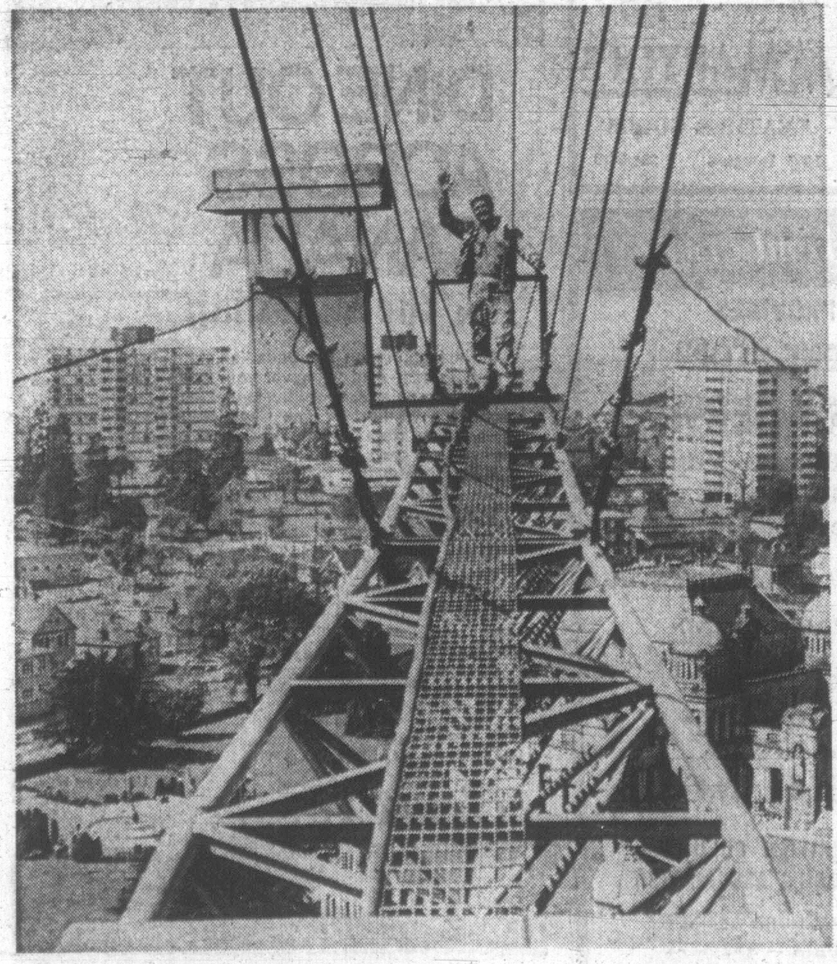
James Bay high-rise apartments peer at the city and the sea.



Emptiness of CPR docks is emphasized, makes harbor look lonely.



Only up here do you realize how much parking space separates buildings.



Crane operator George Marios swapped places—carefully.

TIMES photographer Irving Strickland, who took the pictures on this page, has seen a great deal of Victoria during his 45 years as one of our roving eyes.

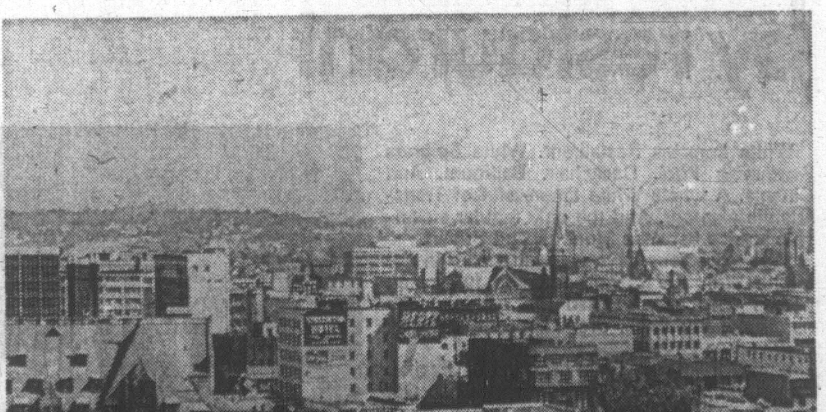
When a new vantage point appears, such as the steel-framed tower of the new provincial archives, he can't wait for fancy conveniences like stairs. To get these shots he sent his camera aloft by crane and climbed the pipe scaffolding to his 230-foot perch. hand over hand, something akin to a greying human fly.

There are reporters who dread covering fires in tall buildings if Irving is on the same job. Invariably he finds a ladder and, sparing one hand for his camera, he heads for the roof, telling his scribbler colleague to "Come on."

Firemen, helicopter pilots, high steel men and crane operators are his favorite people (along with policemen, among whom he often appears to have special ex-officio status. He rarely needs to show a press sign on his car—they all know it.) You have to be able to get where the action is to record the growth of a city.

The job also calls for agility. There was a royal tour once where the royal party occupied the last car on a train, but the press car was near the engine. At every whistle stop Irving had to run more than half the length of the train for his pictures.

Then as the ceremonies ended the royal personages would board their handy car and the train would start to roll, while Irving made his desperate dash back. To his credit the managing editor only received one taxi bill, but it was terrible — from Calgary to Banff—$27.50.



Uptown is downtown from this lofty point of view.

Obstructing Trial Delayed

Two youths who were to be tried Friday after being charged with obstructing a police officer in Bastion Square May 10 were remanded to Wednesday for trial.

Charles Barber, 18, and Gunnar Cordsen, 19, were arrested following an incident at a "happening" in the Square.

Court was told the Crown intends to withdraw individual charges against the two and charge them jointly.

Witnesses Expect 1,500 Delegates

Jehovah's Witnesses will transform the gymnasium at the S. J. Willis Junior Secondary School into a spacious Kingdom Hall during their three-day assembly May 31-June 2.

From Nanaimo and all points south to Victoria, 1,500 delegates are expected.

Theme of the assembly will be "strengthening one another to remain in the faith." Clifford Roberts, spokesman for the Witnesses, said:

"In view of the steady decline of faith in God and in the Bible as His inspired word, such a theme is very appropriate to the times in which we live."

Ministers from eight congregations in the Victoria area who will have parts on the program include Philip Wood, presiding minister of Tillicum congregation; Victor Osborne (Fairfield), Theodore Mills (Sidney), John Pimm (Esquimalt), George Wilson (Royal Oak).

Highlight of the congregation will be reached Sunday afternoon when Laurier Saumur, district supervisor, answers the age-long question Why Does God Permit Wickedness?

Keith McCann, circuit supervisor, will address delegates on the subject, Keeping Free from the Spirit of Complaint.

The assembly will close with Mr. Saumur speaking on the subject, Following Faithful Shepherds with Life in View.

All sessions will be open to the public.

WILMOT
. . . defends Hippies

'Movement Corrupted By Mass Media, Teeny-Bop Influx'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Church Editor

The hippies have no clear-cut program of philosophy, says Arthur Wilmot, 30-year-old minister of the Unitarian Church of Victoria.

"But then neither did Jesus or Saint Francis.

"What we call the hippies is an ever-changing movement, as well as a movement corrupted by mass media popularization, weekend hippies and an influx of the teeny-boppers.

"But it is still a social movement with some discernable features, influences and philosophies — a way of life with certain basic on-going characteristics.

●

"I speak of it with some caution because it may well change and evolve into something quite different than what it has been."

Mr. Wilmot (he avoids the term reverend) says the hippie phenomena is more than just a unique dress and language, more than casual sex and long hair, more than drugs and incense.

"It's a many-faceted influence, felt in all strata of society. Its greatest influence has, of course, been on the young. Yet we have all been touched by the hippies.

"The return of the Paisley pattern in clothing was due to the hippies — and the psychedelic dresses and shirts we wear, the music we listen to and the posters that decorate rooms and halls.

●

"The reaction of most adults and even young people to the hippies is varied and predominantly ill-informed. Some of us envy him and despise him because he appeals to that side of us which would like to give up responsibility.

"Naive intellectuals, both young and old, see the hippies as a beautiful people, while the man on the street simply writes them off as irrelevant, or con men, seeking an easy life.

"The hippies attract the alienated youth and the mentally disturbed, like flies to sugar. But they also attract those who see much good in their ethic and way of life."

To understand the hippie phenomena, Mr. Wilmot said, it should not be separated from its predecessors, the beats and the bohemians.

"There has always been a segment of society differing in degree in its philosophy, which forsakes the normal routine of daily life and the values of the majority population.

"The hippies are only the latest and their philosophy, contrary to the aloof intellectualism of the beatniks, is based on a religious mystical love.

"They have the distinction of attracting and influencing more people than ever did the beats or bohemians. Unlike the beats, they have been evangelists, trying to turn on others."

●

"They advocate a value system of simple love — a sharing of housing, food and an acceptance of people without judgment. They point out that, while we condemn sexual love except in rigid guidelines, we think little of waging war, of burning people with napalm, or admiring warships.

"They say making love is better than making war. They have turned sex from something dirty into a natural, beautiful thing. Their art is blatantly sexual, but beautiful, not obscene."

Mr. Wilmot said the hippies advocate fun, as if they were saying to the world, "With all your cars and all your money and all your television, you're not having fun."

"The hippies have fun just playing music, walking in a park, doing the simple things of life that require no money.

"Their value system affirms self-expression, an internal sense of identity as opposed to proper dress, clean-shaven faces and trimmed hair.

●

"They say, 'your clothing is not who you are and appearance makes no difference.' So they adorn sloppy clothes, long hair and beards."

Mr. Wilmot said the hippies have also created the "Now" generation — a system of living in the immediate moment rather than the future.

"They say most people never live because they live only in the future, not in the now."

The minister said society should try to reinforce the hippies' constructive values — their humanization of life, their advocacy of life being "fun" in itself, their condemnation of war and their affirmation of love.

MacQUARRIE
. . . takes city post

'Hello Marriage . . . Goodbye Wife'

By ED GOULD

It will be almost like a home-coming for Rev. E. W. MacQuarrie when he takes charge of Garden City and Wilkinson Road United churches on July 1.

Mr. MacQuarrie is no stranger to Greater Victoria. He was army chaplain at Work Point Barracks from the end of the Korean War until the fall of 1957.

He succeeds Rev. H. R. Whitmore who has accepted a post at the Hope United Church.

For the past three years Mr. MacQuarrie has been with the United Church on Salt Spring Island and, prior to that, in Edmonton.

CAMBRIDGE

Although born in Saskatchewan, he came to British Columbia at an early age. He received his education in Ontario and was graduated from Emmanuel College, University of Toronto, in 1935.

A fellowship at Cambridge followed a year later.

He took charge of a small church in northern Quebec and married shortly after joining the army as a chaplain in Kingston in 1941.

"It was hello marriage, goodbye wife," he says. "Four days later I was shipped overseas and never saw Grace for four years."

Mrs. MacQuarrie joined the RCAF as a flying officer nursing sister and served at three bases in western Canada while he was in England, Africa and Italy.

After the war it was Westminster Church in Saskatoon. But with the start of the Korean War, he was asked to take up chaplain service in the army again.

RETIRED AS MAJOR

When hostilities in Korea ended, it was Work Point, Camp Chilliwack and back overseas as Senior Chaplain with the NATO brigade group in Germany. He retired from the army in 1965 as a major (C.D., M.A., B.D.).

The MacQuarries have four children and their education is a major factor in making the move to Victoria area.

Marilyn graduated from Royal Jubilee School of Nursing this year; Margaret is a third-year student at University of Victoria; and Ainslee expects to take her bachelor of music degree at Uvic after recently passing her Grade 9 in piano at the Royal Conservatory in Toronto.

Son Ian will start Grade 11 this fall.

Mr. MacQuarrie plays the violin for his own pleasure but admits to leading a "swinging" dance orchestra to entertain fellow soldiers while in Britain during the war.

He expects to meet many old friends in his new churches. While at Work Point he took a service at First United Church and one evening met 15 former members from his Saskatoon church!

JEFFREY
. . . Presbyterian first

'Glad It's Over'

TORONTO (CP) — Shirley Jeffery received her bachelor of divinity degree at convocation ceremonies at Knox College.

Later this month she will become the first woman minister of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

Miss Jeffery, 29, will be ordained May 29 in her home town of Appin, near London, Ont., and will have parishes at Englehart and Tomstown, about 90 miles north of North Bay.

"I'll be glad to get this over with and start doing what every normal minister would do," Miss Jeffery said following the Tuesday ceremonies.

Miss Jeffery graduated from the University of Western Ontario in London and Ewart College, a deacon and missionary training school in Toronto, before enrolling in Knox College in 1966.

"It was not until the last two months that I considered going into the ministry," she said.

"I had to do a lot of thinking. It was a difficult decision."

Miss Jeffery said she expects to run into problems and criticism from her fellow clergymen and parishioners because she is a woman.

Asked whether she would ever marry, Miss Jeffery said:

"How would I know? No one's asked me."

Hymn Writers Sought

Can you write a new hymn?

If you can (or have) it may be needed by the joint hymn book revision committee of the Anglican and United churches.

New hymns should be submitted to Ven. G. H. Johnson, 135 Adelaide Street East, Toronto. If accepted, they may be part of a revised hymn book to be published next year by both churches.

"I have already forwarded a number of original compositions from Victoria, and even from England," said Canon Grahame Baker, president of Greater Victoria Council of Churches and an accomplished organist.

"I'm all in favor of new hymns because it is essential for the church to live in its own age, both architecturally, musically and poetically.

"The message of the church never changes, but its presentation must be renewed from age to age."

Canon Baker said swing or syncopated hymns are not wanted for the new hymn book because it must preserve the dignity of worship.

CONCERT TO HELP NEW CHURCH FUND

Don Kyle and his Singers and the Claremont High School Choir have joined forces to help Emmanuel Baptist Church build a new church on Cedar Hill Cross Road.

The church recently acquired a 2⅓-acre site opposite the University of Victoria.

Singers and choir, with Grace Timp at the piano, will give a concert in aid of the building fund at Emmanuel Baptist church hall, 1900 Fernwood, Monday at 8 p.m.

A collection will be taken.

Joint Talks on Rectory Sales

DUNCAN — For the first time in recent history the church committees of St. Peter's Quamichan, and St. Andrew's, Cowichan Station, will meet jointly next month.

Rev. Neil Robinson said the purpose is to discuss the implications for the combined Anglican parish of the synod decision that all rectories be sold and the clergy paid a salary to cover the cost of buying or renting a home.

* * *

Mr. Robinson said the synod resolution does provide an out by stating that where the church and rectory are so closely integrated as to make a separate sale impractical, the house can be rented to the rector.

A brass band concert of sacred music will be presented in the Glad Tidings Tabernacle, Duncan, Friday evening May 31 at 7:30.

It will be the Glad Tidings band from Victoria conducted by Mrs. Chrissie Dunton who is also an accomplished trumpeter.

The Duncan stop will be part of an up-Island tour which will take the band to port Alberni and Campbell River.

Duncan Pentecostal pastor, Rev. Gordon Falconer, says the general public is invited to the concert.

* * *

The church council of Trinity Lutheran Parish, Duncan, announced this week that its annual vacation Bible school will be held beginning July 2.

Theme of this year's program is "Tell The Good News."

The program will run from Tuesday, July 2, to Friday, July 5 the first week and begin again Monday, July 8 and continue to Friday, July 12.

Rev. Baldwin Camin said the closing program will involve all the students who attend either week and will include a presentation to parents and visitors.

He said the purpose of the bible school is that pupils may realize and more fully appreciate the love of God.

Mr. Camin said, "The children are to become more aware of and be willing to obey the will of God and be His messengers. They will be encouraged to give eager and diligent witness to the good news by word and example."

* * *

Sunday at 3 p.m. is the time for the spring choir concert to be held at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Nanaimo.

Lutheran choirs from Redeemer Church, Victoria, Trinity Church, Duncan, and St. Paul's will take part.

Organist Herbert Bruce of Hope Lutheran Church, Victoria, will present a number of selections.

One aim of this first combined concert is to encourage the creation and continuance of choirs at the various Lutheran churches on the Island.

NO BIBLICAL BASIS FOR RULE

Should Christians Condemn Polygamy?

NEW YORK (AP)—Although Christianity has long condemned polygamy, the Bible provides no firm basis for the rule, says an American missionary. He says the church ought to consider modifying it in certain circumstances.

It's an obstacle to the faith in some areas, and to insist that men give up their wives other than one in order to become Christians can "cause much more harm than good," says Rev. Eugene Hillman, a Roman Catholic missionary for 16 years in Tanzania, Africa.

In such regions, where polygamy is an accepted part of the social pattern, the "possible compatibility of Christianity with the practice should be examined, he writes in Concilium, an international theological journal.

Similar views occasionally have been sounded by other veteran missionaries in Africa and parts of Asia, where polygamy is a stabilizing feature of the socio-economic system.

ROUGH FOR WOMEN

So far, with the exception of the Lutheran Church in Liberia, the churches—Protestant, Roman Catholic and Orthodox—have insisted that men with more than one wife become monogamous as a precondition to baptism and full church membership.

"This legalistic procedure is notorious in its lack of Christian consideration for the unfortunate women who are 'sent away,' " says Boston-born Father Hillman.

"Their previously contracted conjugal rights, their social status, and even their relationships with their own children are simply ignored, and it is not always easy, or even possible, for them to become wives again.

"Many of them must choose to live either like nuns or like prostitutes. . . . It is sometimes a cruel fate."

More often, however, he adds, the requirement keeps many people in such societies from responding fully to "the call of Christ."

In such situations, he said, a missionary "is apt to be seen as one who comes to break up the natural family unity and to shatter the existing complex of marriage-related human bonds which serve both the economic interests and social unity of the whole community."

NOT RULED OUT

Noting that the Old Testament clearly permits polygamy—the term referring specifically to a man having more than one wife simultaneously—Father Hillman says the New Testament neither explicitly condones nor forbids it.

Concerning Jesus' reference, in Matthew 19:4-6, to a man and his wife becoming "one flesh," as prescribed in Genesis 2:22.24, Father Hillman says the passage concerns divorce and does not specifically repudiate polygamy.

"By reason of a socially valid polygamous marriage, a man may be conjugally united with each of his wives respectively as 'two in one flesh,' since each wife does become with him 'one flesh,' and this kind of unity is not in itself exclusive by its very nature."

He adds that Jesus' "use of the word 'wife' in the singular does not necessarily exclude polygamy. In the marriage laws of Moses, which the Lord is discussing explicitly in this context, the same singular is used regularly with reference to marriage cases which may be either polygamous or monogamous."

Sociologist's View:

MARRIAGE 'MUST' FOR ALL BISHOPS

NEW YORK (AP) — If Roman Catholic priests eventually are allowed to marry, then there should be "mandatory marriage for the bishops," says Rev. Joseph H. Fichter, Harvard University sociologist.

Father Fichter, director of a recent survey showing 70 per cent of priests under 35 favor ending the church's requirement of celibacy for the clergy, says the change may come sooner than might ordinarily be expected.

"The traditional reluctance to change seems to be giving way to an open-minded willingness to examine new patterns in the life of the church," he writes in the current issue of the lay-edited Catholic magazine, Commonweal.

"I propose that when the reform comes in the church legislation on clerical celibacy there should be optional marriage for the priests but mandatory marriage for the bishops."

Saying that most early popes, bishops and priests were married, he adds: "If the priests marry and the bishops stay single, a new wedge of separation will be introduced into the Christian community."

He said this was the experience of the church's eastern rite, in which married men were allowed to become priests, but were barred from advancement to the episcopacy, and were treated like "second-class" citizens.

"If the reason is to govern the reform of church law allowing a married clergy, it does not seem feasible to exclude bishops and other church dignitaries from the option," he says.

"Indeed, bishops who make legislation ought to take responsibility for implementing the law. Furthermore, from a sociological point of view it seems preferable that bishops be required to marry."

Draft Opponents Get Six-Year Term

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A lawyer for a Roman Catholic priest and an artist sentenced to six years in prison for pouring blood on draft board files said the men would agree not to take part in more civil disobedience in order to gain release while their case is appealed.

Bail was denied Rev. Philip F. Berrigan, 44, a Josephite priest, and Thomas F. Lewis, 28, an artist, after they were sentenced Friday.

Two hours later, both pleaded not guilty when arraigned on charges of seizing and burning records at another selective service office May 17 along with seven other pacifists.

Fred Weisgal, lawyer for the two, said he hopes "to have them out next week," adding that this would be with a stipulation they would not be involved in any more civil disobedience.

CONVICT TWO OTHERS

Also convicted in the blood-pouring case were David Eberhardt, 27, a former teacher, and Rev. James Mengel, 38, an unassigned United Church of Christ minister.

Eberhardt received a three-year sentence and Mengel's sentencing was postponed to give Judge Edward Northrop time "to seek professional advice."

Priests, Nuns Questioned On Invasion

PORT AU PRINCE (AP) — Two Roman Catholic priests and two nuns from the Cap Haitien area of Haiti, where rebel invaders are holding out, are reported being questioned at the palace of President Francois Duvalier, informed sources said today.

Duvalier, excommunicated by the Vatican several years ago, is reported to have had the four Roman Catholics flown from Cap Haitien, on the North coast, on Thursday, three days after about 35 of his enemies landed there by plane.

Earlier Haitian troops took over a radio station near Cap Haitien which was operated by U.S. and British Protestant missionaries. The government-controlled press in Port au Prince said that the station was co-operating with the invaders.

EXPELLED CANADIANS

Duvalier was excommunicated several years ago after expelling two French prelates from Haiti. In 1964, he expelled all 18 members of a Canadian Jesuit mission. The Vatican has accused Duvalier of trying to impose voodooism on Haiti's Roman Catholics.

Sources close to Duvalier's regime said 15 to 20 members of the invasion force are still at large and have seized a village about 25 miles east of Cap Haitien despite earlier government claims that the invasion had been smashed.

The sources said a force of army troops and militiamen were surrounding the captured village.

Observers believe the invaders may have been trying to escape into the Dominican Republic, about 30 miles to the east.

Port au Prince remained calm. Only limited security measures at the presidential palace were visible and no mass troop movement has been detected in the city.

4-H Council Post To Sig Peterson

Sig B. Peterson, director of development and extension branch, B.C. department of agriculture, was elected to the executive of the Canadian Council of 4-H Clubs at the council's 37th annual meeting in Halifax.

Mr. Peterson in the past several years has taken an active part in promoting the 4-H movements, and was one of the instigators of the 4-H exchange programs.

Ralph E. Cudmore of Oakville, Ont., was elected president of the council. C. L. Usher, deputy minister of the Alberta Youth Department, was named vice-president.

Concert Wednesday

A concert will be presented by the Silver Threads Choral Group at the main branch, No. 4 Centennial Square at 1:30 p.m. on Wednesday.

NEWEST ocean racer on the Victoria scene and an entry in the June 1 Swiftsure classic is this 37-foot Warrior class boat, Potlach, owned by Wally Meakes.

'Voice' to Become Part of the Action

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

For the past decade, Victorians have relied on the familiar "Voice of Swiftsure" to bring them race reports over radio.

But this year the "Voice" — veteran yachtsman Humphrey Golby — will abandon his shore station for a berth on one of Victoria's newest ocean racers, the 37-foot Warrior class Potlatch.

"Hump" Golby has been involved with Swifsture since its earliest days, when a grand total of four boats entered in each of the years 1930, 1931 and 1934.

GOLBY
. . . crews on Potlatch

The Swiftsure Lightship Classic was conceived as an "Open Sea Venture," to please the owners of PIYA big boats who were bored with racing short triangle courses.

In 1934, Humphrey crewed on the winning Seattle boat, Ray Cooke's newly-launched Circe, which was built as a successor to the Claribel, winner of the inaugural 1930 race. (Circe was campaigned in recent years by the builder's grandson).

After the war, Hump went along on Hugh Wallace's Buccaneer (as did Ned Ashe), and on the Diamond Head.

It was during the early fifties on Diamond Head (which had a good radio-telephone), that Humphrey's "Voice of Swiftsure" career was born.

On one race, they arranged to broadcast from sea to Dr. Ben Nickells, a "ham" enthusiast, who monitored and taped the reports. The end result was rather garbled, as in those days there was only one channel and everyone was on it simultaneously!

A few years later, when Island Tug and Barge donated a press boat for newsmen and photographers, Humphrey relayed directly from the tug, transmitting to a Victoria radio station. One trip, a particularly rough ride, he found himself broadcasting every 20 minutes for 12 hours over four different networks to Portland, Bellingham, Vancouver, and Victoria.

Humphrey Golby is well qualified to speak of ships and sailing men in this area.

He raced his first PIYA regatta in 1922 when, in company with Bob Blandy, he sailed a Star boat to Seattle for the competition. (This was the Boykin, built at the same time as the venerable Mintaka, which is still raced in Cadboro Bay by Dr. Roy Johnson). Way back then, you sailed your open boat to and from regattas around the PIYA circuit.

Humphrey and his 14 foot dinghy Tern were part of the famous 1920's RVYC fleet which included Don Hayes' Kingfisher, Commander Hotham's Puffin, and Ned Ashe's Vera. (All the boats were named after sea birds).

More recently, Hump and his Blue Chip have been a mainstay of the Davidson dingh frostbite fleet.

Next weekend, Humohrey Golby will join skipper Wally Meakes on board the Potlatch (a sister ship to Frank Bush's Concubine) along with Mel Steffans, Doug Bond and Roly Hill.

However, his "Voice of Swiftsure" will be heard in the Friday evening pre-race ceremonies in the Inner Harbor. Humphrey will give the roll call, announcing each boat, its owner, club affiliation, and data on past performance.

But his whereabouts for the rest of the weekend will be for another broadcaster to relate!

School Bands Lead Off

The first of three school band concerts in Beacon Hill Park will be presented Sunday by the Victoria Secondary School Band under the direction of Axel Waldhaus.

The Central Junior Secondary School Band, also directed by Mr. Waldhaus, will take part in the same program. The concert starts at 2:30 p.m.

The Lansdowne Junior Secondary School Band, directed by John Boel, will play the following Sunday, June 2, and the Gordon Head Junior Secondary School Band, under Emile Michaux, on June 9.

H. J. Bigsby, supervisor of music, said such concerts have been well received in past years and serve a dual purpose, giving the public an opportunity of hearing the school program in free concerts and providing the student groups an opportunity to perform a public service.

The Victoria Secondary School Band has just returned from a successful tour of the mainland and Seattle area and Sunday's concert will include a number of selections performed on that visit, he said.

Among them are Suppe's "Pique Dame Overture" and Offenbach's "Ballet Parisien" to a Tijuana Brass Medley.

The Central Junior Secondary School Band has just returned from a visit to the Port Alberni area.

'LEVY WOULD DOUBLE'

Warning Issued On Bylaw Defeat

LADYSMITH—Ratepayers in School District 67 were warned Friday that defeat of the $1,000,000 referendum could cost them twice as much in annual capital levies.

Finance chairman Bob Edwards of the school board said, "If the ratepayers defeat this referendum they will really find out what taxes are."

Indications are the referendum next Saturday will pass.

Two previous referendums were defeated because they sought to consolidate secondary education at Ladysmith.

Chemainus voters came down heavily in favor of retaining their own high school.

The new referendum proposes to develop the senior secondary schools at Ladysmith and Chemainus simultaneously.

Chemainus Ratepayers' Association went on record as unanimously in favor of the referendum.

Trustee Edwards said the facilities covered by the referendum are urgently needed.

If the money can't be raised by referendum the board would have no choice but to make annual capital levies, he said.

He said money raised in this manner was not shareable with the provincial government and education would therefore cost the local ratepayer twice as much.

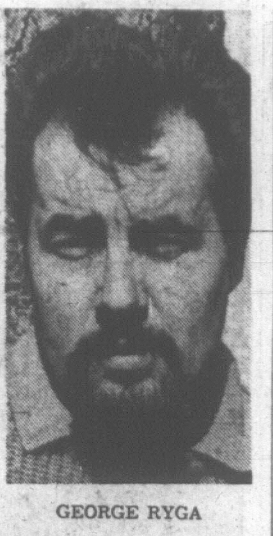
Defeat of the referendum would force the board to lease more portable classrooms and laboratories.

A special board meeting decided to ask both Ladysmith town council and North Cowichan municipal council for public statements of support for the referendum.

School board secretary R. W. Ovenden said Friday the education department has agreed to the development of both senior schools only with the proviso the total cost does not exceed that for the complete development of one school.

Total shareable cost of the referendum is $1,046,900.

Cost to the electors will be 2.7 mills.



GEORGE RYGA

'Rita Joe' to Open Nation Arts Centre

By JAN GOULD

GANGES — A play by a British Columbia playwright will open Canada's National Arts Centre in Ottawa in 1969.

"The Ecstasy of Rita Joe" by George Ryga of Summerland first was performed at the Vancouver Playhouse Theatre last year and received good reviews from local, Toronto and New York critics.

Arrangements for the Playhouse Theatre Company to take the play to Ottawa are still being negotiated. Playwright Ryga is pleased that this play, concerning lack of communication between Indians and non-Indians and the gradual disintegration of a young, rural Indian girl in the city, has been chosen.

OTHERS INTERESTED

Vacationing on Salt Spring Island, the 36-year-old writer says that interest has been shown in this play by European agents and by the Tyrone Guthrie Theatre in Minneapolis.

"The Ottawa performance precludes a national television performance of the play as Canadian rights are tied up," he said.

The Alberta-born writer is one of Canada's few playwrights able to obtain enough commissioned work to make an adequate annual income.

Married, with four children, he's a good example of the goal-oriented writer who hasn't asked others how to write.

After years of disappointments, he finally found receptive audiences five years ago when his television plays such as "Indian," "Man Alive" and "Two Soldiers" were produced.

Author of two books of fiction, "The Hungry Hills" and "Ballad of a Stone-Picker," he's written numerous plays for radio and television. Currently he's concentrating on stage plays and is carrying out another commission for the Vancouver Playhouse.

He recently was the recipient of a Canada Council grant which will be used for travel to Dieppe and research there. The results of the research will be the basis for another play which will involve Vancouver director John Stark.

Ryga considers Toronto actress Frances Hyland, who played the lead female role in "Ecstasy of Rita Joe," as one of the most dedicated of all performers he's met.

"She rehearsed and rehearsed," he recalled. "One day when I walked into her dressing room I noticed that all her own clothes were neatly hung up. The clothes she wore as Rita Joe were slung on a chair and heaped on the floor. The whole essence of Rita Joe's character seemed to be there. I knew then that Miss Hyland had found the core of the role.

"She had become Rita Joe."

Ladysmith Endorses Renewal Study

LADYSMITH — The town council here has decided to invest $500 in having a professional engineer make a preliminary study on a possible urban renewal scheme.

Council has engaged the firm of Willis, Cunliffe and Tait Ltd.

The study will include a review of existing bylaws relating to community planning and a study of traffic and parking.

In council debate Ald. Jim Moore asked, "Will this study involve just a couple of downtown blocks or the whole town?"

Mayor Kay Grouhel said this was a matter for council to decide but she thought it would be worthwhile having a development plan for the whole town.

Clerk Jim Runciman said basically the study was preparation of an argument to persuade the federal and provincial governments to provide substantial financial help for local renovation projects.

In April a public meeting of property owners in Ladysmith's business district indicated considerable interest in an urban renewal project for the downtown area.

Gulf Stops Scheduled

Victoria Flying Services Ltd. will begin regular passenger flights between Victoria and Vancouver, with stops in the Gulf Islands, in about three weeks.

A company official said today the service will start as soon as its six-passenger de Havilland Beavers are equipped with regulation radios

The company was granted a licence for the service by the air transport board on Tuesday.

The air line is licenced to stop at Ganges, Bedwell Harbor, Lyall Harbor, and at Mayne and Galiano islands, according to demands of passengers.

Fares for the service have not been set, but the company suggested to the board a charge of $12 from downtown Victoria to downtown Vancouver, or $16 return, and $7 to either city from the Gulf Islands.

Victoria Daily Times
VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, MAY 25, 1968—PAGE 23

Arthur Mayse

Up two flights of stairs Friday noon to a large, gaunt floor where a dream is in process of hatching. The place is Broad Street Centre, which offers Victoria boys and girls the oasis of their own that they so badly need.

The centre opened casually on May 2, when, with two months rent paid on a trial basis, its pioneers moved in. They had four walls and a roof, something over 2,000 square feet of floor space, 10 tables and a bunch of chairs, and nothing much else except high hopes.

But even before the soft-drink dispenser was installed and a coffee pot procured for the venerable kitchen range, kids began drifting up from Victoria's inhospitable downtown streets.

At 11 a.m. today, the centre marked its official start with an open house for young, old and in-between. This will continue until people stop turning up, says co-organizer Alan Elford. If you can't make it, this evening, you are cordially invited to drop in tomorrow. The address, 1048 Broad Street.

If you do, kindly note the "give-box" just inside the door. The last of the centre funds went to provide the makings of the open house.

University student Elford and young-marrieds Jack and Pat Minard, with whom the idea originated, accept that fact cheerfully.

★

"The kids themselves are the project," said Alan Elford, bearded and earnest. "This is a place where they can come. So can any adult who wants to take out a card."

There's to be no regimentation, and no programming other than what centre-users may eventually decide they wish to undertake. It's going to be left to them: they are under no pressure to organize—a fact that I find refreshing.

At this point, I asked about rules. As they stand, here they are:

No alcohol, no drugs.

No staying overnight (the hours are 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.).

Fire escape to be used only in emergency and no one allowed on the roof.

I might add here that "responsibility" was a word that figured any number of times in our conversation. The centre has to prove itself to the community, and especially to the parents of those who come to it.

★

For a few days after the centre opened, the atmosphere was a touch too relaxed. Pilfering went on; money and minor possessions turned up missing. However, with the first issue of membership cards, that particular worry ended. Members were told that the centre was theirs and that they would simply be stealing from themselves, also that the place was to be run on the honor system.

There are, however, grim worries of a sort that only your help can allay.

I asked what in particular was needed, and got a swift answer: "Everything!"

This is a very slight exaggeration. The girl members have brought material and are making curtains for the currently bare windows.

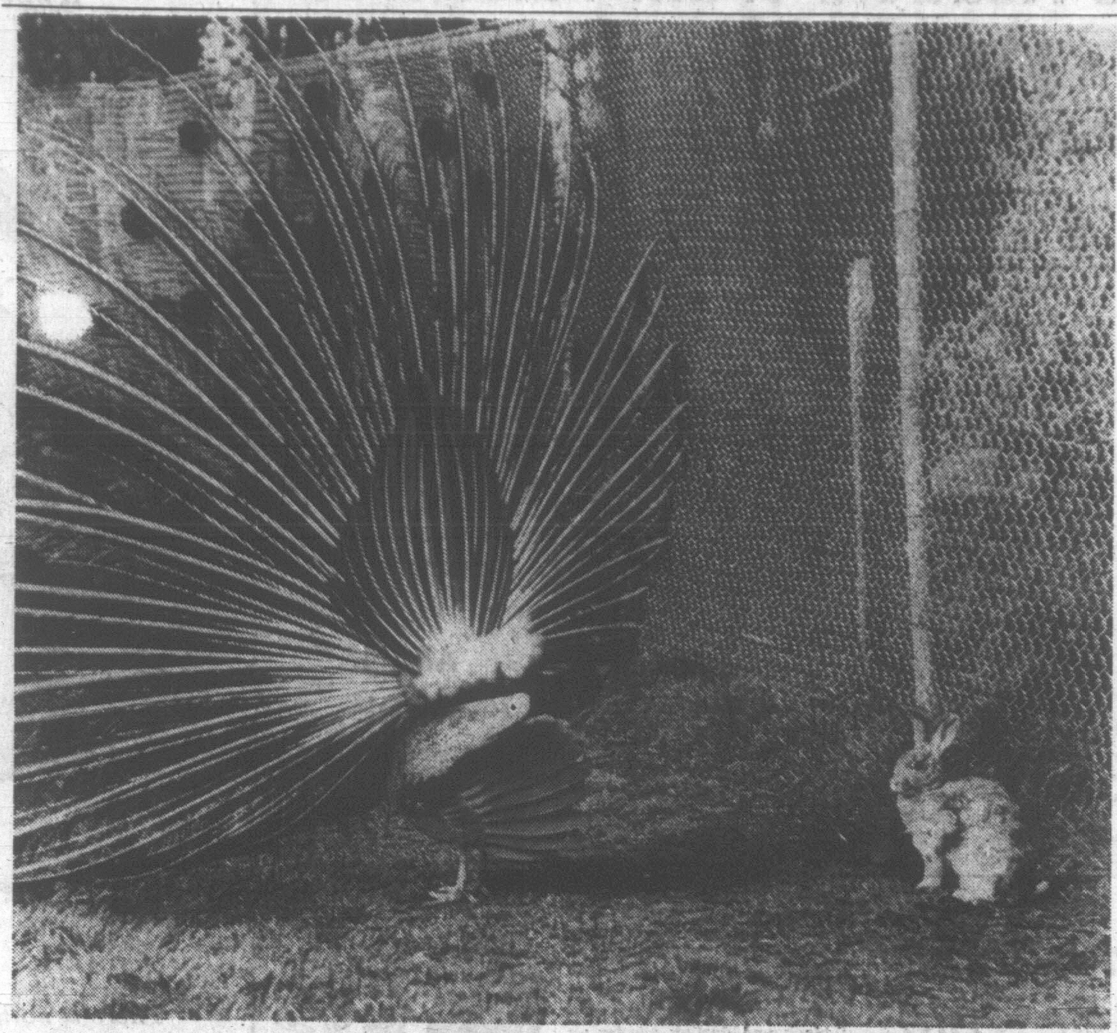
But the centre needs old chairs and couches, and an assist from any good-guy trucking outfit that will deliver them to its address.

It needs a free lawyer to steer it through such problems as it may encounter. It can use lumber and nails, mops, brooms and ashtrays.

And most of all, it needs money, money, money. In what has all the earmarks of a tough summer coming up, a lot of the kids can barely manage the $2 membership fee. The centre control committee is going to have bills to meet—among them a $50 hydro account due on June 6. It would also like to be able to afford a phone.

The thing to remember here is that these young ones aren't sitting around waiting for the city to provide those much-needed facilities for them. They've gone ahead on their own, with such backing as their persuasions could win. There's no swimming pool, no luxury, but they don't care about that.

As Alan Elford points out, the kids are the project—and a better one you'll never find.



PLAYING IT COOL at the Beacon Hill Park zoo is this brainy bunny. After all, when you're wearing a full-length rabbit fur coat, and the summer sun begins to shine, things get a bit steamy. Fortunately that preening peacock is good for something more than introducing television shows. His brilliant plumage provide a shady patch. Trouble is you have to follow him around. GREATER VOICE

Teachers Want Better Conditions

JOHN E. SMITH
. . . GVTA president

John E. Smith, 42, a social studies and general business teacher at Oak Bay Senior Secondary School, has been elected president of the 1,200-member Greater Victoria Teachers' Association.

Other officers are Georgina Watchorn, first vice-president; Ross Regan, second vice-president; Helen Ruckle, secretary; and Margaret McCurrach, treasurer.

The executive's five members-at-large are Horace Dawson, Rod Sample, Mrs. Margaret Seens, Mrs. Peggy Novak and Mrs. Paula Tuttle.

The new executive takes office Aug. 1.

Retiring president Mrs. Kory Regan will represent the association on the B.C. Teachers' Federation's representative assembly along with her husband, Ross, and Les Isaacson.

SECOND TERM

It will be Mr. Smith's second term as GVTA president. He held the post seven years ago.

Both he and Mrs. Regan said their association would join a province-wide effort by teachers this year to press for more effective teaching and learning conditions.

To do this teachers will have to take a greater responsibility than they have in directing the course of education, said the president-elect.

One aim is to provide pupils with as much individual attention as possible.

CHANGE RATIO

"Obviously, to do this the ratio of teachers to youngsters has to be improved."

Mr. Smith said he hoped the association would also be able to foster resource-centred schools, that is schools built around well-stocked libraries amply supplied with extensive visual teaching aids such as movies and TV video tapes.

"We've got a long way to go in Victoria in this respect."

Fight Continued On Three Floors

A man who pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance by fighting was fined $50 today.

Court was told Charles Horne, 3436 Bethune Avenue, was involved in a fight on the third floor of a downtown hotel Friday. The fight continued down three flights of stairs to the hotel lobby.

28 Earn Awards

Twenty-eight teen-agers were recently presented certificates for completing the Red Cross Society "Care in the Home" teen nursing course.

The three-month course was held Saturday mornings at Red Cross House.

ATTENDING CONVENTION

Managing Editor Of Times Dies

By PETE LOUDON

Managing editor of The Times, Andrew Leslie "Les" Fox died early today at Jasper while attending an editors' conference.

His death, four days after his 60th birthday, was apparently caused by a heart attack.

He had arrived at Jasper with his wife Christine Thursday night. Funeral arrangements are pending. McCall Bros. are in charge.

The loss of "Les" Fox came as a numbing blow to newspaper colleagues throughout Canada who revered him as a master of his trade and a champion of newspaper integrity.

He was born in 1908 in Bradford, England, and came to Victoria with his parents about 1911. He was a Times carrier while attending Oaklands, Sir James Douglas and Victoria High schools. He joined the paper as a cub in 1926.

Under the tutelage of pioneer editor B. C. "Benny" Nicholas he covered every news beat with a dedication that won him appointment as legislative reporter in 1934.

LOVE OF POLITICS

He doubled as a stringer for the Sun of Vancouver and developed a love of politics that soon made him an expert in his field. But when the Second World War intervened he left the gallery for the RCAF, serving almost three years overseas as a flight control officer, mainly with Six Bomber Group Command.

Following the war he was employed full time by The Sun until 1951, served as gallery president and as Island correspondent for Time magazine. Then (former) publisher of the Times J. Stuart Keate offered him the post he was to hold for almost 17 years.

"In my view he was one of the best hard-news men in Canada, a great fellow at the personal level and a man you could always depend on," said Mr. Keate today in Vancouver.

REFUSED 'TIES'

Mr. Keate, Sun publisher, recalled that Mr. Fox refused personal tie-ups with local organizations to avoid any loss of objectivity. He asked the same of his news staff. His only exceptions to this rule were an honorary post as Sandown Jockey Club steward and his almost annual attendance at the Canadian Managing Editors' Conference.

Tribute was paid to Mr. Fox at opening of today's business meeting of the Jasper conference. Robert D. Owen of Kingston, CMEC president, said Mr. Fox was one of the most faithful members—"We all know and remember him with great affection."

Bruce Hutchison, Sun editor and for many years editor of The Times, had shared his boyhood with Mr. Fox then served with him in the press gallery.

'ALL RESPECTED HIM'

"He was one of the finest newspaper men I ever knew," said Mr. Hutchison today. "He had integrity, honesty and competence and always knew more about the political situation than anyone else. Every politician, regardless of party, respected him."

Mr. Hutchison said Mr. Fox as managing editor was never able to hide his warmth of character and "everyone who worked for him was his friend."

Mr. Hutchison recalled Mr. Fox's rare attribute in newspaper men — a mathematical mind which made him expert in analysing provincial budgets.

Mr. Fox is survived by his wife Christine, who recently retired from the position of assistant provincial librarian and by a son Michael in Montreal. There is one granddaughter, Lesley, and a brother, E. F. "Ted" Fox in Montreal. He was predeceased by his only sister, Mrs. Elaine Lloyd of Victoria.

CLOSURE IMMINENT — NDP

An announcement concerning the closing down of a "major institution" in this area will be made Monday night, says Esquimalt-Saanich NDP candidate Don Johannessen.

Mr. Johannessen, who will make the statement at a meeting to officially kick off his campaign, said the closure will affect the Conservative vote in his riding.

The 31-year-old Saanich school teacher will also make a general policy statement to supporters during the meeting at campaign headquarters, 303 Brunswick Place, at 8.

WEEKEND FOR BROLLIES

Wind and rain are on the way for Sunday.

The weatherman forecasts clouds in the morning with rain arriving in the afternoon. There will be little change in temperature.

Winds will be from the southwest at 15 miles an hour, rising to 25 miles an hour on the open waters of Juan de Fuca Strait.

Pure Air Lovers Get Ready! Sundays Will Be YOUR Day

If you haven't experienced it, you can't have any idea what it's like to be smoked out by Oak Bay's incurable incinerator stokers.

They start early in the morning, let the odorous contraptions smoulder all day—and then invariably fire them up in the evening so they waft about smoke and pungent smells all night.

But relief is in sight for the poor put-upon householder who prefers pure air.

Oak Bay officials are warning citizens a bylaw passed Nov. 6 prohibits fires in incinerators or "in the open air" ON SUNDAYS BETWEEN JUNE 1 AND SEPT. 30.

The ban also is in effect Dominion Day and Labor Day.

"Our position is that a householder who has improved his home by building a patio or sundeck—and had his taxes raised because of it—has a right to enjoy the outdoors at least one day a week without his neighbors fouling the atmosphere," an official said.

It should also be noted that dumping of foodstuffs on compost heaps—a sure-fire way to attract rats—is also frowned upon by the municipality.

Work Starts On Major Road

McKenzie Widening Gets Green Light

The biggest single road construction program ever undertaken in Saanich has started.

It will take at least two years and cost an estimated $1,152,000 to construct and reconstruct McKenzie Avenue between Douglas Street in the west and Gordon Head Road in the east.

Completion of the project will provide a major east-west road in an area lacking good cross-town connections. It will also relieve heavy traffic on Cedar Hill Cross Road between the Oak Bay boundary and the Quadra area.

Formal announcement of the release of provincial government money, long-awaited and pressed for by Saanich municipality, was made late Friday.

But Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis disclosed today that initial rough work started in the last few days, in anticipation of the announcement, at a point where McKenzie joins Cedar Hill Cross Road.

"We will push ahead with full crews now," he said.

Saanich ratepayers approved borrowing $951,000 for the work in a December, 1965, referendum. The highways department approved the road as a secondary highway in October, 1966, meaning it would share 50-50 in most costs or a saving of between $300,000 and $400,000 in the amount needed to be borrowed.

LAND ACQUIRED

Saanich has acquired nearly all the land needed for the rebuilding program during the last 2½ years and requested release of provincial money, in accordance with procedure, in the middle of 1967.

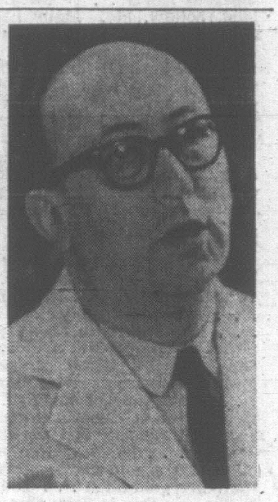
The 1968 portion of the program will cover that section of the road from immediately west of Quadra to Cedar Hill Road at an estimated cost of $500,000, said Mayor Curtis. Provincial share is $200,000.

This part of the over-all program stretches 1½ miles.

In the section slightly west of Quadra to just east of Century Road, construction standards will be higher with provision for sidewalks, curbs and storm drains.

The balance will be two lanes similar to that section built last year through the University of Victoria campus, said Mayor Curtis.

It was also announced the highways department has approved a grant of $50,000 as its share of reconstruction this year of part of Quadra, north from its intersection with McKenzie to a point just short of Saanich Road.



APPOINTED acting dean of arts and sciences at the University of Victoria is linguistics professor Dr. Jean-Paul Vinay. A Parisian, Dr. Vinay came to Uvic two years ago from the University of Montreal. He succeeds former acting dean Robert Wallace, now acting president. The appointment, effective July 1, is for one year.

Ask The Times

Q. In a 15-mile radius of the city of Victoria, is the population greater or less than 100,000 persons, including, of course, the city itself?

A. The population of the area encompassed by a 15-mile radius is in excess of 150,000 persons. The breakdown by district, from the 1966 census, is as follows: Central Saanich, 3,640; Saanich, 58,845; Esquimalt, 12,891; Victoria, 57,453; Oak Bay, 18,123.

Q. Can you please inform me where I might obtain the regulations regarding the renting of suites—for example the giving of notice for vacation or raise in rents?—D.H.

A. The Victoria Better Business Bureau informs us there is no information of this nature available at the moment save for the Landlords and Tenant Act itself. However, a pamphlet is being prepared and should be available in the near future.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

BACCALAUREATE SERVICE

Today's Youth Engaged In 'Reading-Writhing'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Due to lack of interest Tomorrow has been cancelled!

That, said Very Rev. Lewis McLean, DD, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, is the attitude of many Hippie-minded groups today.

They live only for the moment.

"Yet Jesus offers a very meaningful tomorrow," Dr. McLean told the graduating class of the University of Victoria at a Baccalaureate service in First United Church Friday night.

"He gives a meaning to life. This young man — only 33 when he died — says to the youth of the world: I am the way. Follow me. And, because of what He stands for, Jesus belongs to the adolescent revolution of today.

●

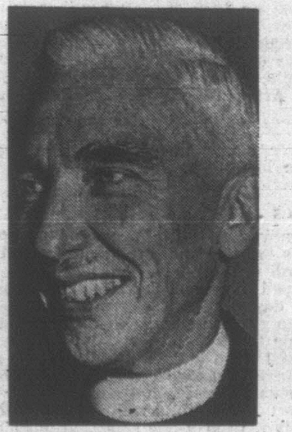
"He does not stand for the status quo."

The last rays of evening slanted through the high windows of the white-walled church as parents, relatives and friends crowded the floor and galleries for a simple service of dedication.

The graduates, in their black gowns and mortar boards, were massed in front of the flower-decked altar with the faculty of the university.

Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George Pearkes sat in the front pew. And, facing them from the platform, were Dr. Malcolm Taylor, president of the university, and clergy of many city churches in their robes of assorted colors.

In a prayer of invocation, Rev. Robert Morris spoke of "this milestone of graduation."



LEWIS McLEAN
. . . 'follow me'

Bishop Remi De Roo, head of the Roman Catholic Church on Vancouver Island, offered a prayer for the graduates, that their efforts would be "to the renown of our fair city and the building of Canada's nationhood."

Melvyn L. MacDonald, president of the graduating class, read the Old Testament lesson "But Where shall wisdom be found?"

●

Dr. Taylor read the New Testament lesson: "Love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you."

Anglican Archbishop Harold Sexton gave the benediction: "The Lord bless you and keep you . . ."

In his sermon, Dr. McLean said the present age is one of Pot and LSD; of a generation unhappy with material success.

He said Keith Richard of the singing group, The Rolling Stones, had said:

"We want to strip away all cant, and strive for truth. Tell it to me, baby; tell it the way it is!"

Dr. McLean said youth's frustration and anger is expressed in many agonized demonstrations and protests.

"They seem to be engaged in reading, writhing and arithmetic," he said.

"There is a revolt against authority because of youth's search for meaning. And this is a secular age in which religious sanctions are no longer thought to be necessary.

●

"As a minister, I am identified with the establishment — a nasty word — and I am expected to cry Long Live the Status Quo!

"I am on the spot, too, because on the modern campus, there is no place for formal or organized religion. Yet I am convinced that Jesus Christ gives meaning to life and I believe many will return to that faith."

The service opened with a solemn procession led by ex-mayor J. B. Wilson, chancellor of the university.

Behind came the clergy, members of the board of governors and senate, the university faculty and the graduates. The processional hymn, Praise, my soul, the King of Heaven, was followed by Now Thank We All Our God and Rise up, O Men of God.

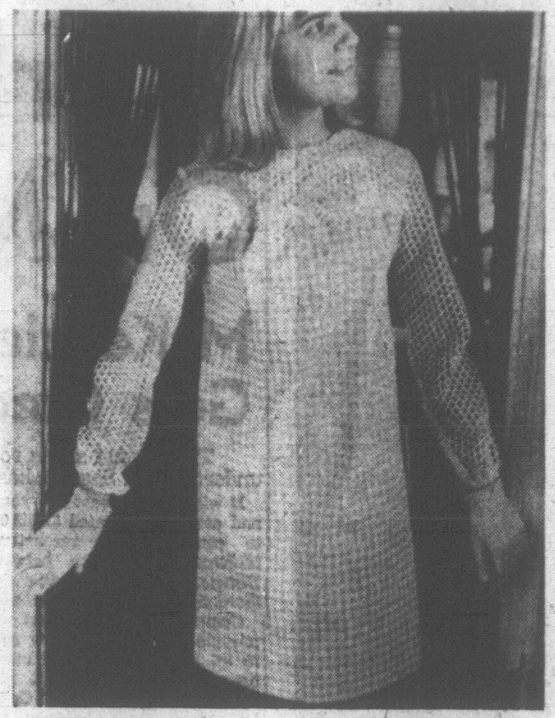
Questions Readers Want Answered



Pretty Party Dress . . . Candy pink cotton bonded to an acetate lining is ready for a party in this pre-teen dress by Sandy Shaw. Graniteville's Cobond process was used for bonding. Bonded apparel is becoming increasingly popular due to its practicability.

"The Question Box"

Dear Fashion Editor:

I sometimes see the term "Bonded Fabric" in fashion magazines and I wonder if you can explain to me what it means?

Curious Reader.

Dear Reader:

Bonding results when two fabrics are adhered together through the use of adhesives under heat and pressure or through the use of the flame method. Bonded fabrics offer greater shape-retention, comfort, durability and warmth where needed. Bonded apparel resists wrinkling, has a smooth, new appearance, is easily cut and sewn and requires little care.

Damaske

Dear Mrs. Damaske:

It seems today that everything comes in aerosol containers. I must admit it is a handy way of dispensing some things but I feel sprayed-on dusting powder is going a bit far. . . . What do you think?

R.M.C.

Dear R.M.C.:

I like spray containers, although one has to be prepared for the fact that it is usually a more expensive way to purchase things. I am no authority on dusting powder of any kind as I use it only on my feet. I wear quite a lot of black and dusting powder on the body just does not work out. I have the spray dusting powder for my feet and I love it . . . it gets between my toes.

Dear Mrs. Damaske:

My husband, two teen-age daughters and myself are going to Palm Springs for a month after school is out. We know it will be hot but we have relatives there whom we want to see and we can only go when the children are on holiday. We have never been before. Should we take any knits at all?

Mrs. Graves.

Dear Mrs. Graves:

The only knits that I would suggest are cardigan sweaters which can be thrown over the shoulders. Most places are air-conditioned and as we are not accustomed to this change of temperature its not unusual for visitors from here to get a nasty cold.

Take at least two swim suits apiece . . . shorts or culottes are cool and plenty of cotton dresses. It will be hot but if you do not try to do too much, dress loosely and eat lightly you can be comfortable. I spent a little time in Palm Springs last July and I enjoyed the hot, dry desert air.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Pawing Husband Needs to Be Told

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What does a woman do when her husband won't keep his hands off her in public? Whenever George (not his real name) and I go out, he is forever slapping or pinching my behind, and he doesn't care who sees him. It is very embarrassing.

Also when we go visiting, he keeps at least one hand on or above my knee the entire time we are there. It has gotten so I am ashamed to visit our friends. When we go to a movie, it's just terrible. I have to keep fighting him off soon as the lights go out because his hands begin to roam.

George and I have been married for two years now, and he has done this ever since we were married. I have tried to talk some sense into him, but he laughs it off and says I should be glad he finds me so desirable. I can't laugh it off. It's too embarrassing. What should I do?

PERTURBED.

DEAR PERTURBED: Bad taste is no laughing matter, and your husband is exhibiting bad taste. Warn him beforehand that you will remove his roaming hands if he paws, pats or pinches you in public. Then, gently but firmly do so. I would not ordinarily advise a woman to deliberately sit beyond her husband's reach in public—but in your case I will make an exception.

DEAR ABBY: I've got a problem that beats all. I am 32 years old, divorced, with two children.

My mother won't let me go out with men. She says it's disgraceful for a divorced woman to be seen with men. (My mother is a widow and I live with her.)

I can't stay in the house 24 hours a day. I'll go mad! It has been like this for four years. What can I do? Sign me

A "PRISONER."

DEAR "PRISONER": I don't know what your financial circumstances are, but there must be a way for you to leave your mother's bed and board and make a life of your own. You may have to make some material sacrifices, but it's preferable to being a prisoner. If you can't see this, at age 32, stay where you are. Your freedom might bring you more problems than your restrictions.

DEAR ABBY: I am 15 and I like this boy named Ricky, but he likes me only as a friend and that isn't what I want. I want him to like me as a girl friend. Ricky likes another girl right now as a girl friend but she isn't at all cute, makes average grades, has long hair (that's usually greasy) and everybody says she doesn't have as good a personality as I have. Besides that, she tries to act sexy. Who do you think deserves him? And how can I get him away from her?

SECOND FIDDLE.

DEAR SECOND FIDDLE: Regardless of who "deserves" him, the other girl has him, so be satisfied with second fiddle. (At least you're part of the orchestra.) And don't knock the competition or you'll never get a "beau."

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069.

TWO-DAY CONVENTION ENDS TODAY

Business and Professional Clubs Hold Seminar on Roles of Women

A seminar on Women's Leadership Roles was a highlight of the 20th annual provincial conference of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs of B.C. and the Yukon Territories, held at Pinewoods Lodge in Manning Park over the holiday weekend.

Mrs. Elizabeth Aulin of Kamloops presided. One hundred delegates attended.

Mrs. Margaret Campbell of Vancouver, past national president, was moderator of the seminar, and participants were Mrs. Patricia Jordan, MLA; Mrs. Eileen Dailly, MLA, Miss Adelaide Evans of Penticton and Mrs. Nell Horth of Sidney.

Miss Evans spoke of the work of Business and Professional clubs, their contributions to national and provincial governments, and especially their suggestions to improve legislation which affects women.

She urged clubwomen to take part in community affairs, especially in educational fields. She challenged women to keep pace with the changing world, be effective in work on behalf of women, meet new ideas and changing procedures, and plan for a future that provides participation and leadership in all phases of Canadian life.

Mrs. Jordan and Mrs. Dailly spoke of their participation and their particular interests in political life. Both chose a life dedicated to serving a wider field of interests than those of their own family sphere.

Mrs. Horth discussed women's role in municipal aspects of civil life. She spoke of the role of pressure groups, and of the need to distinguish between those with selfish interests and those genuinely concerned with the needs of the municipality.

Municipal policies, she said, must be divorced from party politics.

Under the chairmanship of Miss Elizabeth Forbes of Victoria, a study of the various clauses in the Declaration of Human Rights was recommended to the 25 clubs. It was suggested that resolutions be drawn up for presentation to the 1969 gathering.

During discussion of the 1968 International Year of Human Rights designated by the United Nations, it was decided that seminars in regional club districts would be a means of educating not only members but the community as well.

It was suggested that in the field of work there should be a standardization of jobs so that applicants, either male or female, could be judged on their ability to fill the position.

Mrs. Phoebe Noble, assistant professor of mathematics at the University of Victoria, was guest speaker at the banquet. She spoke on Canadian Women Tomorrow, emphasizing that women must be willing to advance in a rapidly changing world. Women cannot afford to sit back, but must learn to think progressively, she said.

Newly elected officers for the 1968-69 Board were Miss Ruth Adams of Victoria, president; Mrs. Lois Haggen, Grand Forks, first vice-president; Miss Margaret Hansen, Vancouver, second vice-president; Mrs. M. Laughlin, Victoria, secretary, and Mrs. K. Fleming, Victoria, treasurer.

It was decided to hold the 1969 conference at Williams Lake.

Attending from Victoria, Oak Bay and Sidney clubs were Miss Ruth Adams, Miss Elizabeth Forbes, Miss Elizabeth Clement, Mrs. Bessie Ward, Miss Flossie Lawrence, Miss Irmgard McMaster, Mrs. Sally Hammill, Mrs. M. Laughlin, Mrs. Barbara Miskiman, Mrs. Enid Webster, Mrs. Lillian Wright, Mrs. Beryl Davidson, Mrs. Geraldine Simpson, Miss Margaret Mahoney, Mrs. Nell Horth, Mrs. Marjorie Smith and Mrs. Dorothy Kynaston.

Membership Tea

Executive members assisted convener Mrs. P. Hartnell when a membership tea of the Catholic Women's League was held in the parish hall of St. Andrew's Cathedral. The head table was centred with white candles in silver candelabra and an antique silver bowl, filled with an arrangement of colorful tulips and bridal wreath. The hall was decorated with baskets of geraniums and fuchsias. Mrs. J. Paterson sang two solos. Honor guests were Bishop Remi J. de Roo, Msgr. M. O'Connell, Fr. P. Quigley and Rev. Sister Theodoric of St. Ann's Academy.

90th Birthday

A luncheon was held Sunday in the Ingraham Hotel to celebrate the 90th birthday of Mr. John MacDonald, 2557 Vancouver Street. The luncheon was arranged by his brother, Mr. Murdoch MacDonald, and their niece, Mrs. J. A. Baxter, who acted as hostess. Also present were Capt. Charles Wilson, Major James Dewar, Pipe-Major Peter George and Mrs. George, Mr. and Mrs. F. Bertram and Mr. A. J. MacCreadie of California. Capt. Wilson piped in the honor guest. After the luncheon the guests were entertained in the MacDonald home. Pipe-Major Peter George played the pipes.

Poses Problems for Models

NEW YORK (AP) — Are females sexier when they are wrapped or unwrapped?

Rudi Gernreich who started a trend toward leaving part of them unwrapped, has tied up pretty packages for fall.

Indeed, some of his models got so strung up in his five-to-six-foot multi-colored laces that they were late making appearances in the California designer's knitwear collection show for buyers this week.

Wearing tights and tunics, they were tied up from toe to thigh, and again from their hipbones to their clavicles.

Zippers are quicker, as Gernreich later demonstrated. He unzipped diagonally around and around like a barber pole on a brown tunic while it disintegrated on its pretty wearer.

Himself decked out like Superman in a belted black knit tunic that zippered down the left sleeve, along with gold-bottom slacks, Gernreich conceded that his collection was more sexual than womanly.

For the most part, it consisted of the same kind of tunic and clinging belled pants he wore, but with frills at the neck and the sleeves to distinguish the hers from him. Actually, there could not have been any doubt about the hers because the models wore few underpinnings and, as admirers of sweater girls know, knits stick to the facts.

Feel Better Fast!

Price & Smith LTD.
652 Yates St. 25 paces from Douglas 384-4721

Your Age is a Favorite subject, when other women whisper behind your back.

The gossip may very well go something like this: "Isn't it a pity that Marge has let herself get so fat?" Then followed by, "What a shame! Marge has so many lines in her face she looks like Whistler's mother."

Those facial lines are easy to cope with; easier than getting rid of fat, and smoothing away age lines is now comparatively fast. Recent work in the highly specialized field of skin physiology has made it possible for many women to smooth their facial lines into relative obscurity. They can park them where they should not bother them for a long, long time if ever again.

2nd Debut is a radical departure from the oily creams and lotions that have been the basis of skin care during the past century. It is a scientific development based in the demonstrable fact that skin's appearance ages through dryness, and that the oiliest skin can also be the driest. 2nd Debut demonstrates to women of all ages that dryness can be relieved continuously and varying degrees of youthful appearance re-established by maintaining the water balance of skin's stratum corneum at normally required levels.

As contained in the emulsion 2nd Debut, the control-ingredient (known as CEF) need only to be applied to the surface of facial skin. The water-moisture level of the stratum corneum automatically rises. Progressively, the skin's surface appears smoother and more youthful as lines become less evident and some completely disappear. Those around the eyes, the nose and mouth are usually among those that respond earliest to regular nightly applications of 2nd Debut. The tone of the entire face and neck is at once lifted and given the appearance of fresher form as you progress in this course in youth renewal. From that point on, occasional applications of 2nd Debut with its rich CEF 600 content help facial freshness to remain and facial smoothness to continue to replace those insidious premature age lines that plagued you before your friendship with 2nd Debut began.

2nd Debut is made in two potencies. One contains CEF 600 and is for the women with early worries; that is, for the woman under 40.

The double-potency CEF 1200 is for the face over forty; or for the impatient lady who wants visible results without delay or for you if your facial lines are deep. It smooths age lines faster.

To prepare your skin to receive CEF there is 2nd Debut Liquid Cleanser. Its application is different, for it is to be applied in a thin layer over your face and throat. Then rinsed off with cool water. Now your skin is clear, and clean. Really clean!

2nd Debut Liquid Makeup (with CEF 600) is probably the most covering make-up in all the world. Imparts a flattering, flat matte finish and hides most blemishes completely. Moisturizes, too, with CEF 600. Six shades.

Finally 2nd Debut Body & Hand Lotion (with CEF 600) imparts a feeling of luxury to the body that makes you regard yourself with extra importance. And its CEF 600 richness quickly defeats the cause of hands chapping. This is a dual-purpose balm. Money Back Guarantee on all 2nd Debut Products.

World Wide Recipes In Pocket Cookbooks

By PENNY SAVER

I have found a fascinating cookbook—actually a set of cookbooks. Now, I don't want to seem obsessed with cooking and cooking accessories by discussing them for the third day in a row, but I am so enthusiastic that I just can't wait. I discovered this exciting collection of recipes when I dropped into a book store to look for a pocketbook that one of the children needed for school. I had found the book I was looking for and was just browsing when I came across a boxed set of four pocketbooks entitled "The Wonderful World of Cookery." Being naturally curious, I took a peek inside.

The more I leafed through the books the more I thought that the pocketbooks were a wonderful idea for the kitchen. They are light and easy to handle in a hurry. Moreover, they don't discourage you from sitting down in a free moment and reading new and exciting recipes to see if they would suit your family's tastes the way a heavy cookbook often does. The four books deal with the recipes of the Far and Near East, the Caribbean, Latin America, northern Europe, the British Isles, Italy, France and Spain. Each is a different color for quick, accurate grabbing. Inside there is a table of contents clearly arranged as to the kinds of recipes—soups, sandwiches and so forth. The recipes themselves are clearly set out in a good-sized type. This set of four books is $2.95.

'Greenhorns' Become 'Greenthumbs'

My fondest wish has been granted. There is a book just made for the Victoria gardener. I don't know how I have missed seeing this volume before as it is in the third edition, but it tells me everything I should need to know to solve my gardening problems. This book is called "The Pacific Gardener" by A. R. Willis. It is designed with the Northwest gardener in mind and gives information on when to plant, spray and harvest, the fertilizers needed for local soils, native plants, patio planting, how to keep a good floral display—it even describes the components of gardening, tools and such. Even an amateur like myself can understand this book. A good size for handling, this $4.50 volume has a plastic coil binding and a heavy plasticized paper cover. It is sturdy enough for frequent reference.

Do you find that whatever mastery of the French language you ever possessed is slipping away? Why not keep it safe by reading contemporary French magazines? The Paris Match is a French publication similar to Life. Printed on glossy paper with lots of interesting photographs (useful for clarifying a shaky translation), this magazine is 50 cents. Time magazine has its counterpart in the French magazine Express. It is 60 cents. For women only are Elle, Jours de France (both 50 cents) and Marie Claire (35 cents). These are filled with fashion news and views straight from the Continent. An interesting way to keep up that second language.

If you would like to know where these books and magazines are found, please call me at 382-3131.

Labor Force Count Shows Sharp Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — One of three women were in the Canadian labor force in 1967, compared with more than three out of four men, the women's bureau of the federal labor department says in a booklet just made public.

The number of employed women in 1967 was just under 2,300,000 compared with 1,400,000 in 1957.

The female percentage increase was "in sharp contrast" with a 17 per cent increase in the number of men employed, and an increase of about 29 per cent in total numbers of employed persons in Canada over the same 10-year period.

A much greater proportion of women worked part-time.

The Canadian population remained almost equally balanced between man and women during the decade. But the proportion of women in the labor force to total females in the population rose by eight per centage points, whereas the proportion of men declined by almost five.

Kisses To Solve Traffic Problem

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh engineer for the state highways department has come up with a romantic touch to help solve the city's traffic problems.

William S. Stephens suggests a plan called kiss and ride. Wives, he says, could drop off their husbands, kiss them and take the car back home.

Any Color Acceptable So Long as It's White

OTTAWA (CP) — A human rights investigator testifed before a board of inquiry Thursday that Ottawa landlady Laura O'Brien told him she had nothing against Negroes but had added: "They are filthy, you know."

Herbert Sohn, assistant director of the Ontario Human Rights Commission, also said Mrs. O'Brien denied discriminating against West Indian Monica Mitchell, 27, a registered nurse, and insisted that "darkies" were good people.

However, Mrs. O'Brien had mentioned that she had been beaten up by a Negro tenant.

The board of inquiry, which adjourned indefinitely after hearing a number of witnesses, was ordered following two complaints of discrimination lodged by Miss Mitchell after she answered a classified ad of Mr. and Mrs. John O'Brien last November offering "two bright rooms" for rent.

MONICA MITCHELL
. . . rooms refused

Miss Mitchell alleged that she had been refused the rooms because of her race and color.

She said she was told Nov. 5 that the rooms were rented. Less than an hour before, her sister-in-law had been told they weren't. Two friends, who said they had called a couple of days later, testified that they also were told the rooms were still available.

A fine point in the case is the type of dwelling involved. Under the legislation, it is an offence to deny occupancy of "any commercial unit or any self-contained dwelling unit" for reasons of race, creed, color, nationality, ancestry or place of origin.

Professor Walter Tarnopolsky of Toronto, the one-man board, and the lawyers visited the three-storey O'Brien residence to see whether the rented portion fell under the heading "self-contained dwelling unit."

A lawyer produced a doctor's certificate saying Mrs. O'Brien was unable to attend because of surgery. John G. Dunlap, the lawyer, added that Mrs. O'Brien also was suffering from "some sort of nervous disorder" irritated by the case.

The O'Briens have a teenage daughter.

Miss Mitchell came to Canada from St. George's, Grenada, 16 months ago.

Bursary Helps Pay La Maison Fees

Owen Goudie is 17 years old, an Indian student at Elizabeth Fisher High School at Glen Lake who is determined to go to university.

This year he is in Grade 10 and taking two mathematics courses in one so he can qualify for the school's academic program.

His work is going well and much of it he does on his own, vice-principal Don Kerley said today.

But a switch in school subjects still leaves Owen short on French instruction. To make this up he hopes to attend La Maison Francaise, a French-language centre operated by the University of Victoria during the summer.

Courses run from July 2 to Aug. 16 and most students live in residence in a setting which encourages them to speak and think in French. Faculty and staff are drawn from Laval University at Quebec City.

The university has granted Owen a $100 bursary to help pay his way. Teachers at his school are collecting more and hope to match the bursary, said Mr. Kerley.

There will be 60 students, from high school to retirement age, at La Maison this summer compared to 45 last year.

Eight Victoria residents are among 13 students sharing $1,100 in bursaries. Financial aid ranges from $35 to $125.

Local winners include university students Julie Rae Goodwin, Gillian Haines, Ralph Sarkonak and Kathleen Thurston, high school students Margaret Bell and Roy Watson, newspaperman Paul Williamson and Joseph Haegert, a retired civil servant who has taken courses at the centre for the past two summers.

Youthful Beauty

LIBEL AWARD of $75,000 was won Friday by Barry Goldwater in his action over a 1964 article in Fact magazine that said he was psychologically unfit to be president of the U.S. The New York jury deliberated 12 hours before returning the verdict against the now defunct publication.

One Day in Jail For Taking $30

A woman with eight children was sentenced to one day in jail Friday for stealing from her friend.

Patricia Martin, 1809 Chambers, pleaded guilty to taking $30 from a friend's house May 6 while using her phone.

Magistrate Ostler said Mrs. Martin should be thoroughly ashamed of her actions.

She was also placed on a $250 one-year good behavior bond.

More History Teaching Urged By Speakers

Young people must be made aware of their heritage, Mayor Hugh Stephen told the annual convention of the B.C. Historical Society at the McPherson Theatre Friday.

"When a nation disappears from the pages of history, it is because the people have forgotten where they come from," he said.

A heritage was something like a bank which new generations could draw from in time of need — to continue building a stable and civilized society, he said.

But the mayor added that a recognition of a historic heritage is sterile unless the demands of contemporary society are acknowledged and met.

This city had this in mind in its plans to revitalize its waterfront, he said.

"While the water and harbor served the tall ships of the 19th century, new vital uses for this historic location can make equal contribution to the different society of today," he stated.

The convention opened Thursday with a meeting at the Maritime Museum and an address by director Col. J. W. D. Symons.

About 70 delegates from all parts of the province are attending — many from Vancouver and the interior.

Mrs. Mable E. Jordon, president, expressed the hope that the new centennial museum would be integrated into the provincial educational system — a policy adopted by other provinces.

"A museum is primarily an educational institution — not a tourist attraction," she pointed out.

She felt more should be done to teach B.C. history in schools.

Berry Andrews, president of the Victoria branch, said plans for touring the new centennial museum and holding sessions in its auditorium had been cancelled.

"Contractors fear that it would involve 'risks' as the building is not yet completed," he explained.

City archivist A. Helmcken spoke on the "Civic Precincts in Retrospect."

He also arranged for a display in the city hall of one of the finest collections of historical photographs.

Tartan to Include Refund in Beer Case

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ben Ginter, owner of Tartan Breweries Ltd. of Prince George, said Thursday 10-cent refunds will be included next week in all cases of Tartan canned beer sold in British Columbia.

"If Mr. Bonner's government can refund part of people's property taxes, we can refund some of their beer costs," he said in a telephone interview from Winnipeg.

He was referring to a B.C. cabinet order which recently increased the price of canned beer to $2.73 for a 12-can case compared with the $2.63 for 12 bottles of beer.

Mr. Ginter said at the time his brewery did not want the increase. The large Coast breweries, which have just started selling canned beer, said the increase would cover higher costs of canning beer.

All Coast breweries now are selling canned beer. The Prince George brewery has been selling canned beer for some time.

Mr. Ginter said he plans to insert the 10-cent refund in each case produced by the brewery starting next week.

He made the comments after completing arrangements with the Manitoba Liquor Board to sell canned beer in that province.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner, minister in charge of the Liquor Control Board, declined comment on Mr. Ginter's effort to set a precedent with the refund.

"I have no light to shed on the matter at the moment," he said.

Opening lead—♠Q

The combination of an opening no-trump plus partner's 11 high card points is not likely to produce a slam and most pairs using ordinary methods would probably wind up in three no-trump.

The artificial bidding sequence shown in the box illustrates the scientific way to reach a slam.

North's two-spade bid shows a minor two-suiter of indefinite strength. South's three club bid merely announces that his clubs are at least as good as his diamonds. North's three heart call shows help in hearts, if his partner wants to try three no-trump. It also infers a singleton spade and is a force to game.

South's bid of three spades happens to be a slam try. North can't be sure that it isn't saying South has spades stopped two or more times so North merely goes to three no-trump.

This puts it up to South once more and he bids four clubs. This shows that South's three spade call was a cue bid to show the ace and that South is definitely interested in a club slam.

North might jump to six clubs but he has been bitten by the science bug and bids four diamonds to show that ace. South replies with four hearts to show the ace of hearts and by this time North has had enough. He bids six clubs.

There is nothing to the play at six clubs. All South has to do is to knock out the ace of trumps, draw the rest of the trumps and spread his hand.

YOU WILL LOVE ME!
I am a pretty nice guy and only 5 years old. Folks stop and admire my expensive shrubs and trees in my front yard. If they saw my fish pond and greenhouse and nice backyard they wouldn't want to leave. My owners sit in the enclosed porch patio and bird watch in the cool of the day. How relaxing — Oh yes! — I am cleaner than the day I was born. My large living room has an excellent dining room off. Loads of mahogany cupboards in my kitchen keeps my missus happy. 3 good size bedrooms are slumber specials. 4-pce. bath is convenient for everyone. My half basement has laundry room, rumpus room or fourth bedroom space and a drive-in garage. I am not too far from town and have top-notch neighbours. Come out and see me soon! Call my agent.

I really like this home. It's everything I want in a home and Well landscaped but no gardening—Charming exterior but very little maintenance—near new, yet established and comfortable, rather than cold and shiny. Then the inside too is what I want—spacious plan but not too radical and not too trite—separate entrance and separate dining room and no room was robbed of space to make room in others. And of course the area—less than a ½ block to the sea, shops, buses, still, Sooo Quiet—The vendors are open to a reasonable Cash offer but Ithink were pretty close at this price.

BY CHAMBER

Direct Talks With Ottawa Suggested

A special trip to Ottawa was suggested Friday as a means to hasten federal improvements to Ogden Point shipping docks.

William Armstrong, president of Victoria Chamber of Commerce, told directors this should be considered if evidence of action in a six-month-old campaign is not shown.

The chamber's bid to have improvements done, making Ogden Point more attractive to shippers and shipping companies, has been relayed from Canadian National Railways which acts as government agent on the docks, to the transport department.

Former president E. E. Pealman said that if action was to be taken, the pre-election period is most appropriate for making submissions.

The docks, said chamber harbor chairman George Farmer, "are terribly run down. The buildings have not been painted for years. They are a disgrace for the city."

More important are the engineering improvements which should be made for easing lumber cargo assembly, berthing and access to ships, and the mechanics of loading from dockside.

The CNR initiated surveys and, according to the railway's Vancouver office, came up with conflicting data regarding the foundation of Pier South B. A new assessment is required, Mr. Farmer reported.

Meanwhile, a plan to demolish an old shed on that pier to make way for cargo assembly area awaits federal approval.

★ ★ ★

Mr. Farmer said pressure on the highways department for improvements to Patricia Bay Highway will be renewed with the appointment of Wesley Black as minister replacing P. A. Gaglardi.

The chamber wants improved access to the airport and a planted strip dividing Patricia Bay Highway where its consists of multiple lanes.

★ ★ ★

Tourist and convention chairman Leslie Parkinson said only five sunset ceremonies would be conducted on the lawns of the Legislative Buildings this summer due to an armed forces manpower shortage.

No permanent force troops would be involved and the militia would conduct only one ceremony. The rest would be done by cadet corps.

Ceremonies are set for May 31, June 7, 10 and 11 by cadets, and June 6 by Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's).

★ ★ ★

The School of Music is considering a "song to Victoria" which could be played on the provincial carillon, Mr. Parkinson said, mentioning favorable response to the concerts which have been played on the new bells.

★ ★ ★

His committee opposes new allocations of Causeway space to tourist promoters and hucksters and asked directors to request city council to limit places to the existing arrangment.

The group also sought a ban on distribution of throw-away pamphlets on the Causeway, except by those connected with a Causeway operation.

Directors rejected the requests because they were concidered restrictive, but the chamber's feeling goes on record as supporting the spirit of limiting commercial trends on the Causeway.

Ald. Clyde Savage said there would be no increase in the number of space allotments this year, and that all would be confined to the west side of Government.

★ ★ ★

Asked what was being done to improve the eyesore left by demolition of the Empress power house and steam laundry at Douglas and Humboldt, Empress manager Parkinson said the site would be tidied.

The demolition contractors had had trouble with the job and it dragged out more than a month beyond its due completion. Eventually, he hoped, an apartment building would rise on the site as part of the Empress Hotel complex.

CN Tel Out Stop Boss Too Stop

When Charles Hudson winds up his 44 years service with Canadian National Telecommunications on May 31, it will also be the end of the CN telegraph service in Victoria.

June 1 will be the closing date for telegraph offices in 51 cities across Canada, says Mr. Hudson, manager of CN Telecommunications in Victoria.

Over the next two years, 12 more offices in the larger cities will close.

This is the result of an agreement to end competition between the government-owned CN and the privately-owned Canadian Pacific.

"Canada is the last remaining country in the world in which two companies are competing for business in the telegraph field," Mr. Hudson said. "In some cities it will be the CPR office that will close.

"Generally speaking, the office which has the bulk of service in telegraph, Telex and Teletype and the most equipment will continue in operation.

In Victoria, CFR will be the sole remaining telegraph office.

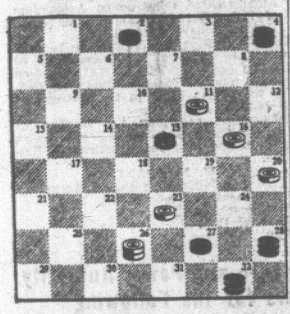
CHIP-DOWN CHECKER TEST



Checker magic can be every bit as astonishing as a magician's magic. The problem at right is an example. White, moving up the board, to move first, and win in five turns is the challenge. Can you conjure up the winning plays?

Remember the idea is to win in just five turns.

Long-time champ Millard Hopper's solution is below.

Solution: White 11-8, Black 4-11, White 16-7, Black 2-11, White 20-16, Black 11-20, White 23-19, Black 15-24, White 26-31.

PUTT UP OR SHUT UP GOLF BETTING

Jones and Brown recently agreed to play 18 holes of golf for a wager made on these conditions:

The player who was one up at any hole was to receive $1 from his opponent. The player two up at any hole was to receive $3 ($1 plus $2) and the player three up was to receive $6 ($1 plus $2 plus $3) and so on up to the 18th hole.

Things began to look bad for Jones after five holes had been played because at that stage of the game he was $17 out of pocket. Then his game began to improve somewhat and after the 13th hole each player had exactly as much money as when he started. Then Jones forged ahead and won the 14th and 15th holes.

The 16th, 17th and 18th holes were halved but Brown was so nervous that he missed a short putt at each of these last three holes. If he had kept cool these three holes should have been his. So he lost and had to pay.

What did those three missed putts cost Brown? That is to say, what would the outcome have been if he'd made them?

Solution: Three missed putts cost Brown $32. Jones had lost the 1st, 3rd and 4th, halved the 2nd, 5th and 10th, and won the remainder up to and including the 12th hole. He was 4 up at the 13th and 6 up at the 15th. He won $63 on the last three holes. If Brown had won them Jones would have been only $31 up on those three holes.

MARK OF MYSTERY?

There are many superstitions associated with ships and the sea in general. Visitors to a boatyard during fitting-out time, for instance, may notice a small daub of paint on a ship's propeller. What is the reason for this daub?

Answer: It stems from a superstition which holds that it weds propeller and hull and brings good luck to the ship.

TWEET FOR BIRDS

Some persons have a knack for imitating the calls of different birds. Whistles are also made for this purpose. Good results can also be had with an ordinary glass tumbler and a large cork. To use this device, dip cork in water and rub it along the side of the tumber. The resulting musical note will resemble the call of a bird, With experiment and practice, different notes can be produced and the calls of various birds imitated.

WINE UNDER GLASS

In some places, wine may be cheaper than bottles. One unreliable source reports it costs $1.05 for a bottle filled with wine and the bottle costs one dollar more than its contents. How much was the wine?

Answer: Two and one-half cents; the bottle was one dollar two and one-half cents.

SET UP A SPACE CAPER

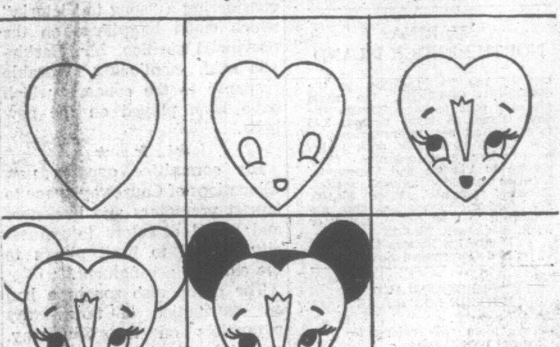
A good way to get things rolling merrily at a party is to play "Spaceman."

Start the game by choosing "Spaceman 1." This person leaves the room and hides in some spot large enough to hold several people. Then, after a few minutes, the others conduct a search for him, as in hide and seek.

As guests find Spaceman No. 1, they join him in the same hiding place—doing so without having others in the game observe their action. Before long the hiding place becomes packed with spacemen.

The last player to find the hiding place becomes Spaceman No. 2, and the game is repeated.

ARTISTS, TAKE HEART



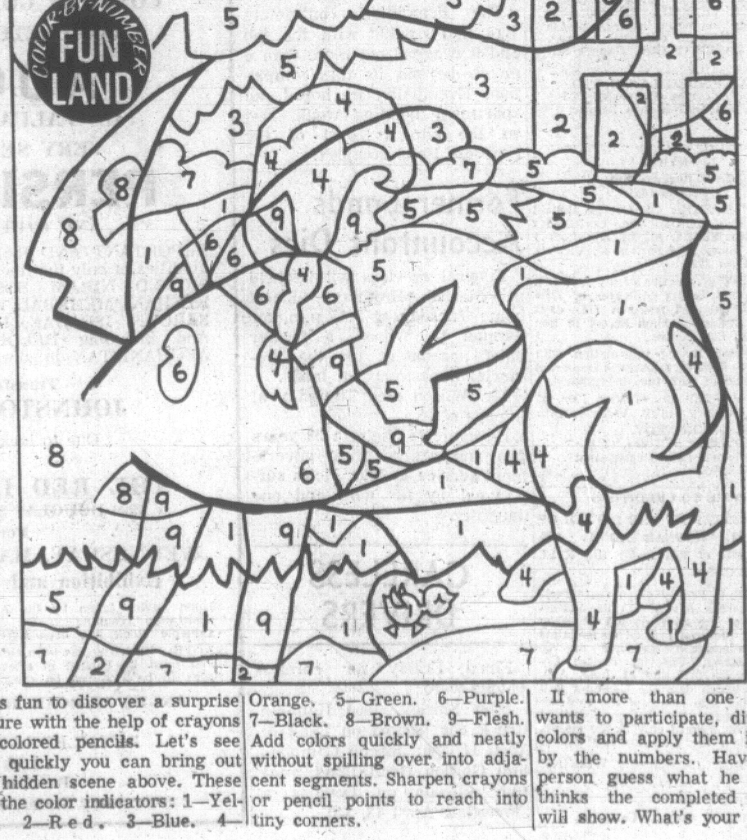
This cartoon lesson puts artistic talents to a test.

Begin by drawing a heart-shaped figure in the blank space above.

Follow up by adding features progressively as illustrated. Highlight subject with a few heavy blacks. The result is a cute little mouse.

Just for fun, take another shape, such as a diamond, and see if you can develop a figure from that similarly.

COLOR-BY-NUMBERS FUN POSERS



It's fun to discover a surprise picture with the help of crayons or colored pencils. Let's see how quickly you can bring out the hidden scene above. These are the color indicators: 1—Yellow. 2—Red. 3—Blue. 4—Orange. 5—Green. 6—Purple. 7—Black. 8—Brown. 9—Flesh. Add colors quickly and neatly without spilling over into adjacent segments. Sharpen crayons or pencil points to reach into tiny corners.

If more than one person wants to participate, distribute colors and apply them in turn, by the numbers. Have each person guess what he or she thinks the completed picture will show. What's your guess?

JUDGE MORROW
. . . law elastic?

Justice Aided By Press Judge Claims

JASPER, Alta. (CP) — Mr. Justice W. G. Morrow said Friday night that the news media of Canada by publishing stories about the harshness of the law have helped to bring justice for the people of the North.

In an address to a dinner meeting tendered to the Canadian Managing Editors' Conference by the Alberta government, Mr. Justice Morrow, judge of the territorial court of the Northwest Territories, said the rules of law are soft-pedalled in dealings with Indians and Eskimos in the interest of justice.

It is necessary at times, he said, to disregard judicial procedure in the widespread northern areas where, because of distances, it's sometimes physically impossible to comply with the Criminal Code. Forty per cent of appeals in the North would be disallowed if the rigid code of civil action were applied.

The federal government is tolerating a more lenient approach to application of the law and as a result justice is being better served, Mr. Justice Morrow said. A factor in bringing this about was press reports of court actions in the North.

Mr. Justice Morrow, whose jurisdiction extends over one-third of Canada's land area, recounted the problems of bringing the law to the 30,000 Eskimos, Indians and white people who inhabit the territories.

He said that wherever possible the law goes to the people in their own regions rather than forcing natives to travel to such centres as Yellowknife, hundreds of miles from their homes and families.

This, he said, results in court hearings in warehouses, school rooms—anywhere there is heat—and attended by mothers suckling their infants, by children and by dogs. But it also results in fair treatment of the Eskimos and Indians and provides a buffer between the white man's law and the culture of the natives.

$66 Million Headquarters Set for CBC

MONTREAL (CP) — The CBC will begin construction of a $66,200,000 Montreal headquarters in November with completion date set for April of 1972, it was announced Friday.

Laurent A. Picard, senior vice-president of the CBC, said at a news conference the east-end complex to be called Place Radio Canada will be smaller and less expensive than originally planned.

Gerard Pelletier, minister without portfolio, said the federal cabinet had given approval to plans for the 23-storey office and studio complex whose original estimated cost of $71,000,000 soared to more than $80,000,000 once the planning phase got under way.

He said the reduction will be effected by eliminating two studio areas which will be replaced by continued use of the International Broadcast Centre near the site of Man and His World—successor to Expo 67.

Mr. Picard said the work order for the CBC centre will be issued June 1, followed by the calling of tenders in July with building contracts to be awarded Oct. 1.

He said the hexagonal tower and surrounding studios will house more than 2,500 employees.

Pollution Board Chairman Named

Deputy Water Resources Minister Arthur Paget resigned Thursday as chairman of the B.C. Pollution Control Board for health reasons.

Mr. Paget, who is taking a three-months leave of absence from his other duties, has been chairman since the board was set up in 1965.

Deputy Forests Minister F. S. McKinnon was moved up to chairman of the board, until the end of this year, by a cabinet order.

And Valter Raudseepp, of the provincial water rights branch, was added to the board for a term ending next year to fill the vacancy.

Youth Escapes Jail Term For Marijuana

A 20-year-old youth was given a suspended sentence Friday for possession of marijuana.

Rajindar Singh, of Vancouver, had pleaded guilty May 14 after RCMP seized 1½ pounds of marijuana from his car near the Jaycee Fair.

A second man, John Seedhouse, 18, of 38 Camden, was sentenced to six months on the same charge involving a separate incident.

Seedhouse was charged after police said he admitted ownership of marijuana thrown from a car April 12 in Vic West park as it was approached by police.

In the Singh case, court was told the youth was not actually a user of the drug and RCMP Sgt. Lou Dempsey said he had no reason to believe otherwise.

GOOD REPORT

Magistrate Ostler said a presentence report showed Singh to be "of sterling character, good reputation, and industrious."

He called the case "exceptional."

Singh was placed on a two-year $500 good-behavior bond.

Pre-sentence reports prepared by probation officers for both Seedhouse and Singh recommended suspended sentences.

In a third marijuana case before court today, Vernon White, 19, of 1428 Stadacona, was committed for trial in a higher court.

Magistrate Ostler converted what was a trial to a preliminary hearing because evidence ruled admissable subsequently came under question as a result of later testimony.

The magistrate said under the circumstances he could not reconsider his decision and the matter should have the opportunity to be tested in another court.

White is charged with possession of "hash," a form of marijuana.

Home Office Opposed By Council

Oak Bay council will recommend to itself in open meeting June 3 rejection of a physiotherapist's application to move his business.

The application, from B. G. Downer, who now practises from his home on St. David St., was initially turned down by the zoning committee.

Council reconsidered the application in committee of the whole Tuesday night and again disapproved.

The location — a home that Mr. Downer is buying on York Place — is not suitable to his type of "commercial" business, Mayor Fred Hawes said.

The area is zoned residential — but for apartments. The narrow street would present problems, the mayor said.

Ald. Dr. G. Scott Wallace argued that the application should not be turned down, as doctors and dentists are permitted to have their offices in their homes.

Mr. Downer has practised in Oak Bay for about eight years from two different homes, council was told. In both cases, he had no trouble in securing permission to practise from residential areas.

Cross Canada Students Here For Busy Day

Thirty students from universities across Canada will spend next Thursday in Victoria as part of a 20-day tour sponsored by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

The students, entering their final year of undergraduate study, were chosen from more than 200 applicants on the basis of academic performance, extra-curricular activities, personal attributes and interests.

While in Victoria, the group will tour a Chemainus logging operation, visit civic points of interest, meet Mayor Stephen in Centennial Square and dine with local chamber directors.

Shoplifter Gets Month

A man who stole $4.98 worth of goods from The Bay Thursday was sentenced Friday to one month in jail.

Court was told David Ferguson took tooth powder, socks, butter, cheese, biscuits and meat.

Ferguson said he is taking medication and didn't recall being in the store. Presecutor John Macintyre said Ferguson has a criminal record dating back to 1951.

Buzzing Russ Jet Crashes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Soviet medium jet bomber crashed in the Norwegian Sea today shortly after making a low pass close to a U.S. aircraft carrier, the defence department announced.

No survivors were found and three bodies were recovered, a spokesman added.

The defence department said the anti-submarine warfare crarier Essex reported that U.S. Naval vessels and aircraft "in no way interfered with, hampered or threatened the Soviet aircraft at any time or in any way prior to the crash."

The plane which went into the sea about 200 miles off the west coast of Norway was reported to be a TU-16 Badger, an elderly medium bomber which normally carries a crew of seven.

The United States has complained on a number of occasions dating back at least five years that Soviet reconnaissance bombers, including Badgers, have flown over U.S. naval units in international waters.

The announcement said the TU-16 was one of a flight of two Badgers.

"It was making a fourth low pass near the carrier USS Essex, which was conducting anti-submarine warfare training operations," the announcement said.

$80,000 MUSEUM WORK 'WRONG'

Sculpture Storm Blows

By HUMPHRY DAVY

A government-appointed fine arts committee was strongly criticized today for choosing its own chairman to create the most expensive piece of sculpture for the new Provincial Museum,

Goerge Moore, museum adviser, questioned the committee's choice of Lionel Thomas to execute a sculpture depicting Nootka Indians —"in Hippie hair-do" — in the act of harpooning a California Gray whale.

Mr. Thomas is a professor of fine arts at the University of British Columbia and is chairman of the fine arts committee.

The all-wood sculpture, about 33 feet long and 14 feet wide, is believed to have cost $80,000. It will occupy the centre of the museum's orientation hall in the main exhibition building.

Mr. Moore, who claims the sculpture is not up to standard, said the project should have been submitted to an open competition.

"This would have given the committee a wider selection," he said "As I see it the method of selection leaves something to be desired."

●

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant disclaimed any responsibility for the choice of artist and sculpture.

"The fine arts are not in my field," he said. "This was up to a committee of experts."

He said it is easy now to look back and criticize.

"But the various museum committees have been working under hardships and strain," he said. "They have made mistakes—it's true. But I have nothing but praise for them because they are putting their best into the job."

Museum director Dr. Clifford Carl declined comment.

"I have nothing to do with fine arts," he added.

Wilson Duff, a former musem anthropologist, and a member of the committee, said he preferred to say nothing.

Mr. Moore, who touched off the controversy, described the Nootka piece as "wrong in scale, wrong in detail, wrong in posture, lacking in vibrancy."

He claimed the public is paying a high price for inferior art.

●

"I have no quarrel with the concept," he said. "But the work falls sadly short in its execution. It is tedious, inaccurate, unimaginative, confused, dead and far, far too expensive."

"As a taxpayer, I can't help but wish the whole commission could be handed over to a skilled Indian carver of Simon Charlie's worth, who understands the subject and is a master of the metier."

"The price of the completed work would support the museum's Indian carver training program for nearly eight years at current costs," he said.

Mr. Moore said he wanted to make it clear that he had no "axe to grind on his own." He doesn't know Mr. Thomas.

Mr. Moore is leaving the museum soon to take a post in a museum in Hawaii.

"What I'm concerned with is the role the museum plays as an educational institution," he explained. "It should stimulate and help raise the general cultural level of the society it seeks to serve.

"Now in my opinion, these works, commissioned at great expense, will not really help to further the museum's work. Therefore their inclusion is a disservice to the public."

France Bans All Crowds, War Feared

PARIS (CP) — Premier Georges Pompidou said today that the violence that mushroomed through France Friday night and early today was "an obvious attempt" to start a civil war.

Two persons died in the riots which followed President de Gaulle's announcement Friday for a June referendum on major reforms he plans for the country.

Pompidou told reporters he has ordered police to use force if necessary to break up street meetings in Paris.

The violence, the worst since the French crisis began three weeks ago, also resulted in injuries to hundreds of persons and the arrest of hundreds more—648 in Paris alone.

SIRENS WAIL

Paris echoed today to the wail of ambulance sirens after the bloody night-long street battles that raged for 10 hours. Demonstrators wrecked and set fire to three police stations today.

Pompidou said "the occupation of the Latin Quarter took on the appearance of a real fortress. . . ."

"We were faced with an obvious attempt to set off the start of a civil war."

Those killed were a policeman in Lyon and a 26-year-old man who died of knife wounds in Paris. The knifed Parisian may have been struck by a rioter, although Pompidou said his death might not have had any connection with the disturbances. The premier said he was not a victim of police action.

As a heavy rain fell, Pompidou said order had practically been restored but that Paris presented the "face of devastation."

MAKES APPEAL

He said it is necessary "without delay to end subversive agitation" and appealed to the people not to join in assemblages or parades.

"Faced with an obvious attempt to unleash a start of civil war, as is shown by what happened in the big cities as for example Lyon, the forces of law and order were given the mission of destroying the barricades, dispersing the demonstrators and occupying the principal artieries held by the rioters," Pompidou told reporters.

"This agitation is all the more deplorable," he said, because it took place at a moment when unions and government were

Canada Economic State Defended

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau today accused other political parties of casting gloom on Canada's economic prospects.

He told a crowd of 1,000 on a downtown street that other parties are saying that things are going badly, that the dollar is uncertain.

"Why are they afraid of Canada's ability to prosper as a nation?" he asked.

Holding a lilac that someone had given him in his hand, he said the Liberal party wants to make sure the Canadian dollar is sound and that the budget is balanced.

The only way to do this was not to give the government more power and money but to give more opportunity to the people. That was how to make the country prosperous.

For those who paint a gloomy picture, he said the truth is that Canadian exports have practically doubled in the last five years.

The crowd, mostly adults, responded with polite applause.

ACHESON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former U.S. state secretary Dean Acheson has accused Britain and the United States of conspiring to overthrow the white-minority government of Rhodesia with the blessing of the United Nations.

Acheson, 75, secretary of state from 1949 to 1953 and now in private law practice, made the accusation Friday in a speech before a section of the American Bar Association.

The retiring U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, Arthur J. Goldberg, promptly took issue with Acheson.

"The secretary of state is a very distinguished man but what he has said is sheer nonsense," Goldberg said.

House Bars Woman After 'Slur' on MPs

LONDON (Reuters)—Scottish Nationalist Winifred Ewing on Friday became the second woman member ordered out of the House of Commons in as many days for offending male colleagues.

The latest incident centred on a letter Mrs. Ewing wrote to a newspaper this week interpreted to mean she believed male members of the House spent too much time drinking in bars.

Thursday night another woman member, Conservative Dame Irene Ward, was suspended from Parliament for five days and ordered out of the Commons for standing in front of the speaker and blocking members going to vote.

The 72-year-old Dame Irene was protesting what she considered government suppression of parliamentary debates.

'TRUDEAU LIKE A MINOR CAESAR'

By PETER NEWMAN

WINNIPEG — Even this early in the election a comparison of the campaign styles of Pierre Elliott Trudeau and Robert Lorne Stanfield leads to an inescapable conclusion: that unless they are dealt some unexpected blow, the Liberals will sweep into power on June 25 with a majority mandate based on their leader's burgeoning popular support in every province.

Newman

You could feel victory in the air here on Thursday when Trudeau spent the day touring the city's Conservative suburbs: You could hear it in dozens of casual conversations and see it in the faces of the crowds that turned out to watch his campaign.

Looking like one of the minor Caesars of the late Roman empire, Trudeau led a triumphal procession from shopping centre to shopping centre, where he was gaped at, flower-bedecked, sung to, applauded, heckled, admired, all the time being magnified in the public eye by the crowd's intense awareness of his personal style.

This was a dramatic contrast to the sober visit earlier in the week of Robert Stanfield who left the city not enlarged but somehow a smaller figure than when he arrived.

He could establish little rapport with the people who turned out to hear him read his speech; they went away uninvolved in his future, seemingly untouched by his appeal to responsibility.

The Trudeau crowds are different.

Their most colorful aspect, of course, is the horde of teeny-boppers, running with long manes blowing like banners in the wind, full of vitality, excitement, laughter, shrieking in a kind of wild ecstasy that rises to a squawk when one of their number is kissed.

(Reporter to writhing girl: "Why do you like him so much?" Writhing girl to reporter: "Ooooh, I like his pock marks." Reporter to self: "Acne Power?")

What is probably more significant is the presence of scores of toddlers, held on the shoulders of their parents being admonished to "remember him," the way in other years the very young were out to behold royalty.

Trudeau seems to enjoy each of these occasions, accepting the flowers thrust at him with a shrug, bounding up on the backs of trucks to give voice to his cause.

But he's at his best away from the howling mobs, at press conferences where he is transformed into a first-rate teacher who can turn tentative, vaguely articulated questions into something intelligent, rewording them so that each answer becomes a lucid lecture, a precis of the problem at hand, its ramifications, his policy on it, other possible solutions and the difficulties involved.

He speaks English not just well but superbly with a mastery of the Canadian idiom and of the language's subtleties.

TORIES SLIPPING

. . . And Poll Backs It Up

Prime Minister Trudeau and the Liberal party have taken a commanding lead in the early going of the federal election campaign, according to the latest Gallup poll.

The poll indicates that if the election had been held during the first two weeks in May, Liberals would have gained 50 per cent of the popular vote, Tories would have receive 29 per cent and New Democrats 16 per cent.

Here are the Gallup poll findings:

	Liberals	Progressive Conservatives	NDP	All Other
1963 election	42%	33%	13%	12%
1965 election	40	33	18	9
October, 1967	34	43	17	6
TODAY	50	29	16	5

The next poll will show voter preference during the last half of this month.

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, MAY 25, 1968—PAGE 23

Up two flights of stairs Friday noon to a large, gaunt floor where a dream is in process of hatching. The place is Broad Street Centre, which offers Victoria boys and girls the oasis of their own that they so badly need.

The centre opened casually on May 2, when, with two months rent paid on a trial basis, its pioneers moved in. They had four walls and a roof, something over 2,000 square feet of floor space, 10 tables and a bunch of chairs, and nothing much else except high hopes.

But even before the soft-drink dispenser was installed and a coffee pot procured for the venerable kitchen range, kids began drifting up from Victoria's inhospitable downtown streets.

At 11 a.m. today, the centre marked its official start with an open house for young, old and in-between. This will continue until people stop turning up, says co-organizer Alan Elford. If you can't make it, this evening, you are cordially invited to drop in tomorrow. The address, 1048 Broad Street.

If you do, kindly note the "give-box" just inside the door. The last of the centre funds went to provide the makings of the open house.

University student Elford and young-marrieds Jack and Pat Minard, with whom the idea originated, accept that fact cheerfully.

★

"The kids themselves are the project," said Alan Elford, bearded and earnest. "This is a place where they can come. So can any adult who wants to take out a card."

There's to be no regimentation, and no programming other than what centre-users may eventually decide they wish to undertake. It's going to be left to them: they are under no pressure to organize—a fact that I find refreshing.

At this point, I asked about rules. As they stand, here they are:

No alcohol, no drugs.

No staying overnight (the hours are 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.).

Fire escape to be used only in emergency and no one allowed on the roof.

I might add here that "responsibility" was a word that figured any number of times in our conversation. The centre has to prove itself to the community, and especially to the parents of those who come to it.

★

For a few days after the centre opened, the atmosphere was a touch too relaxed. Pilfering went on; money and minor possessions turned up missing. However, with the first issue of membership cards, that particular worry ended. Members were told that the centre was theirs and that they would simply be stealing from themselves, also that the place was to be run on the honor system.

There are, however, grim worries of a sort that only your help can allay.

I asked what in particular was needed, and got a swift answer: "Everything!"

This is a very slight exaggeration. The girl members have brought material and are making curtains for the currently bare windows.

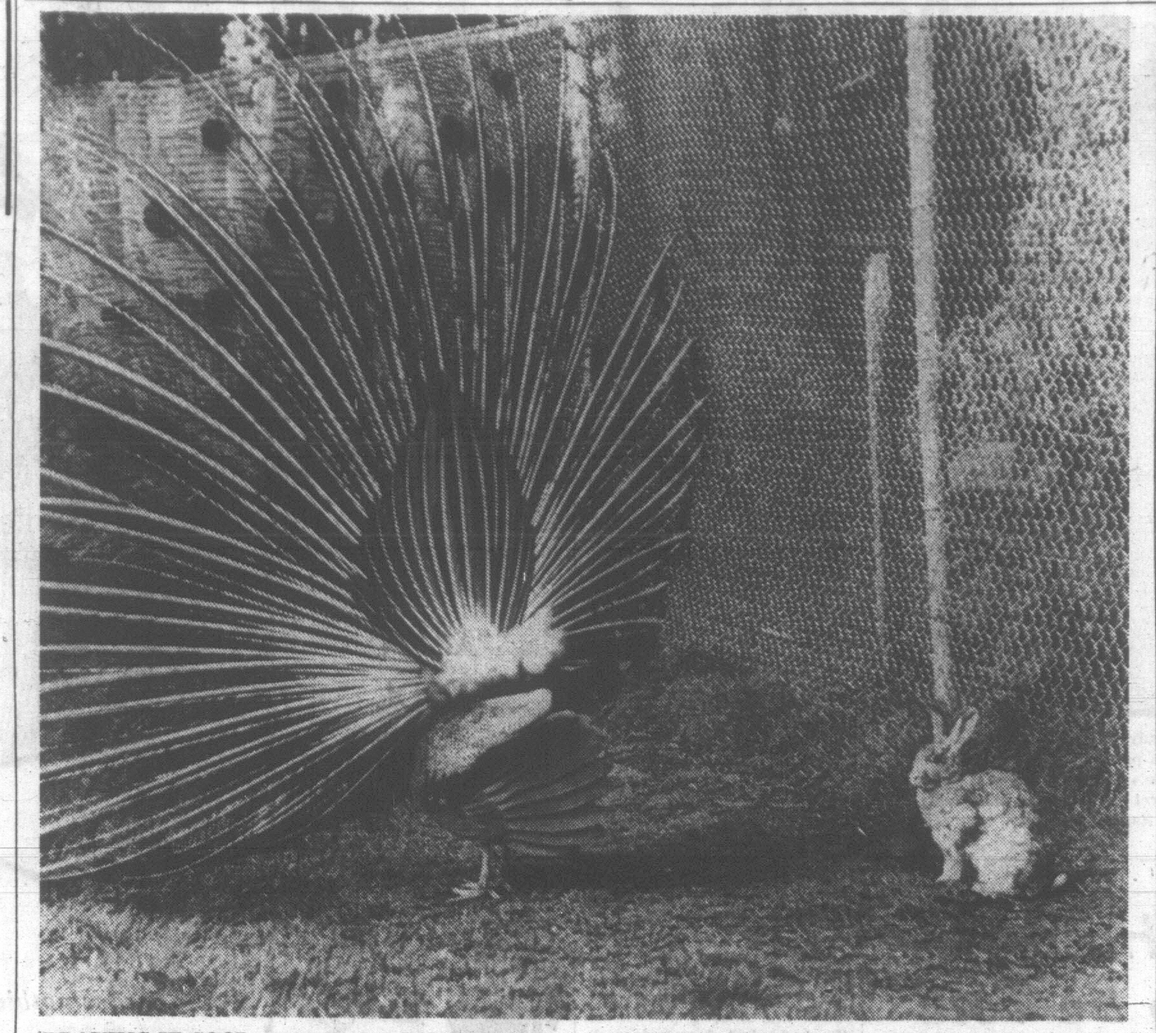
But the centre needs old chairs and couches, and an assist from any good-guy trucking outfit that will deliver them to its address.

It needs a free lawyer to steer it through such problems as it may encounter. It can use lumber and nails, mops, brooms and ashtrays.

And most of all, it needs money, money, money. In what has all the earmarks of a tough summer coming up, a lot of the kids can barely manage the $2 membership fee. The centre control committee is going to have bills to meet—among them a $50 hydro account due on June 6. It would also like to be able to afford a phone.

The thing to remember here is that these young ones aren't sitting around waiting for the city to provide those much-needed facilities for them. They've gone ahead on their own, with such backing as their persuasions could win. There's no swimming pool, no luxury, but they don't care about that.

As Alan Elford points out, the kids are the project—and a better one you'll never find.



PLAYING IT COOL at the Beacon Hill Park zoo is this brainy bunny. After all, when you're wearing a full-length rabbit fur coat, and the summer sun begins to shine, things get a bit steamy. Fortunately that preening peacock is good for something more than introducing television shows. His brilliant plumage provide a shady patch. Trouble is you have to follow him around. Teachers Want Better Conditions

JOHN E. SMITH
... GVTA president

s John E. Smith, 42, a social studies and general business teacher at Oak Bay Senior Secondary School, has been elected president of the 1,200-member Greater Victoria Teachers' Association.

Other officers are Georgina Watchorn, first vice-president; Ross Regan, second vice-president; Helen Ruckle, secretary, and Margaret McCurrach, treasurer.

The executive's five members-at-large are Horace Dawson, Rod Sample, Mrs. Margaret Seens, Mrs. Peggy Novak and Mrs. Paula Tuttle.

The new executive takes office Aug. 1.

SECOND TERM

It will be Mr. Smith's second term as GVTA president. He held the post seven years ago.

Both he and Mrs. Regan said their association would join a province-wide effort by teachers this year to press for more effective teaching and learning conditions.

To do this teachers will have to take a greater responsibility than they have in directing the course of education, said the president-elect.

One aim is to provide pupils with as much individual attention as possible.

CHANGE RATIO

"Obviously, to do this the ratio of teachers to youngsters has to be improved."

Mr. Smith said he hoped the association would also be able to foster resource-centred schools, that is schools built around well-stocked libraries amply supplied with extensive visual teaching aids such as movies and TV video tapes.

"We've got a long way to go in Victoria in this respect."

Fight Continued On Three Floors

Managing Editor Of Times Dies

By PETE LOUDON

Managing editor of The Times, Andrew Leslie "Les" Fox died early today at Jasper while attending an editors' conference.

His death, four days after his 60th birthday, was apparently caused by a heart attack.

He had arrived at Jasper with his wife Christine Thursday night. Funeral arrangements are pending. McCall Bros. are in charge.

The loss of "Les" Fox came as a numbing blow to newspaper colleagues throughout Canada who revered him as a master of his trade and a champion of newspaper integrity.

He was born in 1908 in Bradford, England, and came to Victoria with his parents about 1911. He was a Times carrier while attending Oaklands, Sir James Douglas and Victoria High schools. He joined the paper as a cub in 1926.

Under the tutelage of pioneer editor B. C. "Benny" Nicholas he covered every news beat with a dedication that won him appointment as legislative reporter in 1934.

LOVE OF POLITICS

He doubled as a stringer for the Sun of Vancouver and developed a love of politics that soon made him an expert in his field. But when the Second World War intervened he left the gallery for the RCAF, serving almost three years overseas as a flight control officer, mainly with Six Bomber Group Command.

Following the war he was employed full time by The Sun until 1951, served as gallery president and as Island correspondent for Time magazine. Then (former) publisher of the Times J. Stuart Keate offered him the post he was to hold for almost 17 years.

"In my view he was one of the best hard-news men in Canada, a great fellow at the personal level and a man you could always depend on," said Mr. Keate today in Vancouver.

REFUSED 'TIES'

Mr. Keate, Sun publisher, recalled that Mr. Fox refused personal tie-ups with local organizations to avoid any loss of objectivity. He asked the same of his news staff. His only exceptions to this rule were an honorary post as Sandown Jockey Club steward and his almost annual attendance at the Canadian Managing Editors' Conference.

Tribute was paid to Mr. Fox at opening of today's business meeting of the Jasper conference. Robert D. Owen of Kingston, CMEC president, said Mr. Fox was one of the most faithful members—"We all know and remember him with great affection."

Bruce Hutchison, Sun editor and for many years editor of The Times, had shared his boyhood with Mr. Fox then served with him in the press gallery.

'ALL RESPECTED HIM'

"He was one of the finest newspaper men I ever knew," said Mr. Hutchison today. "He had integrity, honesty and competence and always knew more about the political situation than anyone else. Every politician, regardless of party, respected him."

Mr. Hutchison said Mr. Fox as managing editor was never able to hide his warmth of character and "everyone who worked for him was his friend."

Mr. Hutchison recalled Mr. Fox's rare attribute in newspaper men — a mathematical mind which made him expert in analysing provincial budgets.

Mr. Fox is survived by his wife Christine, who recently retired from the position of assistant provincial librarian and by a son Michael in Montreal. There is one granddaughter, Lesley, and a brother, E. F. "Ted" Fox in Montreal. He was predeceased by his only sister, Mrs. Elaine Lloyd of Victoria.

CLOSURE IMMINENT — NDP

An announcement concerning the closing down of a "major institution" in this area will be made Monday night, says Esquimalt-Saanich NDP candidate Don Johannessen.

Mr. Johannessen, who will make the statement at a meeting to officially kick off his campaign, said the closure will affect the Conservative vote in his riding.

The 31-year-old Saanich school teacher will also make a general policy statement to supporters during the meeting at campaign headquarters, 303 Brunswick Place, at 8.

WEEKEND FOR BROLLIES

Wind and rain are on the way for Sunday.

The weatherman forecasts clouds in the morning with rain arriving in the afternoon. There will be little change in temperature.

Winds will be from the southwest at 15 miles an hour, rising to 25 miles an hour on the open waters of Juan de Fuca Strait.

Pure Air Lovers Get Ready! Sundays Will Be YOUR Day

If you haven't experienced it, you can't have any idea what it's like to be smoked out by Oak Bay's incurable incinerator stokers.

They start early in the morning, let the odorous contraptions smoulder all day—and then invariably fire them up in the evening so they waft about smoke and pungent smells all night.

But relief is in sight for the poor put-upon householder who prefers pure air.

Oak Bay officials are warning citizens a bylaw passed Nov. 6 prohibits fires in incinerators or "in the open air" ON SUNDAYS BETWEEN JUNE 1 AND SEPT. 30.

The ban also is in effect Dominion Day and Labor Day.

"Our position is that a householder who has improved his home by building a patio or sundeck—and had his taxes raised because of it—has a right to enjoy the outdoors at least one day a week without his neighbors fouling the atmosphere," an official said.

It should also be noted that dumping of foodstuffs on compost heaps—a sure-fire way to attract rats—is also frowned upon by the municipality.

Work Starts On Major Road

McKenzie Widening Gets Green Light

The biggest single road construction program ever undertaken in Saanich has started.

It will take at least two years and cost an estimated $1,152,000 to construct and reconstruct McKenzie Avenue between Douglas Street in the west and Gordon Head Road in the east.

Completion of the project will provide a major east-west road in an area lacking good cross-town connections. It will also relieve heavy traffic on Cedar Hill Cross Road between the Oak Bay boundary and the Quadra area.

Formal announcement of the release of provincial government money, long-awaited and pressed for by Saanich municipality, was made late Friday.

But Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis disclosed today that initial rough work started in the last few days, in anticipation of the announcement, at a point where McKenzie joins Cedar Hill Cross Road.

"We will push ahead with full crews now," he said.

Saanich ratepayers approved borrowing $951,000 for the work in a December, 1965, referendum. The highways department approved the road as a secondary highway in October, 1966, meaning it would share 50-50 in most costs or a saving of between $300,000 and $400,000 in the amount needed to be borrowed.

LAND ACQUIRED

Saanich has acquired nearly all the land needed for the rebuilding program during the last 2½ years and requested release of provincial money, in accordance with procedure, in the middle of 1967.

The 1968 portion of the program will cover that section of the road from immediately west of Quadra to Cedar Hill Road at an estimated cost of $500,000, said Mayor Curtis. Provincial share is $200,000.

This part of the over-all program stretches 1½ miles.

In the section slightly west of Quadra to just east of Century Road, construction standards will be higher with provision for sidewalks, curbs and storm drains.

The balance will be two lanes similar to that section built last year through the University of Victoria campus, said Mayor Curtis.

It was also announced the highways department has approved a grant of $50,000 as its share of reconstruction this year of part of Quadra, north from its intersection with McKenzie to a point just short of Saanich Road.

Q. In a 15-mile radius of the city of Victoria, is the population greater or less than 100,000 persons, including, of course, the city itself?

A. The population of the area encompassed by a 15-mile radius is in excess of 150,000 persons. The breakdown by district, from the 1966 census, is as follows: Central Saanich, 3,640; Saanich, 58,845; Esquimalt, 12,891; Victoria, 57,453; Oak Bay, 18,123.

Q. Can you please inform me where I might obtain the regulations regarding the renting of suites—for example the giving of notice for vacation or raise in rents?—D.H.

A. The Victoria Better Business Bureau informs us there is no information of this nature available at the moment save for the Landlords and Tenant Act itself. However, a pamphlet is being prepared and should be available in the near future.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

BACCALAUREATE SERVICE

Today's Youth Engaged In 'Reading-Writhing'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Due to lack of interest Tomorrow has been cancelled!

That, said Very Rev. Lewis McLean, DD, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, is the attitude of many Hippie-minded groups today.

They live only for the moment.

"Yet Jesus offers a very meaningful tomorrow," Dr. McLean told the graduating class of the University of Victoria at a Baccalaureate service in First United Church Friday night.

"He gives a meaning to life. This young man — only 33 when he died — says to the youth of the world: I am the way. Follow me. And, because of what He stands for, Jesus belongs to the adolescent revolution of today.

●

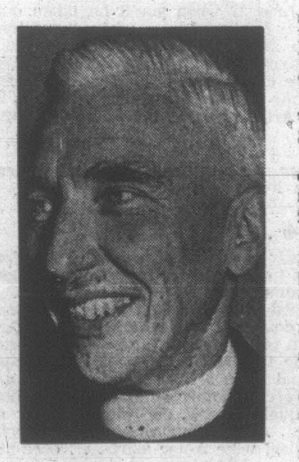
"He does not stand for the status quo."

The last rays of evening slanted through the high windows of the white-walled church as parents, relatives and friends crowded the floor and galleries for a simple service of dedication.

The graduates, in their black gowns and mortar boards, were massed in front of the flower-decked altar with the faculty of the university.

Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George Pearkes sat in the front pew. And, facing them from the platform, were Dr. Malcolm Taylor, president of the university, and clergy of many city churches in their robes of assorted colors.

In a prayer of invocation, Rev. Robert Morris spoke of "this milestone of graduation."



LEWIS McLEAN
... 'follow me'

Bishop Remi De Roo, head of the Roman Catholic Church on Vancouver Island, offered a prayer for the graduates, that their efforts would be "to the renown of our fair city and the building of Canada's nationhood."

Melvyn L. MacDonald, president of the graduating class, read the Old Testament lesson "But Where shall wisdom be found?"

●

Dr. Taylor read the New Testament lesson: "Love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you."

Anglican Archbishop Harold Sexton gave the benediction: "The Lord bless you and keep you ..."

In his sermon, Dr. McLean said the present age is one of Pot and LSD; of a generation unhappy with material success.

He said Keith Richard of the singing group, The Rolling Stones, had said:

"We want to strip away all cant, and strive for truth. Tell it to me, baby; tell it the way it is!"

Dr. McLean said youth's frustration and anger is expressed in many agonized demonstrations and protests.

"They seem to be engaged in reading, writhing and arithmetic," he said.

"There is a revolt against authority because of youth's search for meaning. And this is a secular age in which religious sanctions are no longer thought to be necessary.

●

"As a minister, I am identified with the establishment — a nasty word — and I am expected to cry Long Live the Status Quo!

"I am on the spot, too, because on the modern campus, there is no place for formal or organized religion. Yet I am convinced that Jesus Christ gives meaning to life and I believe many will return to that faith."

The service opened with a solemn procession led by ex-mayor J. B. Wilson, chancellor of the university.

Behind came the clergy, members of the board governors and senate, the university faculty and the graduates. The processional hymn, Praise, my soul, the King of Heaven, was followed by Now Thank We All Our God and Rise up, O Men of God.

Any Color Acceptable So Long as It's White

OTTAWA (CP) — A human rights investigator testifed before a board of inquiry Thursday that Ottawa landlady Laura O'Brien told him she had nothing against Negroes but had added: "They are filthy, you know."

Herbert Sohn, assistant director of the Ontario Human Rights Commission, also said Mrs. O'Brien denied discriminating against West Indian Monica Mitchell, 27, a registered nurse, and insisted that "darkies" were good people.

However, Mrs. O'Brien had mentioned that she had been beaten up by a Negro tenant.

The board of inquiry, which adjourned indefinitely after hearing a number of witnesses, was ordered following two complaints of discrimination lodged by Miss Mitchell after she answered a classified ad of Mr. and Mrs. John O'Brien last November offering "two bright rooms" for rent.

Miss Mitchell alleged that she had been refused the rooms because of her race and color.

She said she was told Nov. 5 that the rooms were rented. Less than an hour before, her sister-in-law had been told they weren't. Two friends, who said they had called a couple of days later, testified that they also were told the rooms were still available.

A fine point in the case is the type of dwelling involved. Under the legislation, it is an offence to deny occupancy of "any commercial unit or any self-contained dwelling unit" for reasons of race, creed, color, nationality, ancestry or place of origin.

Professor Walter Tarnopolsky of Toronto, the one-man board, and the lawyers visited the three-storey O'Brien residence to see whether the rented portion fell under the heading "self-contained dwelling unit."

A lawyer produced a doctor's certificate saying Mrs. O'Brien was unable to attend because of surgery. John G. Dunlap, the lawyer, added that Mrs. O'Brien also was suffering from "some sort of nervous disorder" irritated by the case

The O'Briens have a teenage daughter.

Miss Mitchell came to Canada from St. George's, Grenada, 16 months ago.

Bursary Helps Pay La Maison Fees

Owen Goudie is 17 years old, an Indian student at Elizabeth Fisher High School at Glen Lake who is determined to go to university.

This year he is in Grade 10 and taking two mathematics courses in one so he can qualify for the school's academic program.

His work is going well and much of it he does on his own, vice-principal Don Kerley said today.

But a switch in school subjects still leaves Owen short on French instruction. To make this up he hopes to attend La Maison Francaise, a French-language centre operated by the University of Victoria during the summer.

Courses run from July 2 to Aug. 16 and most students live in residence in a setting which encourages them to speak and think in French. Faculty and staff are drawn from Laval University at Quebec City.

The university has granted Owen a $100 bursary to help pay his way. Teachers at his school are collecting more and hope to match the bursary, said Mr. Kerley.

There will be 60 students, from high school to retirement age, at La Maison this summer compared to 45 last year.

Eight Victoria residents are among 13 students sharing $1,100 in bursaries. Financial aid ranges from $35 to $125.

Local winners include university students Julie Rae Goodwin, Gillian Haines, Ralph Sarkonak and Kathleen Thurston, high school students Margaret Bell and Roy Watson, newspaperman Paul Williamson and Joseph Haegert, a retired civil servant who has taken courses at the centre for the past two summers.

LIBEL AWARD of $75,000 was won Friday by Barry Goldwater in his action over a 1964 article in Fact magazine that said he was psychologically unfit to be president of the U.S. The New York jury deliberated 12 hours before returning the verdict against the now defunct publication.

More History Teaching Urged By Speakers

Young people must be made aware of their heritage, Mayor Hugh Stephen told the annual convention of the B.C. Historical Society at the McPherson Theatre Friday.

"When a nation disappears from the pages of history, it is because the people have forgotten where they come from," he said.

A heritage was something like a bank which new generations could draw from in time of need — to continue building a stable and civilized society, he said.

But the mayor added that a recognition of a historic heritage is sterile unless the demands of contemporary society are acknowledged and met.

This city had this in mind in its plans to revitalize its waterfront, he said.

"While the water and harbor served the tall ships of the 19th century, new vital uses for this historic location can make equal contribution to the different society of today," he stated.

The convention opened Thursday with a meeting at the Maritime Museum and an address by director Col. J. W. D. Symons.

About 70 delegates from all parts of the province are attending — many from Vancouver and the interior.

Mrs. Mable E. Jordon, president, expressed the hope that the new centennial museum would be integrated into the provincial educational system — a policy adopted by other provinces.

"A museum is primarily an educational institution — not a tourist attraction," she pointed out.

She felt more should be done to teach B.C. history in schools.

Berry Andrews, president of the Victoria branch, said plans for touring the new centennial museum and holding sessions in its auditorium had been cancelled.

"Contractors fear that it would involve 'risks' as the building is not yet completed," he explained.

City archivist A. Helmcken spoke on the "Civic Precincts in Retrospect."

He also arranged for a display in the city hall of one of the finest collections of historical photographs.

One Day in Jail For Taking $30

A woman with eight children was sentenced to one day in jail Friday for stealing from her friend.

Patricia Martin, 1809 Chambers, pleaded guilty to taking $30 from a friend's house May 6 while using her phone.

Magistrate Ostler said Mrs. Martin should be thoroughly ashamed of her actions.

She was also placed on a $250 one-year good behavior bond.

Tartan to Include Refund in Beer Case

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ben Ginter, owner of Tartan Breweries Ltd. of Prince George, said Thursday 10-cent refunds will be included next week in all cases of Tartan canned beer sold in British Columbia.

"If Mr. Bonner's government can refund part of people's property taxes, we can refund some of their beer costs," he said in a telephone interview from Winnipeg.

He was referring to a B.C. cabinet order which recently increased the price of canned beer to $2.73 for a 12-can case compared with the $2.63 for 12 bottles of beer.

Mr. Ginter said at the time his brewery did not want the increase. The large Coast breweries, which have just started selling canned beer, said the increase would cover higher costs of canning beer.

All Coast breweries now are selling canned beer. The Prince George brewery has been selling canned beer for some time.

Mr. Ginter said he plans to insert the 10-cent refund in each case produced by the brewery starting next week.

He made the comments after completing arrangements with the Manitoba Liquor Board to sell canned beer in that province.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner, minister in charge of the Liquor Control Board, declined comment on Mr. Ginter's effort to set a precedent with the refund.

"I have no light to shed on the matter at the moment," he said.

Opening lead—♠Q

The combination of an opening no-trump plus partner's 11 high card points is not likely to produce a slam and most pairs using ordinary methods would probably wind up in three no-trump.

The artificial bidding sequence shown in the box illustrates the scientific way to reach a slam.

North's two-spade bid shows a minor two-suiter of indefinite strength. South's three club bid merely announces that his clubs are at least as good as his diamonds. North's three heart call shows help in hearts, if his partner wants to try three no-trump. It also infers a singleton spade and is a force to game.

South's bid of three spades happens to be a slam try. North can't be sure that it isn't saying South has spades stopped two or more times so North merely goes to three no-trump.

This puts it up to South once more and he bids four clubs. This shows that South's three spade call was a cue bid to show the ace and that South is definitely interested in a club slam.

North might jump to six clubs but he has been bitten by the science bug and bids four diamonds to show that ace. South replies with four hearts to show the ace of hearts and by this time North has had enough. He bids six clubs.

There is nothing to the play at six clubs. All South has to do is to knock out the ace of trumps, draw the rest of the trumps and spread his hand.

Buzzing Russ Jet Crashes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Soviet medium jet bomber crashed in the Norwegian Sea today shortly after making a low pass close to a U.S. aircraft carrier, the defence department announced.

No survivors were found and three bodies were recovered, a spokesman added.

The defence department said the anti-submarine warfare carrier Essex reported that U.S. Naval vessels and aircraft "in no way interfered with, hampered or threatened the Soviet aircraft at any time or in any way prior to the crash."

The plane which went into the sea about 200 miles off the west coast of Norway was reported to be a TU-16 Badger, an elderly medium bomber which normally carries a crew of seven.

The United States has complained on a number of occasions dating back at least five years that Soviet reconnaissance bombers, including Badgers, have flown over U.S. naval units in international waters.

The announcement said the TU-16 was one of a flight of two Badgers.

"It was making a fourth low pass near the carrier USS Essex, which was conducting anti-submarine warfare training operations," the announcement said.

$80,000 MUSEUM WORK 'WRONG'

Sculpture Storm Blows

By HUMPHRY DAVY

A government-appointed fine arts committee was strongly criticized today for choosing its own chairman to create the most expensive piece of sculpture for the new Provincial Museum.

George Moore, museum adviser, questioned the committee's choice of Lionel Thomas to execute a sculpture depicting Nootka Indians —"in Hippie hair-do" — in the act of harpooning a California Gray whale.

Mr. Thomas is a professor of fine arts at the University of British Columbia and is chairman of the fine arts committee.

The all-wood sculpture, about 33 feet long and 14 feet wide, is believed to have cost $80,000. It will occupy the centre of the museum's orientation hall in the main exhibition building.

Mr. Moore, who claims the sculpture is not up to standard, said the project should have been submitted to an open competition.

"This would have given the committee a wider selection," he said "As I see it the method of selection leaves something to be desired."

●

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant disclaimed any responsibility for the choice of artist and sculpture.

"The fine arts are not in my field," he said. "This was up to a committee of experts."

He said it is easy now to look back and criticize.

"But the various museum committees have been working under hardships and strain," he said. "They have made mistakes—it's true. But I have nothing but praise for them because they are putting their best into the job."

Museum director Dr. Clifford Carl declined comment.

"I have nothing to do with fine arts," he added.

Wilson Duff, a former musem anthropologist, and a member of the committee, said he preferred to say nothing.

Mr. Moore, who touched off the controversy, described the Nootka piece as "wrong in scale, wrong in detail, wrong in posture, lacking in vibrancy."

He claimed the public is paying a high price for inferior art.

●

"I have no quarrel with the concept," he said. "But the work falls sadly short in its execution. It is tedious, inaccurate, unimaginative, confused, dead and far, far too expensive."

"As a taxpayer, I can't help but wish the whole commission could be handed over to a skilled Indian carver of Simon Charlie's worth, who understands the subject and is a master of the metier."

"The price of the completed work would support the museum's Indian carver training program for nearly eight years at current costs," he said.

Mr. Moore said he wanted to make it clear that he had no "axe to grind on his own." He doesn't know Mr. Thomas.

Mr. Moore is leaving the museum soon to take a post in a museum in Hawaii.

"What I'm concerned with is the role the museum plays as an educational institution," he explained. "It should stimulate and help raise the general cultural level of the society it seeks to serve.

"Now in my opinion, these works, commissioned at great expense, will not really help to further the museum's work. Therefore their inclusion is a disservice to the public."

House Bars Woman After 'Slur' on MPs

LONDON (Reuters)—Scottish Nationalist Winifred Ewing on Friday became the second woman member ordered out of the House of Commons in as many days for offending male colleagues.

The latest incident centred on a letter Mrs. Ewing wrote to a newspaper this week interpreted to mean she believed male members of the House spent too much time drinking in bars.

Thursday night another woman member, Conservative Dame Irene Ward, was suspended from Parliament for five days and ordered out of the Commons for standing in front of the speaker and blocking members going to vote.

The 72-year-old Dame Irene was protesting what she considered government suppression of parliamentary debates.

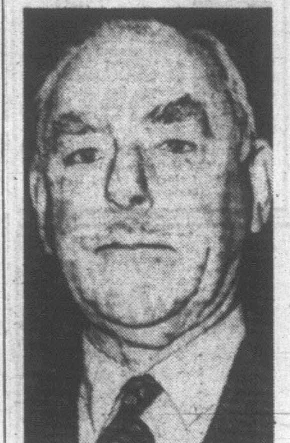
Dynamite Found

TORONTO (CP)—Police took possession of a bundle of five sticks of dynamite found near the Greenwood subway yards early today while a force of 250 officers continued to guard Toronto Transit Commission property against a person who has set off three explosions in TTC installations.

Anti-Rhodesia Stand Tagged as Conspiracy



ACHESON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former U.S. state secretary Dean Acheson has accused Britain and the United States of conspiring to overthrow the white-minority government of Rhodesia with the blessing of the United Nations.

Acheson, 75, secretary of state from 1949 to 1953 and now in private law practice, made the accusation Friday in a speech before a section of the American Bar Association.

The retiring U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, Arthur J. Goldberg, promptly took issue with Acheson.

"The secretary of state is a very distinguished man but what he has said is sheer nonsense," Goldberg said.

France Bans All Crowds, War Feared

PARIS (CP) — Premier Georges Pompidou said today that the violence that mushroomed through France Friday night and early today was "an obvious attempt" to start a civil war.

Two persons died in the riots which followed President de Gaulle's announcement Friday for a June referendum on major reforms he plans for the country.

Pompidou told reporters he has ordered police to use force if necessary to break up street meetings in Paris.

The violence, the worst since the French crisis began three weeks ago, also resulted in injuries to hundreds of persons and the arrest of hundreds more—648 in Paris alone.

SIRENS WAIL

Paris echoed today to the wail of ambulance sirens after the bloody night-long street battles that raged for 10 hours. Demonstrators wrecked and set fire to three police stations today.

Pompidou said "the occupation of the Latin Quarter took on the appearance of a real fortress. . . ."

"We were faced with an obvious attempt to set off the start of a civil war."

Those killed were a policeman in Lyon and a 26-year-old man who died of knife wounds in Paris. The knifed Parisian may have been struck by a rioter, although Pompidou said his death might not have had any connection with the disturbances. The premier said he was not a victim of police action.

As a heavy rain fell, Pompidou said order had practically been restored but that Paris presented the "face of devastation."

MAKES APPEAL

He said it is necessary "without delay to end subversive agitation" and appealed to the people not to join in assemblages or parades.

"Faced with an obvious attempt to unleash a start of civil war, as is shown by what happened in the big cities as for example Lyon, the forces of law and order were given the mission of destroying the barricades, dispersing the demonstrators and occupying the principal artieries held by the rioters," Pompidou told reporters.

"This agitation is all the more deplorable," he said, because it took place at a moment when unions and government were

EXPORTS INCREASE

Canada Economic State Defended

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau today accused other political parties of casting gloom on Canada's economic prospects.

He told a crowd of 1,000 on a downtown street that other parties are saying that things are going badly, that the dollar is uncertain.

"Why are they afraid of Canada's ability to prosper as a nation?" he asked.

Holding a lilac that someone had given him in his hand, he said the Liberal party wants to make sure the Canadian dollar is sound and that the budget is balanced.

The only way to do this was not to give the government more power and money but to give more opportunity to the people. That was how to make the country prosperous.

For those who paint a gloomy picture, he said the truth is that Canadian exports have practically doubled in the last five years.

The crowd, mostly adults, responded with polite applause.

'TRUDEAU LIKE A MINOR CAESAR'

By PETER NEWMAN

WINNIPEG — Even this early in the election a comparison of the campaign styles of Pierre Elliott Trudeau and Robert Lorne Stanfield leads to an inescapable conclusion: that unless they are dealt some unexpected blow, the Liberals will sweep into power on June 25 with a majority mandate based on their leader's burgeoning popular support in every province.

Newman

You could feel victory in the air here on Thursday when Trudeau spent the day touring the city's Conservative suburbs: You could hear it in dozens of casual conversations and see it in the faces of the crowds that turned out to watch his campaign.

Looking like one of the minor Caesars of the late Roman empire, Trudeau led a triumphal procession from shopping centre to shopping centre, where he was gaped at, flower-bedecked, sung to, applauded, heckled, admired, all the time being magnified in the public eye by the crowd's intense awareness of his personal style.

This was a dramatic contrast to the sober visit earlier in the week of Robert Stanfield who left the city not enlarged but somehow a smaller figure than when he arrived.

He could establish little rapport with the people who turned out to hear him read his speech; they went away uninvolved in his future, seemingly untouched by his appeal to responsibility.

The Trudeau crowds are different.

Their most colorful aspect, of course, is the horde of teeny-boppers, running with long manes blowing like banners in the wind, full of vitality, excitement, laughter, shrieking in a kind of wild ecstasy that rises to a squawk when one of their number is kissed.

(Reporter to writhing girl: "Why do you like him so much?" Writhing girl to reporter: "Ooooh, I like his pock marks." Reporter to self: "Acne Power?")

What is probably more significant is the presence of scores of toddlers, held on the shoulders of their parents being admonished to "remember him," the way in other years the very young were out to behold royalty.

Trudeau seems to enjoy each of these occasions, accepting the flowers thrust at him with a shrug, bounding up on the backs of trucks to give voice to his cause.

But he's at his best away from the howling mobs, at press conferences where he is transformed into a first-rate teacher who can turn tentative, vaguely articulated questions into something intelligent, rewording them so that each answer becomes a lucid lecture, a precis of the problem at hand, its ramifications, his policy on it, other possible solutions and the difficulties involved.

He speaks English not just well but superbly with a mastery of the Canadian idiom and of the language's subtleties.

TORIES SLIPPING

. . . And Poll Backs It Up

Prime Minister Trudeau and the Liberal party have taken a commanding lead in the early going of the federal election campaign, according to the latest Gallup poll.

The poll indicates that if the election had been held during the first two weeks in May, Liberals would have gained 50 per cent of the popular vote, Tories would have receive 29 per cent and New Democrats 16 per cent.

Here are the Gallup poll findings:

	Liberals	Progressive Conservatives	NDP	All Other
1963 election	42%	33%	13%	12%
1965 election	40	33	18	9
October, 1967	34	43	17	6
TODAY	50	29	16	5

The next poll will show voter preference during the last half of this month.
